Kissinger Returns To Paris For Talks

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (AP) — U. S. negotiator Henry A. Kissinger got final instructions from President Nixon Saturday in a four-hour Florida meeting before leaving for Paris to resume peace talks with the North Vietnamese.

Kissinger is due in the French capital Sunday night and the talks begin again Monday after a nine-day recess in which both sides have had a chance to reassess their positions.

White House spokesman Ronald L. Ziegler declined to comment on reports continuing to persist that the United States might be ready to sign a separate peace agreement despite South Vietnam's objections. Saigon Radio officially suggested that possibility Saturday.

Ziegler said it was inappropriate to talk about the final agreement when the negotiations on the cease-fire agreement were under way.

He said the new round of Paris talks was expected to last several days and that Kissinger wuld be returning to Washington afterwards to report personally to Nixon.

"There will be further consultations with the South Vietnamese" after this round of talks, too, Ziegler said, "but I can't predict the course of events after the meeting."

He continued to repeat previous White House statements that Nixon wants to achieve "a just and lasting settlement as rapidly as possible."

Kissinger flew to Florida to confer with Nixon personally for the last time before his Sunday morning departure for Paris from Andrews Air Force Base near Washington.

Nixon called for a full report on Kissinger's eight hours of talks since Wednesday with Nguyen Phu Duc, the envoy of South Vietnam President Nguyen Van Thieu, who has been demanding withdrawl of North Vietnamese troops from his country as part of any settlement.

The President, himself, met with Duc for almost three hours in two separate White House sessions. No word came from the White House on the substance of those talks except that the sessions had been lengthy, frank and detailed.

Saigon radio reporting an interview given by Foreign Minister Tran Van Lam, said Saturday Lam "hopes that the United States will not sign a separate agreement with the North Vietnamese Communists ..."

The report appeared to suggest that Lam considered that a possibility and that Washington had either offered President Thieu certain commitments or threatened a cut in its aid in an effort to persuade Thieu to sign a proposed cease-fire pact.

Service Recognized

Emmett Sullivan (center), secretary of the Sedalia Federation of Labor, was presented a framed certificate of gratitude for his service to the labor movement Saturday evening by James I. Spainhower, Missouri's Treasurer-elect, during a surprise dinner honoring Sullivan. Sullivan, a member of the International Typographical Union for 48 years, has served in his present post 35 years. Shown with Sullivan and Spainhower is Vincent VanCamp, (left), president of the Missouri Federation of Labor.

Local Labor Leader Honored At Dinner

Paying tribute to Emmett Sullivan, Sedalia Federation of Labor secretary, who was honored at a surprise dinner Saturday night at the Pacific Cafe, Missouri's Treasurer-elect James I. Spainhower told local laborites Sullivan "and men like him recognize if labor is to have strength and make a contribution to the community, it must be a strong and vital force ..." in that community.

Spainhower presented Sullivan a framed certificate of gratitude, on behalf of the Sedalia Federation of Labor, for his long service to the labor movement. He has been a member of the International Tyopgraphical Union for 48 years and secretary of the SFL 35 years.

Spainhower said organized labor had not only an obligation, but the privilege of helping improve the political, economical and social life of the communities where its workers live. He told his audience the saying "to the victor belongs the spoils" is not appropriate politically or in the labor movement. "A better, more accurate axiom is that 'to the victor belongs the toil'," said Spainhower.

He added, once a member of an organization such as the Federation of Labor wins the "right to be the official voice of your people, then you must be willing to put forth the toil that will result in a better life for all."

Spainhower noted efforts by labor to improve the welfare of all people. He said labor can aide the economical health of a community through active cooperation with business and civic leaders in promoting industrial development. He added, however, labor could also aide the community in which its workers live by issuing "a voice of concern" where needed on industrial development and other issues.

"Organized labor has a right to be a part of Missouri's increased industrial output," declared Spainhower.

In his concluding remarks of praise for Sullivan, Spainhower turned to Mrs. Sullivan and said, "The honor we pay to Emmett we also pay to you ..." for supporting his life's work.

Other labor leaders and public officials present included John C. Ryan, State Senator-elect, and Vincent VanCamp and James Davis, president and secretary-treasurer, respectively, of the Missouri State Labor Council. Ray Hendricks, president of the Sedalia Federation of Labor, and Pete Stohr, state representative-elect, were unable to attend due to illness.

Davis, in tribute to Sullivan, said "You're not going to see the likes of him again."

Westwood Attending Caucus

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Democratic National Chairman Jean Westwood flew into St. Louis and the National Democratic Governors Caucus Saturday night and gave indications that she has decided to fight to keep her job.

An aide said Mrs. Westwood, who is under pressure from conservative and moderate party elements to resign, would address the governors Sunday and indicated she would make her plans known at that time.

"She's not going to just be telling them to have a nice day," the aide said.

Earlier host Gov. Warren E. Hearnes had said Mrs. Westwood should resign and the governors should endorse a candidate to replace her or get out of national politics.

"If they don't leave here having made or having taken a position, I think they've abdicated any possibility of any leadership responsibility in national Democratic politics," the Missouri governor said.

Hearnes said he was confident the governors will sponsor a candidate to replace Mrs. Westwood, who was handpicked for the job last summer by Sen. George McGovern.

The sudden decision to bring her appeal directly to the governors, indicated that Mrs. Westwood would try to hold on to the job. Earlier she had said she would not resign voluntarily but later said she might step down if an acceptable compromise candidate could be found.

Mrs. Westwood has been under fire, primarily because of her closeness to McGovern, ever since the Democratic presidential nominee suffered a landslide loss to President Nixon Nov. 7.

Commenting as governors began to arrive for Sunday's closed meeting, Hearnes said he thinks Mrs. Westwood should leave but wouldn't say who should replace her.

"When you lose and lose badly, you step aside and let somebody else have a chance," Hearnes said.

Backers of former national party treasurer Robert Strauss for the chairmanship are expected to seek some kind of support from the governors this weekend through an endorsement or at least a favorable straw vote.

Hearnes said he felt Strauss had the edge and criticized another leading contender, former chairman Lawrence F. O'Brien for "mickey mouse stuff" of having other people campaign for him without publicly committing himself as a candidate.

Hearnes declined to speculate on what influence an endorsement by the governors might have on the national committee when it decides the chairmanship question.

"I don't think the governors are the total answer to this question," Hearnes said. "I think they are just a part of it."

Yuletide Festivities

Nearly 6,000 people turned out for Sedalia's annual Christmas parade Saturday as clear skies and warming temperatures provided a perfect setting for the 72-unit parade. First place in the church category went to the Maplewood Church Omegan's Youth Group float (top photo), entitled "God's Gift to our Present World." Janelle Rice (left) steps high as she leads the Green Ridge High School band while members of the Smith-Cotton High School bank (lower photo) strike up a Christmas carol.

Holiday Atmosphere

Large Parade Turnout

A holiday atmosphere prevailed Saturday morning as a crowd estimated by the Sedalia Chamber of Commerce at nearly 6,000 lined Ohio and Osage to observe the city's annual Christmas parade.

Children scurried everywhere and multicolored balloons floated above the crowd as the spectators waited patiently, enjoying the brisk wind and warm sun.

A spokesman for the Chamber of Commerce stated that the number of spectators was "much higher than usual" and felt that the sunshine and warm weather was a big factor. He also said that enthusiasm made a big difference and the "entries looked very sharp".

A total of 72 entries, including nine bands (two more than last year) participated in the papade, which had the theme "Christmas, Past and Present." The number of entries was 19 fewer than last year.

Part of the parade was held up for a short while when one of the parade participants fainted. Rumors quickly spread that someone had suffered a heart attack and the story strengthened when an ambulance rushed down Ohio, scattering parade units in all directions. Order was soon restored, however, and the parade resumed its normal pace. The individual who fainted refused treatment at Bothwell Hospital.

There were 31 units elegible for awards in four categories: civic clubs, churches, schools and 4-H, and commercial. There were four winners in each category. The winners were:

Civic clubs: (1) "Your Santa Claus In Blue," by the Ladies Auxiliary of Letter Carriers, Branch 106; (2) "Christmas, Past and Present," by the American Business Women's Association; (3) "Yuletide Greetings," by the Loyal Order of Moose 1494; (4) "Through the Doors of Time," by Job's Daughters — Bethel No. 15.

Churches: (1) "God's Gift to Our Present World," by the Maplewood Church Omegan's Youth Group; (2) "Christ Is, Was, Will Be Forever Christmas," by the Our Savior Lutheran Church "God Squad" Youth Group; (3) "Christmas at Home Is Love," by the East Sedalia Baptist Church;

Threats Spread Fear

DUBLIN (AP) — A rash of bomb scares spread fear here Saturday as tough new measures to crush the Irish Republican Army neared final approval in parliament, opening the way to a mass roundup of suspected guerrillas throughout the republic.

The capital was tense and edgy in the wake of two major bomb blasts that killed two persons and injured more than 120 others Friday night.

In one of the many new alarms, police evacuated the post office, traditional center of republican protest in central Dublin, after reports that a car with a bomb in it had been parked outside the building.

Troops exploded charges around the vehicle but there was no explosion inside the car and it was declared officially bomb free.

In the jittery city, crowds and traffic were only a quarter of the normal on a busy Saturday approaching Christmas.

Friday night's blasts brought about the first bomb deaths in the Irish republic since violence erupted in British-ruled Northern Ireland three years ago.

In Belfast, Northern Ireland's capital, 22 persons were injured by a bomb that went off without warning at a post office in Victoria Road.

The death-dealing Dublin explosions were heard in the Dail—lower house of the Irish parliament—as lawmakers debated the controversial new defense of the state amendment bill Friday.

The new law gives Prime Minister Jack Lynch's government sweeping powers to arrest suspected IRA members.

This Week in Business

Surveys Show More Improvement

By DEBORAH M. RANKIN
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Government and private surveys that showed continued improvement in the economy dominated business news during the past week.

The Commerce Department reported that the government's composite average of leading business indicators, which often foreshadows broad movements in the economy, rose .6 per cent in October. But the September figure, previously reported as .4 per cent increase, was revised to show a decline of .2 per cent, the first drop in more than two years. The decline mainly reflected a lower rate of gain in consumer installment credit.

Commerce Department officials said the index still exhibited a strong upward trend despite the September decline, and predicted the economy would continue to grow at a vigorous rate.

Other positive news came in a department report that said the U.S. foreign trade deficit narrowed sharply in October to the smallest level in nine months. Exports last month rose 5 per cent to a seasonally adjusted $4.36 billion, while imports rose only 2.3 per cent to $4.78 billion. The $415 million deficit was the smallest since last January, the department said.

In the private sector, a survey of purchasing executives found them optimistic about business prospects in 1973, with 70 per cent predicting it would be better in the first half of next year than it was in the last half of 1972. But the study of 250 members of the National Association of Purchasing Management indicated they were more cautious about the second half of 1973, mainly because of uncertainty about the long-term economic outlook.

Reports from trade and research groups showed building and capital investment made strong gains during the fall. A survey of the nation's 1,000 largest manufacturers by the Conference Board found they had increased their third-quarter capital appropriations by 2 per cent over the previous quarter, appropriating $7.11 billion for new plants and equipment.

This was 20 per cent more than the manufacturers spent in the third quarter of 1971, and the survey said the figures pointed to a stronger economic recovery next year.

In labor developments, President Nixon selected building trades leader Peter J. Brennan to be his new secretary of labor. The choice of Brennan, president of the New York City Construction and Building Trades Council, brought public praise from most union officials. But the big independent United Auto Workers Union in Detroit had no comment and sources said the union's leaders were less than enthusiastic.

Rain Ruins Houses

CAIRO (AP) — An unusual one-inch rainfall led to the collapse of about 2,000 houses in a Cairo suburb, the newspaper Al Ahram reported. The semi-official newspaper did not mention any casualties.

IT'S HOMAKERS' FOR LASTING GIFTS FROM THE FAMILY TO THE FAMILY.
How often on Christmases past have you surveyed the range of family gifts — when the happy flush of opening the presents has passed — and felt a twinge of regret? Felt a disquit, caused by the evidence of so much of your family's hard earned savings spent on gifts of fleeting value? Happily purchased, well intentioned gifts, that end up on the top shelf — as "things" instead of treasures ... baubles that turn so quickly to bubbles. How much more satisfying (for the giver and the receiver) if the well intentioned money had been spent on the permanent gifts of home furnishings. Home giving for happier living! Gifts that add pride, pleasure and convenience. Gifts from the family ... to the family. Gifts that continue to pay dividends in comfort and beauty for all the family to share. Not just for days, or weeks, or months. But for years ahead. A lasting reflection of the warmth, love and care we all want to express in our gifting. From the family ... to the family. Isn't that the way to ensure your family's Christmas giving is more meaningful for all concerned? Come see what your money can buy at Homaker's.

Advocates Student Privacy

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — The executive secretary of the National Organization on Legal Problems of Education says students should have right to privacy in their school records.

"That privacy should only be overcome by someone when he has justifiable interest," said Marin A. McGhehey, also executive director of the Kansas Association of School Boards.

He said, "The average garden variety of citizens don't have an interest."

McGhehey also said that a school board member "shopping through students records for interesting facts" possibly could run a foul of the law.

"I think probably that board members may have to show some reason for wanting to see a record," he said. "I think it might could be withheld from a board member."

He said the school board rules and regulations should encompass provisions for access to student records.

"I don't think an individual school board member . . . has the right to access of confidential records," he said.

He said most states have a public records law making available records which, by law, must be kept.

"Student records are private; they are not required by law," he said.

He also said "any employe should have the right to see anything in his permanent record."

Employes sometimes aren't given a chance to respond to negative material in their personnel files, he said.

"I think we ought to give the individual some protection. I don't think that's unreasonable," he said.

Pollution Control Means Set

(Democrat-Capital Service)

CLINTON — The Kaysinger Basin Regional Planning Commission, serving a seven-county area, will administer program requirements for construction or modification of potential air pollution sources, it was reported Friday.

Any future construction or modification of a potential source of such pollution will require a permit from the Missouri Air Conservation Commission — an action based on recently-passed legislation.

Ron Henricks, KBRPC environmental engineer, said permits will also be required for all new small incinerator installations, charcoal kilns and asphalt plants. Such processes as rock, gravel and sand quarrying, feed, grain and fertilizer manufacturing, petroleum storage, wood processing operations and power plants will be covered by the new permit system.

The Planning Commission covers Bates, Benton, Cedar, Henry, Hickory, St. Clair and Vernon Counties.

Whitlam's Labor Party Wins 67 Seats

SYDNEY (AP) — E. Gough Whitlam, who began his political career as a recording secretary of a local party branch, has brought the Labor party into power in Australia for the first time in 23 years.

Prime Minister William McMahon, leader of the Liberal-Country coalition that has ruled since 1949, conceded defeat Saturday night after Whitlam's Labor party had won 67 seats in elections for the 125-seat House of Representatives.

McMahon has been prime minister and 15 were undecided. In the old House, the coalition had 66 seats to 59 for Labor.

McMahon has been prime minister since 1970 when John Gorton resigned.

Seven million persons went to the polls.

Whitlam, 56, hugged his wife Margaret and shouted above the din of a celebration party at his suburban home, "It was time!" The Labor party had campaigned on the slogan "It's time" for a change.

The Labor victory in Australia comes one week after the Labor party in nearby New Zealand swept into power.

"The new government will have a very good mandate to carry out all its policies," Whitlam said.

During the campaign Labor had promised increased social benefits and regional development.

Some major changes are expected in foreign policy. Whitlam has said Australia will recognize the Peoples Republic of China, which he has advocated since 1954.

He also said he would pull Australia out of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization, already weakened by the recent defection of Pakistan and the inactivity of France.

The 6-foot-4 Whitlam is the son of an assistant prosecutor with the Australian government and has a law degree from Sydney University.

He joined the Labor party in 1945 while an officer with the Royal Australian Air Force and his first job was to record the minutes of the Sydney inner city branch.

He failed in early attempts to win election to the City Council and to the New South Wales Legislature. But in 1952 he won a seat in Parliament and three days ago celebrated completing 20 years in the House of Representatives.

Whitlam took over leadership of the party in 1967 and transformed the party into a cohesive group.

"My role has been that of an innovator. My style is evolutionary; my substance is revolutionary," he said.

Say Elderly Sedalia Man Escaped Injury

James H. Estes, 87, 217 East Pettis, escaped injury Saturday afternoon when he was struck by an auto at the intersection of Main and Lamine.

Police reported the driver of the auto, Ludwig F. Rittermeyer, 83, 2009 East 10th, claimed sunlight glare obscurred Estes from his vision. The mishap occurred when Rittermeyer drove his auto from Main into the southbound lane of Lamine.

Estes was X-rayed at Bothwell Hospital and released, according to a hospital spokesman.

Vandalism Reported

Vandals broke the windshield of a pickup truck and damaged a mailbox owned by Arman J. Weaver, 2507 Albert Lee, sometime Saturday, according to police. Damage was estimated at $125.

Diefenbach Meets Bond Requirements

Dale Diefenbach, Route 1, LaMonte, was released from the Pettis County Jail after meeting bond requirements of $7,500 in Pettis County Magistrate Court and $1,000 in Pettis County Circuit Court Friday.

Diefenbach was arrested Oct. 10 by Pettis County sheriff's deputies for the alleged sale of 112.3 grams of marijuana earlier in the year. According to charges filed against him, Diefenbach alledgedly sold the marijuana to a special agent for the U.S. Department of Justice, Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs.

Monday Pettis County Prosecuting Attorney Adam Fischer elected to refile charges against Diefenbach after encountering "procedural difficulties" in connection with the original filing.

He explained state law requires the preliminary hearing date be set no later than 21 days from the date chartes are filed in magistrate court. A computation error set the case 23 days after Diefenbach appeared before Pettis County Magistrate Frank Armstrong, Fischer said.

Local

Many of the benefits reaped by the working man locally were due in part or whole to Sullivan's efforts, Davis declared.

VanCamp, adding his praise for Sullivan's role in labor, went on to review the structure of the state legislature.

Davis noted 68 new members will be serving in the legislature for the first time. He vowed strong opposition to the right-to-work measure to be introduced in the coming session of the legislature. "As soon as the bill is printed," promised VanCamp," every man will know the number of the bill ... and the committee it is assigned to." He concluded state labor leaders "will do our job in the halls of Jefferson City, it's up to you to do your part" locally in opposition to the right-to-work measure.

League Will Visit Four Local Schools

Jefferson, Washington, Whittier and Striped College Schools will be visited by the League of Women Voters from 9 a.m. to noon Monday as the League's last step in its study of public school facilities.

The study began Nov. 14 with visits to Horace Mann, Heber Hunt, Mark Twain and Hubbard Elementary Schools, as well as Smith-Cotton High School and the new junior high building.

Making Monday's tour will be Mrs. Claude Lambirth, chairman of the League's education committee, accompanied by P. A. Sillers, superintendent of elementary education.

The findings of the study will be published in booklet form and the League will also prepare a report for the Sedalia board of education, it was reported. The date of publication for the booklet may be determined at the League's board meeting Tuesday.

One League source said the school tour is open to the public and anyone wishing to participate could do so by meeting at the northeast side of the Broadway Presbyterian Church parking lot, Broadway and Osage, no later than 9 a.m. Monday.

Four Are Treated For Minor Injuries

Four persons were treated for minor injuries and released from Bothwell Hospital following two separate accidents on West Broadway between 9:30 and 10 p.m. Friday.

In the first incident a 1970 Volkswagen drive by Russell M. Glenn, 21, 228 South Missouri, struck a parked 1962 Ford owned by James S. Simon, 1620 West Broadway, after Glenn apparently fell asleep at the wheel while driving west on Broadway.

Glenn received minor injuries as did two passengers in the car, Ellin Stratton, 17, 115 East Jackson, and Jeff Diehl, 17, 2400 South Quincy. Glenn was later charged with driving while intoxicated.

In the second accident, about 20 minutes later, a car driven by Terrie Jean Volpp, 18, 2802 Wing Ave., collided with the rear end of a car driven by Mary Louise Seifner, 18, Route 2, LaMonte.

Both vehicles were westbound on Broadway when a station wagon apparently stopped suddenly in front of the Seifner car, forcing her to apply her brakes. Her car was then struck in the rear by the Volpp car. Shirley Siron, 18, Route 4 Sedalia, a passenger in the Volpp car, was slightly injured.

Question

For Compensation purposes how is the value of a human life determined?

Answer

An English Court awarded two children in London the sum of $20,418 for the loss of their mother in a compensible automobile crash. The Justice who had the task of assessing this loss in cash terms said he had to disregard the loss of love and affection the mother gave. He was allowed only to consider the financial support the children could have anticipated from their mother's earnings.

Compensation paid by the American Government for the death of a serviceman or compensation authorized by a state for the death of a workman is based upon the decedent's projected earnings and the number and degree of those dependent upon him. Federal and State governments set compensation payments by statute. No attempt is made to evaluate the worth of life in its human relationships. For compensation purposes the value of a human life is inestimable.

New Image Essential For Party

By GREGG HERRINGTON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democrats must erase their image as "squabbling, inefficient, confused and angry partisans" if they are to win back the presidency in 1976, says party Chairman Jean Westwood.

Mrs. Westwood, whose resignation has been called for by a number of powerful Democrats around the country, said in the last two presidential elections "the American people perceived a party in disarray: one segment feeling shut out, and various segments quarreling.

"The Republicans, of course, took full advantage of our troubles both times, and made every effort to separate our candidate from one section or another of our normal constituency," Mrs. Westwood said Friday in the report mailed out to committee members. Her report was required to submit to the 303-member Democratic National Committee before it meets here Dec. 9.

Mrs. Westwood, chosen as chairman last July by unsuccessful Democratic presidential candidate Sen. George McGovern, made no direct mention in the report of the controversy surrounding her own future at party headquarters.

Mrs. Westwood, of West Jordan, Utah, noted that Democrats have made gains in the Senate, governorships and state legislatures while maintaining control of the House of Representatives despite President Nixon's two victories in 1968 and 1972.

She said the party has won "in so many places that it is ridiculous to say that we cannot do it nationally. Of course we can."

"But we must erase the image which we allowed to grow, and which the Republicans fostered, of a Democratic Party made up of squabbling, inefficient, confused and angry partisans," she said.

Explains Reasons For 'Condolences'

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — President Joseph A. Beirne of the Communications Workers of America says he offered "condolences" to Peter J. Brennan after Brennan was nominated for secretary of labor by President Nixon.

"He's a fine, upstanding man," Beirne said Friday. "I offered him my condolences for the cross he will have to carry" in the Nixon administration.

"I don't see how he could be a good secretary of labor and a good trade unionist," said Beirne, in Atlanta at a convention of the CWA's 3rd District.

Brennan has been president of the New York City and State Building and Construction Trades Council for 15 years.

Car Price Increases Allowed

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors Corp. has hiked prices on 1973 models an average of $54 on the heels of Price Commission approval of the increase.

Ford Motor Co., which also received permission Friday for a $62.55 average boost, withheld immediate action.

The Ford hike, a 1.9 per cent increase, was scaled down from the $92 increase it had asked the Price Commission to approve. The GM hike was a 1.53 per cent increase.

Industry observers said Ford is delaying implementing the price hikes while it examines its competitive position in relation to the GM increase.

Meanwhile, Chrysler Corp. officials said they have filed a new application with the Price Commission requesting a second price increase to cover allowable economic increases through Dec. 31 and government-required safety equipment.

On Oct. 17, Chrysler increasd prices an average of $20 after the price panel approved a $60 hike.

American Motors Corp. at the same time hiked its 1973 prices an average of $38 following authorization to increase them $144.

The price panel's ruling ended more than five months of negotiatons between GM and Ford and the government.

Apollo 17 Is Faced With Strike Threat

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — A father of four whose pay was cut almost in half says he and 59 other aerospace workers will go on strike in efforts to halt next Wednesday's Apollo 17 moonshot if their salaries aren't restored.

Nineteen months ago, Bob Miller, 40, a technical writer for the Boeing Co. at the Kennedy Space Center, was making $260 a week. But his salary was cut to $135.20 when Boeing won a contract to take over the dwindling space-launch program for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Miller does the same work and occupies the same desk as he did before the salary cut.

"We took this cut and accepted it because the national situation looked bad," Miller said of the economic outlook at the time.

"But the first thing that happened was that NASA got a pay increase, other contractors got pay increases, food prices have gone up, everything has gone up but us."

"We don't want to interfere with Apollo because we love the program," Miller said. "But, when someone interferes with your living, or harasses your children, you do something and you let people know what's going on. That's our democratic way."

Miller works with engineers in the Skylab program in preparing reports on the design progress. On Apollo 17 launch day, his job is to conduct guided tours for visiting dignitaries — if he isn't out on strike.

Accident With Toy Fatal For Youngster

ALTON, Ill. (AP) — A 22-month-old boy from Godfrey, Ill., died Friday night as a result of an accident on his tricycle. Authorities said Glenn Schumacher had a small toy log in his mouth and suffered a cut on the roof of his mouth. He died six hours later at St. Joseph's Hospital here.

An autopsy was ordered by the Madison County coroner's office. The cause of death was not immediately determined, although Alton police said the child was treated for a blood clot that apparently went into his respiratory system.

Police said the boy was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard S. Schumacher of Godfrey.

Snake Handler

Alton Clark of Greenville, N.C., pulls a giant anaconda from its cage so the snake can "stretch its legs." Clark is a snake handler with the traveling snake display that stopped in Sedalia this week. Along with the anaconda, which is reportedly the largest snake in the world, the display also featured a boa constrictor and a reticulating python. (Democrat-Capital Photo)

Overseas Market Impact Could Shrink

DODGE CITY, Kan. (AP) — United States farmers can expect a smaller foreign market for wheat next year but Russia is creating a bigger market for feed grains and soybeans, says a farm official.

Glenn A. Weir, associate administrator in the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, told 200 persons Friday that Russia is developing a new diet emphasizing animal proteins for its people.

Speaking at the Kansas Wheat Growers Association convention, Weir said the 1970 Agricultural Act freed farmers from government control. He credited the Nixon administration with putting more cash in farmers' pockets.

Weir, a native of Kiowa, Kan., predicted that the United States will control the world wheat market in the coming months. He said Canada can't deliver on exports, while Argentina and Australia have had poor crops.

Don Crane of Wright, association president, called for improvement of the 1970 Agricultural Act.

Plan First Display Of Painting

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — Nearly 500 years after it was created by the Italian Renaissance painter Raphael, a masterpiece entitled "Madonna and Child with Book" will go on public display for the first time Sunday.

Industrialist Norton Simon, who reportedly paid more than $3 million for the painting, loaned it to the Princeton University Art Museum.

The painting, completed in 1504, reportedly was bought by Simon from Wildenstein & Co., a New York art firm, after two years of negotiations.

The Raphael is among 100 paintings being loaned to the university for one year by Simon, whose private corporate collection of more than 300 canvasses is one of the largest in the world.

Simon told a news conference Friday: "For a long time it has been my great desire to have a masterpiece from the High Renaissance in the corporate collection. I am gratified that the Norton Simon, Inc., Museum of Art could acquire the painting in time for the Princeton exhibition."

The "Madonna and Child with Book" is about 14 inches wide and 18 inches high. The child is held in the Madonna's right arm, under her delicate gaze, as both hold a book. A poetic landscape forms the background.

Firms Ready To Recognize Acupuncture

CHICAGO (AP) — Two major insurance subsidiaries of CNA Financial Corp. have announced they are prepared to pay claims for legitimate acupuncture treatments.

Officials of Continental Assurance Co. and Continental Casualty Co. said Friday coverage would apply only to "those procedures done by a licensed practitioner as a specific medical procedure."

Acupuncture is the ancient Chinese practice of inserting long, thin needles into certain points of the body to ease or stop pain.

"We have no intention of paying claims for 'back-alley' acupuncture treatments," said Herbert C. Parsons, vice president of Continental Casualty.

"Right now, for example, Weiss Memorial Hospital (in Chicago) is using acupuncture experimentally as an anesthetic procedure," he told newsmen. "We would pay the regular anesthetic fee on that."

Man Believed He Would Get $200,000 Loan

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Jess C. Roberts has testified he believed he would get a $200,000 government loan to expand his private club at Grove, Okla.

Roberts said James S. Duardi of Kansas City told him the loan was being arranged with the Small Business Administration through Mrs. Olivia Mae Pitts of Pawhuska, Okla., widow of an Osage Indian Chief.

Duardi is one of six men on trial on a charge of conspiring to promote gambling and prostitution at Roberts' club. The others are Nathaniel J. Brancato, 40, and Clifford L. Bishop, 30, both of Kansas City; Jack Michael King, 50, a Grove club owner; Lewis Frank Grayson, 50, former district attorney of Delaware and Ottawa counties in Oklahoma, and George L. Husong, 43, former investigator for Grayson.

Cross-examined Friday by Patrick A. Williams, Tulsa attorney, Roberts acknowledged that he was breaking Oklahoma law by selling liquor by the drink at his Mr. Yuk Club when he was raided five times.

Roberts admitted he had not paid any personal income tax since 1946, and said he recently sold his home on Grand Lake for $150,000.

He reiterated that he and the six defendants planned to expand the Mr. Yuk Club and to offer gambling and girls to Kansas City businessmen.

Device May Aid U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Using a modified Russian device, U.S. scientists have taken "a major step forward" in harnessing nuclear fusion, the atomic reaction that gives H-bombs their power.

At the same time, Atomic Energy Commission scientists cautioned that they are still a long way from a practical reactor that will generate electricity.

"Controlled fusion" would unlock almost unlimited fuel supplies from the oceans and perhaps solve the problems of radiation which accompany current nuclear generating plants.

Scientists at the AEC laboratory in Princeton, N.J., redesigned an electromagnetic device first developed in the Soviet Union to compress fusion fuel far more than thought possible by applying pulses of magnetic energy, thus coming closer than ever before to conditions needed for fusion reaction.

Present atomic reactors, and the bombs of the type dropped on Hiroshima and Nagasaki, operate on a process called fission in which large atoms—Uranium-235—are split into smaller atoms, releasing large amounts of energy.

Fusion combines or fuses small atoms into larger ones, releasing greater amounts of energy.

Include Death Penalty

Flurry of Bills Introduced in Legislature

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Two bills to reinstate the death penalty, three public disclosure measures and a proposed amendment calling for a constitutional convention were among 152 bills and resolutions introduced during the first day of pre-filing of bills for the 77th general legislative session starting Jan. 3.

The House produced 122 bills and seven resolutions, and the Senate, 22 bills and one resolution Friday. More than 1,500 bills are expected to be introduced before the six-month session ends.

A Senate resolution by Maruice Schechter, D-Creve Couer, and Albert M. Spradling Jr., D-Cape Girardeau, calls for a constitutional convention.

An election would be set in 1974 or earlier if called by the governor, and the convention would begin six months after the delegates are elected.

Another proposed constitutional change would revamp the legislature by cutting the House membership from 163 to 100 and raising the number of senators from 34 to 50.

The bill, by Rep. Ray S. James, R-Kansas City, would have two House members being selected from each senatorial district. The districts would be set up by bipartisan apportionment commissions, as they are now.

Rep. Harold L. Volkmer, D-Hannibal, introduced a bill to require a mandatory death penalty for anyone convicted of first-degree murder.

Rep. Harold J. Esser, R-Kansas City, introduced a bill calling for the death sentence for first-degree murder, kidnaping, rape and robbery with a deadly weapon. Volkmer's bill also sets the penalty for second-degree murder at not less than 10 years.

The U.S. Supreme Court abolished the death penalty but several states have reinstated it.

Several bills were introduced to put into effect the tax reduction proposals approved by the voters in the Nov. 7 general election.

Since these proposals will mean multi-million dollar reductions in local government revenue, they are expected to be some of the most controversial bills in the 1973 session.

Two plans—a constitutional amendment offered by Sen. Robert A. Young, D-St. Ann and 13 other senators, and one offered by Rep. James F. Conway, D-St. Louis, would set up a sliding scale of income tax credits to offset the property tax and the rent paid by persons over 65.

In a household where the property tax is $300 and the income is $1,400, for example, the householder would be entitled to a rebate of $195. Twenty-five per cent of a household's annual rent would be equal to one year's property tax bill.

What is expected to be the largest single bill, that on government reorganization, was not introduced. The new president pro tem of the Senate, William J. Cason, D-Clinton, says he will introduce the reorganization bill. His public disclosure bill was the first to be introduced in the Senate.

Reps. James G. Baker, D-Kansas City, and Vernon King, D-Lawson, also introduced "open meetings" bills.

Many other bills planted seeds for legislative battles during the six-month 1973 session.

One, offered by Rep. Phillip P. Scaglia, D-Kansas City, would repeal Missouri's Sunday sales law, which is enforced on a hit-or-miss basis in various parts of the state.

Several bills called for statewide voter registration, as recommended by the election laws study commission, and registration by mail, along with other changes.

A welfare reform bill by Rep. Bill J. Crigler, D-Fayette, would limit old age assistance to $100 a month per person instead of the current $85, allow aid to a dependent child at $43 a month for the first child, $24 a month for each additional child, $33 for a needy relative and $70 a month to an unemployable person.

Another bill by Crigler would place a sales or use tax on the difference between the purchase price and the allowance of value made on auto tradeins. At present, the difference is taxed if the purchase price exceeds $500. a broad consumer protection law was introduced by Rep. J. B. "Jet" Banks, D-St. Louis. He also offered one to keep arrest records secret in cases where there is no conviction.

Rep. J. Anthony Dill, R-Affton, offered a bill to give an income tax credit for the costs of school or college tuition, fees and books.

In another bill, he would allow a $50 income tax credit for contributions to established political parties.

A bill by Esser would abolish county and township assessors and leave the property assessing job up to the state tax commission.

He also would require all motor vehicle owners to have liability insurance.

Another bill by Baker would set up strict automobile emission standards as a control on air pollution.

Rep. King, a new member, would give 18-year-olds all the legal rights and responsibilities of adult citizens—including the right to buy alcoholic drinks, make contracts, marry, sue and be sued and about 150 other rights.

Similar bills have failed in the last two sessions.

Reps. Baker and James took a double-barreled approach to the problem of financing public transit systems.

One bill would authorize any city over 500 in population to levy a sales tax of up to ½ per cent to finance public transportation.

The other would extend the present ½ per cent Kansas City mass transit tax for another two years to Sept. 30, 1975.

Baker also would allow circuit judges to compensate victims of crimes for their injuries or property losses, with the money to be paid by the state. No estimate of the cost was given.

Other new bills would:

—Ban the sale of fireworks in Missouri except for public displays and their manufacture except for sale to other states.

—Regulate bank holding companies.

—Require all schools getting state aid to display the Missouri state flag or suffer the loss of their state money.

—Require all schools and colleges to teach courses in Missouri history and institutions.

Allow courts to require testimony before grand juries or courts, but grant immunity from prosecution for self incriminating evidence.

—Require all public buildings to have ramps, handrails and other aids for the physically handicapped.

—Let St. Louis County levy a tax of up to 15 cents on the $100 valuation to finance acquisition of land for parks, recreational purposes and sanitary landfills.

—Increase the membership of the Kansas City Police Board from four to six and give the mayor a seventh vote.

—Supply special license plates with the call letters of citizens band radio operators.

—Make the state responsible for all capital improvement costs at Missouri Southern College at Joplin and Missouri Western at St. Joseph, and make Harris Teachers College in St. Louis a four-year state college.

—Exempt motion picture projectionists from punishment for showing obscene films at the theaters where they are employed.

—Give the Department of Corrections power to set minimum standards for local and regional jails.

—Add an extra five years to the sentence of anyone convicted of committing a felony with firearms.

—Raise the retirement benefits of local government employes from 1 to 1¼ per cent of their final average salary, times the number of years service.

—Provide a second judge for the 25th Judicial Circuit of Maries, Phelps, Pulaski and Texas counties.

Set up uniform state standards for mobile homes and recreational vehicles.

Celebrates Anniversary

State Fair Community College President Fred E. Davis cuts a cake presented to him by members of the SFCC faculty and student body in the new student union Friday. The occasion noted the beginning of Davis' fifth year with the college, which has expanded its physical plant greatly and increased in enrollment four times since Davis came to the institution as a director of junior colleges for the State Department of Education in 1968.

May Recognize German Nation

PARIS (AP) — French diplomatic recognition of East Germany may come before the end of the year, or early in 1973, the newspaper France Soir reported Saturday.

The paper said France, with other members of the Atlantic Alliance, is eager to establish ties but the United States is in no hurry.

The French government already has sounded out a diplomat who could become the first ambassador to East Berlin, France Soir said. The paper did not name the diplomat but said he is a German-affairs expert.

Unusual Service

LONDON (AP) — The telephone system here makes it possible for customers to dial a pop record, a recipe, gardening tips, a stock market report or a bedtime story. The newest service is advice on venereal disease, which authorities say has doubled in Britain over the past 15 years.

In my opinion—if you think the U.S.A. is "too far gone to be worth saving" or "there's nothing I can do"—you've been listening to or reading and viewing too much pro-communist propaganda! Defeatism is their forte! Whereas Christ gives victory and life worth the living! I suggest that you get your sins forgiven, your sights realigned, your mind unpolluted, and your heart recharged with God's word—and you'll see how things will change for the better. "If you do not well—sin lieth at the door."

Observance Planned In Illinois

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Some 125 officials from throughout Illinois are firming up plans for observance in 1973 of the 300th anniversary of the Joliet-Marquette exploration.

A group of seven voyagers will make a 3,000-mile canoe trip over waterways traveled by Louis Joliet and Father Jacques Marquette in the exploration which historians say was the key to opening the Midwestern and Western states to later settlement.

The re-enactment of the voyage in two 20-foot canoes is scheduled to start May 17 in St. Ignace, Mich., and end Sept. 19 near Green Bay, Wis. Programs are being planned along the waterways which include the Wisconsin, Mississippi and Illinois rivers and Lake Michigan.

The Illinois Legislature created a state commission this summer to make plans for the anniversary which also will be observed by Wisconsin, Arkansas, Iowa, Louisiana, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri and Tennessee.

Ralph Frese of Chicago, a member of the Illinois Tri-Centennial committee, said the Great River Road Commision's Tri-Centennial committee has raised $20,000 in donations to start off programs for the observance.

The chief co-ordinator is Mrs. Taffy Wilbur of St. Louis. James Pasley, director of tourism for Missouri, and John McCormally, publisher of the Burlington Iowa Hawk Eye, are co-ordinators, respectively, of programs from St. Louis southward and from St. Louis northward.

Robert Sullivan, director of tourism for Illinois, was host at a planning meeting in Springfield Thursday.

Frese, who operates the Chicagoland Canoe Base, is building the two canoes for the trip. They will have fiberglass hulls instead of the bark used three centuries ago.

The voyagers will wear clothing of the period being made by Dean Campbell of Springfield, a member of the Illinois Department of Conservation.

Killed in Accident

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Hubert E. Jones, 69, of Yellville, Ark., was killed Friday afternoon in a collision between his pickup truck and a car on Interstate 270 at the northwest edge of St. Louis.

The highway patrol said Jones' truck veered across the median and collided head-on with a car driven by Bernice E. Kambol, 52, of St. Louis, who was injured severely.

Busy Telephones Hinder an Employe

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A motel employe says she was so busy answering telephones she didn't know she was being robbed.

Gail Lopetina, 18, said the bandit waited patiently at the counter until an accomplice came in and pointed out to her that the other man was holding a gun.

Then Miss Lopetina let the phones ring. The bandidts got away with $278.

Say Order Reversed By Captain

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Navy hearings into a race riot aboard the aircraft carrier Kitty Hawk show that the ship's captain reversed an order by his black executive officer that could have stopped the violence, a civil rights lawyer says.

Attorney Milton J. Silverman, representing 19 black sailors facing courts-martial in connection with the riot at sea, said Friday a transcript of the Navy's pretrial hearings showed the executive officer, Cmdr. Ben Cloud, had ordered black sailors and Marine guards to opposite sides of the ship.

Both sides were obeying the order when Capt. Marland W. Townsend Jr. spoke over the ship's intercom, Silverman said. He quoted a sailor as testifying that Townsend said: "The XO (executive officer) has been misinformed. Problems are not as bad as they seem. Everybody go about their business."

As a result, the violence resumed, said Silverman, an attorney for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

The Navy says the fighting Oct. 12 and 13 involved more than 100 sailors and injured 46. All 27 charged in the riot are black. Some trials were held at sea.

The violence broke out during the Kitty Hawk's nine-month deployment off Vietnam, from which the carrier returned last Tuesday. A congressional subcommittee is scheduled to begin closed hearings into the riot here next Wednesday.

Although the fighting ultimately involved black and white sailors, the first confrontation was between blacks and Marines, who were called to the mess hall following "heated words between the master at arms and a number of blacks," Silverman said. The master at arms had objected to a special handshake used by the blacks, he said.

Con Man Found Out By Police

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Police who thought they were helping a down-and-out New Mexico family get their daughter to San Francisco for a brain operation apparently were bilked by a bold con man, authorities say.

The night watch of the Foothill Division station rounded up $66 for the family, $25 of it from a nearby church.

"It's beginning to look like we've been had and that the night watch was flimflammed," Lt. Cliff Hodge said Friday.

The chagrined officer gave this account:

A man who said he was Valgene Aurther Banes, 34, came into the station Thursday night with his 24-year-old wife, Peggy Ann, and their 8-month-old daughter, Vickie Ann.

Banes said they had left Hobbs, N.M., en route to San Francisco, where Vickie Ann was to undergo surgery for a blood clot on her brain.

The man said he had only 24 cents.

The officers took up a collection of $41 and got a $25 donation from the Shepherd of the Valley Lutheran Church.

The family then left in their dilapidated 16-year-old car.

But, on further investigation, police said, it turned out that the surgeon Banes had mentioned did not exist. The hospital in question said no such surgery was scheduled for the little girl.

"We were just trying to help," said Hodge. "This is one of the reasons police become cynical."

Historic Landmark Decision for Church

BOSTON (AP) — Old West Church on Cambridge Street, founded in the 1730s as a Congregational parish, will be dedicated as a national historic landmark by the National Park Service at noon Sunday.

The original steeple was torn down by the British during the Revolutionary War to prevent its use for signaling. The present building was erected in 1806.

For much of the 19th century, it was a Unitarian parish. In 1892, the church was closed, and the building became a branch of the Boston Public Library.

It was bought in 1964 by the New England Methodist Conference and reopened as a Methodist parish.

In 1970, Old West became involved in controversy by offering shelter to youths headed for Cuba to cut sugar cane against the wishes of the State Department.

Morphine Overdose Fatal to Young Man

KANSAS CITY (AP) — A young man found unconscious in the Wayne Minor Housing Project Friday and later died suffered a fatal overdose of morphine, reports Dr. William Bryan, Jackson County coroner.

Police reported they found four needle marks on the right arm and two marks on the left arm of the victim, Reginald T. Taylor, 19.

The family told police Taylor, a glass polisher at an optical goods firm, did not return home from work Thursday night.

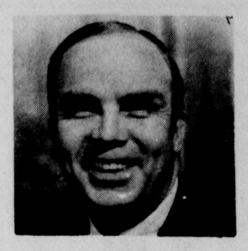
Mind Your Money

Taking Advantage of TGC's



By PETER WEAVER

Oh, to get caught in a price war. If you're the buyer, that is.

The scheduled airlines and supplemental airlines are grappling with each other in what passes these days for a price war. As a result, those with an itch to visit Europe next spring or summer will be able to get good jet transportation at prices from $100 to $200 off the lowest possible scheduled airline fares.

To get in on this price war, you have to understand your ABC's and TGC's. ABC's are Advanced Booking Charters which is the name the British and other foreigners have given to the new low-cost form of air travel. In this country, we call it Travel Group Charters or TGC's.

Basically, TGC's give you the same low-price advantage of a regular charter flight without having to belong to some affinity group (club or association). Anybody can join a TGC if they agree to:

@ Pay a 25 per cent deposit 90 before the trip's scheduled departure date and make full payment 30 days later.

@ Agree to a minimum stay 10 days outside the North American continent and a minimum of seven days inside the North America — United States, Mexico and the Caribbean.

Your deposit will not be refunded unless you: (1) fall dead at least 45 days before departure or become ill and can get a doctor's "must stay home" note; (2) get the tour company to find a legitimate standby. Tour companies are limited to accepting no more than 20 per cent standby substitutions on TGC's.

On the positive side, you will be getting the lowest possible air fare and your deposit is guaranteed refundable if the trip never gets off the ground. The Civil Aeronautics Board requires tour operators to post a bond to cover all deposits. This should eliminate the fly-by-night operator (no pun intended).

How do you get in on a TGC? Look for advertisements in December and January for flights leaving next spring (remember, they must have a 90-day advance booking). Visit local travel agents and have them call you when they get word of TGC's forming. The travel agents have an outstanding trade magazine called Travel Weekly. If you can bum some copies or read the magazine at your library, you'll find all sorts of TGC announcements.

The four supplemental airlines belonging to the National Air Carrier Association. (World Airways, Saturn Airways, Trans-International Airlines, Overseas National Airways) will be among the first to come out with TGC's. You can get addresses, phone numbers and other information by writing: National Air Carrier Assn.; 1730 M St., N.W.; Washington, D.C. 20036.

Overseas National Airways (a supplemental) is working with Book-Couzens Travel of Southfield, Mich., to offer five 10-day trips from Detroit to London starting next May. The round-trip fare will be $199 (a little more if planes are not filled). This compares with $406 round trip which is the lowest possible scheduled airline fare.

Marriott Corp. is planning TGC's to combine with a Rhine River cruise next spring and Getschall Travel of New York is planning some seven-day package trips to Acapulco for $150 (air fare and hotel included). These are just a few. Keep your eyes open for others.

Government-Banned Toys Are on Sale

By MIKE WATERS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Volunteer shoppers in 17 states say they have found on store shelves hundreds of unsafe toys the government banned as long ago as 1970.

"It is an absolute scandal that toys banned for two years are still being sold to unsuspecting consumers," Bob Chlopak of the District of Columbia Public Interest Research Group told a news conference Friday.

A year ago, for example, the Food and Drug Administration announced the recall of hundreds of thousands of squeeze toys, rattles, flutes, music boxes, dolls and electric toys.

The FDA said the toys could gouge, stab, cut, burn and shock or were likely to be swallowed.

Chlopak's consumer action group said besides toys the government says it banned, student volunteers and housewives around the country found another 1,000 toys they considered to be equally dangerous.

He said most of the dangerous toys were those with squeakers likely to be dislodged and swallowed by children.

In all, 382 banned toys were found, he said. Afterwards, Chlopak said he could not tell from the state reports how many in the total represented different individual toys and how many were the same model found in quantity or in different stores.

An FDA spokesman said the agency, under the federal Toy Safety Act, had banned 830 types of toys in the last two years.

"Parents have confidence in the toys they buy, because they take for granted that someone in the government is looking out for dangerous toys," the report said. "The public's faith in regulatory agencies is often unjustified by agency performance."

The FDA and the Toy Manufacturers Association acknowledge that hundreds of banned toys are probably still being offered for sale, but Malcolm Jensen, head of the FDA's bureau of product safety, denied the charges of poor performance.

"To the contrary," he said, "we feel we have removed millions of toys from the market. We believe this Christmas will be a far safer Christmas than in the past years."

Rare Treat

This Lincoln Park squirrel in Chicago apparently enjoys a change in diet as it munches on a chocolate covered ice cream bar. It probably knows that this is not the type of morsel to be stored away for the long winter ahead. The ice cream bar's donor and the squirrel were out enjoying the blazing sun and the relatively warm temperatures (low to middle 40's). (UPI)

Mailing Deadlines Announced

With the anticipated Christmas mailing rush underway, Sedalia Post Office official Max Cassing reminded area postal patrons that deadlines have been established for packages and letters to reach their foreign destinations by Christmas.

Dec. 8 is the critical date for Canada and the Artic area; Dec. 9 is the final day for mailing items to Africa and the Azores and Dec. 11 is the deadline for mailing correspondance to Europe.

Cassing, however, said these are only suggested Post Office deadlines which are not binding. Every effort, he said, will still be made to insure that mail reaches its proper destination by Dec. 25, even if it is mailed after the suggested deadline.

A postal service manual advises the items bound for overseas areas be enclosed in containers strong enough to retain and protect contents during normal mail handling. These containers should be the proper size to hold the goods shipped, but allow enough space for cushioning material inside. The strength of carton required will depend on the weight, size and nature of the article shipped.

A pamphlet, available at the post office, offers detailed, specific instructions on proper packaging of items to be mailed, he said.

New Jaycees' Activities Announced

(Democrat-Capital Service)

SWEET SPRINGS — In their second organizational meeting here Thursday, the newly formed Jaycee chapter planned two community activities.

A movie, open to the public, will be shown at 3 p.m. Dec. 16 at the Sweet Springs R-VIII School, according to Marvin McKeage, president.

Also planned is a raffle for a shot gun and crock pot. The drawing will take place at 2 p.m. Dec. 30.

Jan. 13 was set as the date for the charter banquet at Dickerson's Restaurant.

Guests at the meeting included Don Sublett, 1404 South Barrett, Sedalia, Jaycee state director, and Jerry Cotton, Columbia, regional director.

There are 42 masters' programs at the University of Northern Colorado.

When Santa Was Sick

"'Tis a fine time" said Santa,
"To come down with the flu.
"I am sure I don't know
"What I'm going to do,
"With the children expecting me
"On Christmas Eve,
"Kerchoo! Kerchoo!
"And it's most time to leave."
Well, poor Mrs. Claus
Was as worried as he
As she fixed him a poultice
And brewed him some tea.
She couldn't go leave him
He was simply too ill,
Every hour on the dot, she must give him
She must give him a pill.
But the elves were quite certain
This job they could do
And the sleigh was soon packed
By this loyal crew;
They put on their fur coats,
Their mittens and caps,
And pulled their high boots
On by the straps,
They hitched up the reindeer
And checked the list
They knew that no child
Could ever be missed,
Then Breezy, the driver,
Yelled: "Gitup. Let's go"
And the reindeer soared high
Through the wind and the snow,
While the others were snuggled
Amid bags of toys,
The wind howled so loud
They could not hear the noise
Of Slow-poke screaming
For the sleigh didn't wait,
He caught hold of the runner
Because he was late,
And there he dangled
High in the air
But the other elves
Didn't know he was there
Till they hit the first roof,
He rolled off in the snow,
His arms were so numb
He was glad to let go,
They tugged at the bags
To get the right one,
It seemed to be heavier,
It must weigh a ton,
To the top of the chimney
They lugged it — but my —
It wouldn't go down
No matter how they would try,
They pulled and they pushed,
Then at last it went through,
And the two little elves
Went tumbling down, too,
The coals from the fire
Were still glowing red,
One burned his feet
And the other his head.
The tops of the stockings
They just couldn't reach
So they took out their knives
And cut the foot off of each,
They filled them from the bottom,
Put in a lot
Of candy and nuts,
And then tied a knot;
Then under the tree
They put gifts about,
But couldn't get up the chimney —
Thus couldn't get out;
They were covered with soot
From their toes to their head
And they thought of old Santa
At home sick in bed;
They went through the house
Leaving footprints real black,
They finally got out
The doggie-door at the back;
Then they called up to Breezy
To bring the sleigh down
Then they looked for doggie-doors
All over town,
Or unlocked basement windows
Lots of things they tried
Without going down chimneys
To just get inside,
But when there was no other
Way to get in
They went down the chimneys
Sometimes losing some skin;
Then they'd have to see
How to get out once more,
This delivering gifts
Was indeed quite a chore,
But at last it was done
With all taking part
And they were all glad
When home they could start;
But when they got back
They were sights to behold,
They were dirty and tired
And so very cold,
They were covered with soot
And ashes and dust,
The wet snow had frozen
To make a hard crust,
Their clothes were torn,
They were battered and bruised,
And as sick as he was
Sanda still was amused
Such a sorry sight
Had his little elves
In their Christmas Eve ride
Made of themselves,
But they did their best
Because Santa was sick
And the kids never knew
That it wasn't Saint Nick
Who came in the night,
But their mom's could have told,
Or amazed at the mess thought:
"Santa's getting too old."

Find Cause

Government scientists believe they have found the cause of intestinal flu. They call it "Norwalk Agent." Scientific investigators for the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases, working from a 1968 outbreak of the disease in Norwalk, Ohio, and using the latest techniques in scientific photography, claim to have captured the elusive "Norwalk Agent" on film by a process known as immune electron microscopy. Dr. Albert Z. Kapikian, right, head of the team, and two of his co-workers are shown in their laboratory at the Institute. At left is Thomas Thornhill and center is Richard Wyatt. The piece of equipment at left is the electron microscope. (UPI)

Drug Education Has Its Rewards

NEW BRIGHTON, Pa. (AP) — Drug education pays — at least in the case of two New Brighton youngsters.

The two children turned over a bag of narcotics with a street value of more than $6,000 to authorities two days after attending a drug-education class.

"The kids found the bag and knew what the pills were," said Beaver County Sheriff John Hineman. "They took the stuff home and had their mother call me."

Hineman said the county's mobile drug-education unit had given a lecture to grade school children and that both youngsters attended.

The bag of narcotics, apparently taken in a drug-store burglary, contained 2,805 assorted pills and 16 ounces of codeine, Hineman said.

Revitalized GOP Is Presiden't Goal

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Political Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon is reported preparing to revitalize the Republican Party he virtually ignored in winning his landslide re-election victory.

"The President is going to try to translate this into a Republican majority," said Sen. Robert J. Dole of Kansas, the GOP national chairman.

In an interview, Dole said Nixon intends to strengthen the role of the Republican National Committee in making the political effort, looking toward the 1974 and 1976 elections.

He said the President, re-elected with 61 per cent of the vote after a less than strenuous campaign that shunned party label, plans to shift political operations from the White House to GOP headquarters.

Dole said a full-time chairman will be taking over for him, but he did not say when. He said no timetable had been set for his departure as chairman.

The Kansas senator said the date of his departure will depend upon when the party—and the President—decide on a successor, and also upon attitudes toward his chairmanship in his home state.

Dole runs for re-election in 1974, probably challenged by Democratic Gov. Robert Docking.

Dole has functioned largely as a party spokesman, with administration of GOP headquarters left largely to two co-chairmen, Mrs. Anne Armstrong and Thomas B. Evans. Both are leaving the committee soon.

Dole said the party now needs a chairman who holds no other office, who can devote all his time to the job, and who will rank clearly as the Republicans' top political man in Washington.

He said the committee also needs money.

Dole met with President Nixon on Tuesday at Camp David, Md. He said the President asked him to think about the committee, consider his own plans, and prepare for another meeting within about two weeks.

Both Drivers Die When Cars Collide

FARMINGTON, Mo. (AP) — Two cars collided on Route W Friday afternoon, killing the drivers.

The victims were Ronald Gene Stoddard, 27, of Iron Mountain, and Lucy Eileen Childers, 50, of Pilot Knob.

The highway patrol said Stoddard tried to pass another vehicle and met the Childers car head-on about 20 miles southwest of Farmington.

Doctors Won't Take Bullet From Youth

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Doctors at a hospital here Friday objected to the planned operation to remove a bullet from the chest of Eric Burnett, 19, charged with murdering an insurance collector in St. Louis Aug. 10.

Police said they want to test the bullet to determine if it came from a gun belonging to Marion Ross, the insurance collector shot during a gun battle with robbers.

The St. Louis circuit attorney's office said doctors at Homer G. Phillips Hospital objected, because the youth had not given his permission. A lawyer for Burnett said that it would be malpractice for the doctors to perform the operation without Burnett's consent. A hearing on the question was set for Tuesday in St. Louis Circuit Court.

Promotions

Bill Smillie, manager of the Sedalia Consumers Market, has announced the promotions of Glenn Webb, left, and Larry Austin, right. Webb is the store's new produce manager and Austin is now head clerk. Webb has been with Consumers 2½ years, beginning as a carryout and stocker. He and his wife have two children and live at 409 West 23rd. Austin has worked in the produce department three years. He and his wife Sue and their one child live at 811 West Seventh.

New Traffic Plan Draws Early Praise

LONDON (AP) — The Greater London Council's plan to speed traffic along Oxford Street, the heart of the city's shopping district, began Friday and drew praise from Christmas shoppers and businessmen and complaints from some drivers.

The experiment, which carries a $144,000 price tag, closed the busy thoroughfare to all private automobile traffic and cleared the way for buses, taxis and pedestrians. The six-month experiment will run from Mondays to Saturdays from 11 a.m. to 9 p.m.

The main complaint seemed to be that, while Oxford Street emptied, private cars jammed the surrounding side streets.

London traffic made headlines earlier this week when Prime Minister Edward Heath ordered an inquiry into the situation after being trapped in a monumental jam which forced him to walk home from parliament.

Want to Get Rid Of Bad Language

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Police here are seeking a city ordinance to make it a criminal misdemeanor to direct abusive language toward a police officer.

Police Chief William J. Gilkinson said Friday he wanted such an ordinance because he considers police to be extensions of the court system, where abusive language would not be tolerated.

Police legal adviser Patrick Kelley said a proposed ordinance has been given the city attorney for evaluation.

Kelly said the proposal would make it unlawful "to challenge to fight, assault, strike, verbally abuse or make derogatory remarks to a police officer in the performance of his duties."

Charge of Murder For Thaver Man

ALTON, Mo. (AP) — A first-degree murder charge was filed in Oregon County Friday against William Leon Jackson, 52, of Thayer, who is accused of beating his father to death.

Police said the son beat Henry Jackson, 82, with his fists in the family home Thursday night.

Tax Shift Plan Is Granted Approval

By BILL STALL
Associated Press Writer

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Gov. Ronald Reagan, after a five-year battle with Democrats in the California Legislature, finally has won approval of a $1-billion-plus tax-shift plan which gives property owners a healthy break.

About half the money will go to boosting state aid to local schools. Another $378 million goes toward property-tax cuts for more than 2.5 million California homeowners.

Reagan said he was delighted with the action, which came Friday just before the legislature adjourned its 1972 session.

He had battled for major property-tax relief ever since he came to office in 1967.

The final compromise bill went to the governor's desk on a 29 to 10 vote in the Senate. It needed 27 votes to pass.

The package raises $1.1 billion from these sources:

—A one penny increase in the state sales tax starting June 1, boosting the tax from five cents on the dollar to six.

—A boost in the bank and corporation tax totaling $105 million the first year of the plan.

—Earmarking $551 million in state budget surplus and federal revenue-sharing funds.

Here's where it goes:

—$561 million in new state aid to schools, including funds to roll back local school property taxes.

—$488 million in tax relief to homeowners and renters.

—$63 million to reduce the business inventory tax, levied by local governments, by 20 per cent.

All property taxes are levied at the local level in California — cities, counties, school districts and special service districts.

The average property-tax rate statewide is $11.50 for each $100 of assessed valuation, and the current tax on a $25,000 home would be $638. That would be cut by about $116 — down to $522 — under the bill.

The school money is designed to help meet a California Supreme Court decision which said the state's current method of school finance is unconstitutional because it relies so heavily on the property tax.

The Capuchin monkeys, common in South America, are sometimes called ring-tailed monkeys because they often carry their tails rolled into a tight coil.

To Show Film

A graphic portrayal of an epic journey will be presented at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the Smith-Cotton High School auditorium when Phil Pemberton, Grand Rapids, Mich., president of Voyeageur Films, will narrate the exploits of Verlen Kruger and Clint Waddell, who canoed across Canada from Montreal to the Bering Sea off the coast of Alaska. The film is part of the "travel and adventure" series sponsored by the Sedalia Rotary Club. Admission will be by season ticket or through individual purchases at the door.

Samoan Tradition Is Given a Boost

PAGO PAGO, American Samoa (AP) — Gov. John Haydon has urged government employes to doff their usual attire each Friday for traditional Samoan garments, such as the flowing lavalavas and puletasis.

But, the governor added in his memo to department heads, clothes should be of Samoan fabrics and not some "ersatz fabric from outside."

One employe commented that, if Samoans rejected all "ersatz fabric from outside," they would be left with the true traditional Samoan dress — no clothes at all.

Yesterday's Toys Survive Sophistication Of Modern-Day Youths

By JOHN BARBOUR
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Dreams are what toys are made of — the best toys anyway. And Christmas is the season for dreams.

And some dreams last forever, and some never make it to New Year's Eve, which is the trouble also with some toys.

It should be no surprise that Americans, who spend more on their dreams than anyone else, spend more on toys too. The average bill comes to $60 for everyone under the age of 15, all 58 million of them.

And this is the time of year when parents take those child-scrawled notes for Santa to the discount houses and department stores to buy a melange of vinyl, wood, steel, tin, plastic, polyester and batteries. It all gets paid off two to three months later by which time the batteries are dead, quite often the toys with them.

But anyway, here we go again. Saturday morning television ads have primed the kids; the shelves are full not with visions of sugarplums but with sleek motor cars, dolls almost alive, noise, excitement, the real thing!

"Today," a toy man said enthusiastically, "a youngster can actually drive a car, actually fly a plane. Today a doll in itself is not sufficient. A doll has to do something."

This year there are airplane kits which take up the whole living room. A motor driven pylon revolves and flies a plastic plane at the end of a tether. The child controls it and tries to land on the deck of an aircraft carrier. Just something to keep him busy while Dad reads the Sunday paper.

★ ★ ★

This year there is the burgeoning assemblage of dolls that do and are done to. They talk, they walk, they wet and generally make a nuisance of themselves.

Said one toy man, "At the age of 8 a girl is getting too sophisticated to play with dolls. She begins getting more into arts and crafts."

There are dolls who have elegant hairdos and wigs. There are dolls named Love, Soul, Music, Peace. There is also a doll's head the size of a child's that not only needs its hair fixed, but its face made up.

This year there is a talking football game. One player picks a small record disk with his choice of offensive play. The other player turns a dial for his defense and guesses at the offense. They push a button, the ball is snapped, and a sportscaster's voice describes the results with crowd noises in the background.

For the old-timer who used to melt down lead before it fell out of favor and mold his own highly stylized soldiers before they fell out of favor, there is a modern variant: G.I. Joe.

The idea for G.I. Joe was born in 1964, and most of the toy industry pooh-poohed it. But today, with more G.I. Joes in the field than it would take to win a limited, non-nuclear war, the idea has imitators. Action Jackson, for one.

This particular toy is a cross between the old tin soldier and a boy's doll. It has equipment which has to be taken off and stored. It has clothes which have to be hung up. As one father said, "If it only teaches him to pick up after himself I'll be happy."

G.I. Joe, incidentally, has dropped his military drab, comes in two colors, and if desired wears a beard. Next year his hair will be allowed to be a little longer.

"Toys are a fashion business," a toy man said. "We try to create public fashion, but also we try to respond to public taste."

Probably the most successful toys in terms of what they try to do, and the care with which they are designed and made, are toys for the very young, from pre-school to kindergarten. There are excellent teaching toys that allow the child to pursue his imagination. But even in this arena one worries when he hears a toy man talking about "the pre-pre-schooler."

But then there is a variant on an old theme, an old parlor game, called the Feelie Meelie. It's a closed box, with a hand hole. A child looks at an object on a card and reaches into the box, sorting through a number of objects with his fingers until he feels the thing that matches the thing on the card. So simple.

The toy industry finds that the things that are basic, that allow the most latitude to the imagination, sell the best.

Gilbert still markets microscopes and chemistry sets, and, yes, even Erector Sets. The price is up, but the popularity of this invention from the 1880's when America still built bridges lives.

Probably no one has matched the sale records or the popularity of a game invented in the depression days in Atlantic City, N.J., — Monopoly, or a game that relies on the profunity of the English language, Scrabble.

A toy man, flanked by the season's wares, explained that many toys are outmoded in two or three years. Some, a few, live longer.

"Potato Head," a boxed version of creating a character out of a potato, is 20 years old as a brand toy.

It says something of the needs of children. What they remember is what they give something of themselves to. Raggedy Ann doesn't blow bubbles, but she's still there when a lot of little girls get up in the morning.

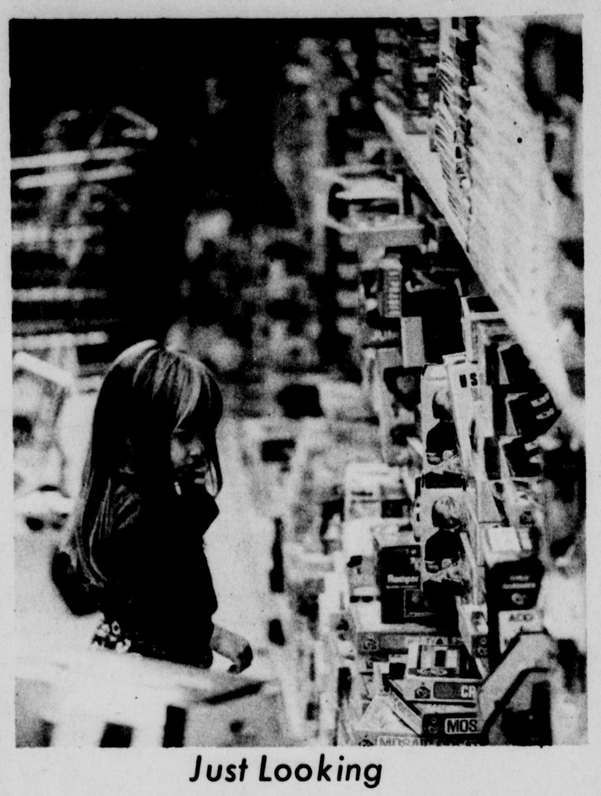
One fashionable young lady remembers a doll she had as a child, an expensive doll with a peculiar odor, not soft but almost clay-like. It was her favorite, even after its head cracked open. What did it do? "Nothing," she answered.

Asked what his favorite toy was when he was a child, a father thought and said a car he had made out of a block of wood with his own hands, carefully sanding its body, fashioning its wheels.

A boy, now a man, who grew up in Kansas City, poor but not impoverished fighting not to be lost in an Irish family, remembers a sled. Everyone's sled. Rare was the time you could belly-flop on it without being belly-flopped upon by a brother. That sled that served four was his, and their, favorite toy.

Valley Of The Dolls

From talking dollie Gabbigale, left, to Bert and Ernie of Sesame Street for the pre-school set way in the back, this aisle in a northern New Jersey toy supermarket is devoted exclusively to dolls and doll clothes. There are so many dolls there isn't room for doll houses, buggies, or furniture which are stocked in adjacement aisles in this Toys R Us store in the New York City suburb of Totowa. (AP)



Just Looking

A little girl ponders an array of pre-school toys at a New York City area toy supermarket. Toy makers see their market beginning almost at the beginning with toys designed for the "pre-pre-schooler." This display is at a Toys R Us store in Totowa, N.J. (AP)

Nurse Struck
... Still on duty

AF Nurse Wins Her Battle

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Air Force has dropped its attempt to discharge Capt. Susan Struck, a nurse who gave birth out of wedlock.

The Air Force gave no reason for the action taken Friday. Its effect will be to block a possibly unfavorable ruling from the Supreme Court which had agreed to hear Capt. Struck's charge that Air Force regulations were discriminatory.

Government lawyers are expected to ask the court to drop the case as moot.

Miss Struck, 28, became pregnant while serving at Cam Ranh Bay, Vietnam, in 1970. She gave birth to a girl Dec. 3, 1970, and gave the child up for adoption.

At the time, regulations required discharge of any pregnant woman unless the pregnancy was terminated. The edict was changed in March, 1971, to permit waiver in individual cases. Capt. Struck was denied a waiver in June, 1971, while others were granted.

Friday's action granted a waiver to the nurse who is currently stationed at Minot Air Force Base, N.D.

Her appeal to the high court maintained that the regulation unconstitutionally singled out pregnant women and Catholics like herself.

Since an abortion or a miscarriage would have permitted her to remain in the Air Force, the appeal argued, its affect was to hamper the free exercise of religion by Catholics.

17-Year-Old Faces Charges of Murder

HILLSBORO, Mo. (AP) — Thomas W. Edelman, 17, of DeSoto was charged with second-degree murder Friday and was being held on $50,000 bond, Jefferson County Sheriff's deputies said.

Edelman was charged in connection with the death of Steven J. Dickerson, 14, also of DeSoto, who was shot in the head Wednesday, police said. Edelman had originally told police that he accidentally shot the Dickerson youth when he moved into his line of fire while both boys were target practicing near DeSoto, police said.

Amnesty Remains Touchy Side-effect of Vietnam Conflict

"In war, and in the court of justice, and everywhere," Socrates told Crito, "you must do whatever your state and your country tell you to do, or you must persuade them that their commands are unjust."

By TOM TIEDE

TORONTO — (NEA) — For the first two decades of his life Jack Colhoun did precisely what his state and country expected of him. Descendant of a family that sailed to America on the Mayflower, kin to one time Vice President John C. Calhoun, raised in well-to-do propriety in upstate New York, he was an Eagle Scout, top student, captain of his football team, winner of the God and Country award for patriotic achievement, and a sturdy soldier in his college ROTC program.

Then Vietnam changed it all.

In 1970, a graduated second lieutenant, Jack Colhoun failed to report for active duty. He said he could not contribute in any way to a military involved in Southeast Asia, and asked for alternative service. When it was refused, Colhoun fled to Canada where for the past two years he has lived in sad but not sorry exile trying to convince his state and nation that their commands were unjust.

"I was right and they were wrong." Thus does the one-time All American boy say it for many as Richard Nixon prepares for four more years, as peace in Vietnam continues to be rumored, as Americans in that land dwindle down to a precious few thousand, as once again Americans are forced to face the awesome question of what to do with all the men who refused to join in the bloodshed in Indochina.

Forgive and forget?

Let them rot?

What?

Perhaps 700,000 men have evaded the Vietnam war in one way or another. A sizable, but actually unknown, number of them are living in various degrees of exile from Seattle to Sweden. Canada alone may have sheltered 75,000 or more since 1965. Here in Toronto, "Runaway City," estimates are that from half to three quarters of the 40,000 American population are draft dodgers, deserters, or, as they say, "refugees."

At present, the U.S. public seems unprepared to decide their fate quickly. Rep. Bella Abzug (D-N.Y.) has urged Congress to grant, "after the cessation of hostilities, unconditional restoration of rights to war resisters." Rep. J. Edward Hebert (D-La.) has said that if it were possible he would "send them (the evaders) out on a ship like the man without a country." The President himself flip-flops on the question: last November he said he would not be leninet with runaways; in January he said he would be "liberal" with them; during the election campaign, his voice hard, he insisted they would have to "pay a penalty" for their deeds.

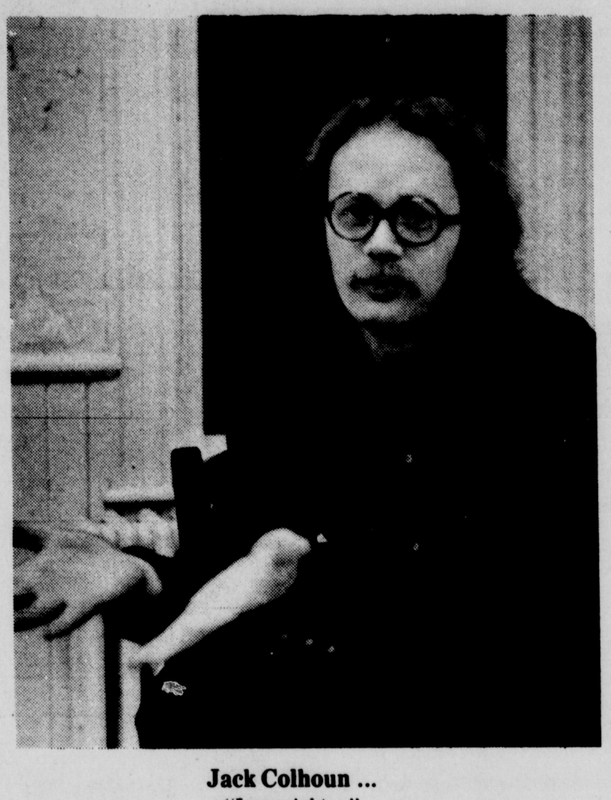
And the people? Early this year a New York television station conducted a metropolitan poll in which 79 per cent of the 35,000 respondents were against forgiveness. But a Gallup Poll in August, nationwide, indicates that the antisympathy majority was nearer 60 per cent, with at least 36 of every 100 favoring amnesty or amnesty with qualifications. So. Indecision. The perplexities of the question were summed up nicely by one woman polled: "I don't want to say yes, and I don't want to say no. But neither do I want to sound like I'm undecided."

The country's irresolution is understandable. Amnesty (from a Greek word meaning forgetfulness), which was once commonplace following American conflicts, has in this century fallen on hard times. In 1794, George Washington pardoned those who participated in the Whiskey Rebellion. Abraham Lincoln forgave the lower-ranking rebels of the Confederacy 16 months before the end of the Civil War, and the clemency was extended to everybody after it was over. Adams, Madison, Jefferson and Jackson were other presidents who forgave errant citizens (Jefferson granted amnesty in 1807 on the condition that deserters return to their units: Jackson, ever the hardcore, granted forgiveness in 1830 only if deserters not return to units).

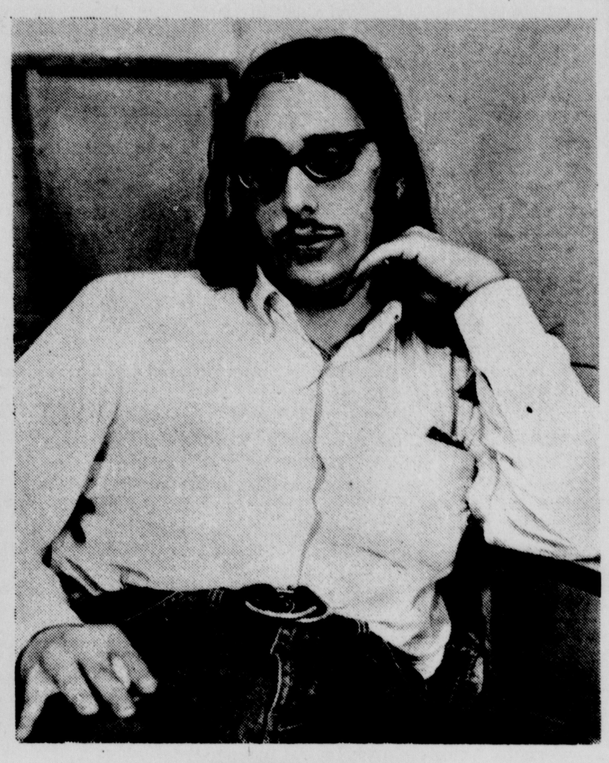
This century, however, American amnesty has been less than the general rule. No over-all forgiveness has been afforded at all. The only mass try at clemency, after World War II, ended harshly. President Harry Truman, responding to public pressure, ordered case-by-case investigations of 15,805 war evaders. Only 1,523 were set free. The rest went to prison, among them some criminals, some genuine moral opponents, and a lot of worried beings who were purely afraid to fight.

Now all the sticky questions bloom again. Is there, as St. Thomas Aquinas said, a higher law than human law? If a few thousand evaders were forgiven, what about the three million who fought and the 55,000 who died in Vietnam — were they, as Prof. Ernest Van den Haag says, "suckers"? What impact would amnesty have on future draft calls (already about half of all men summoned refuse to show the first time)? And is Spiro Agnew correct when he says a pardon would be an admission of guilt?

For their part the evaders in Canada are nearly unanimous in their predictable response. Says Jack Colhoun: "Most of us don't want amnesty. We want repatriation. You can't forgive a man for being right. We want the U.S. to face up to its own errors."



Jack Colhoun ...
... "I was right ..."



Dan Zimmerman ...
... a nightmare remembered

Not that even repatriation would open the gates completely. Colhoun says he's eager to return to the United States, but others here are not as disposed. Dan Zimmerman, as example, director of the seven-year-old Toronto Anti-Draft Program, says he has "found a home up here." He has lost much of his Brooklyn-born accent, picked up on the "more civilized" Ontario pace, and insisted: "There is no way I would go back to New York right now. I grew up on those dirty streets, with the muggers and dope fiends and noise and all that. Up here I remember it like something out of a nightmare. Even if they ended the draft completely, even if they gave me unqualified repatriation. I wouldn't go back now. Why fight it all over again? I'm happy as I am."

Others too have begun what they hope are "permanent" new lives in Canada. Comments Robert Gardner, coordinator of the Canadian Council of Churches: "Everything written in the United States has been done so from the perspective that dodgers are lonely exiles. This is nonsense. Certainly their decision may have terrific implications. But many dodgers have made new and successful lives for themselves." Thus Howard G. Weld, DDS, a captain in the Air Force until he deserted (1970), says he will stay in Canada because, "I don't want the U.S. to forgive me." And Steve Yates, who won a Bronze Star in the Nam for saving a buddy, adds: "I don't believe America has much to offer me now." Along with his bride he intends to become a Canadian citizen.

Eventually, these "permanent exiles" may change their minds. "But as of today," says the Anti-Draft Program's Zimmerman, "I'd say 85 per cent of the dodgers and 50 per cent of the deserters will stay here, anmesty or not." Therefore, if his guess is accurate, and even if a pardon is granted, many U.S. families will continue to suffer.

And suffer the families do. Untold thousands of them. Since 1965 nearly a half million families have come to grips with the prospect or reality of runaway or hideaway sons (more war evaders live in the United States, underground, than in all other nations combined).

One middle class family in Bakersfield, Calif., claims it has "been completely ruined" by the experience. The parents described themselves as "good Republican, patriotic, taxpayers." The father works for the government. Their son, after $12,000 worth of college, fled to Canada in 1969 where he now works as a janitor. "It has been so traumatic," says the mother, "that we haven't even told our close friends and relatives. Everybody thinks the boy has gone up there normally and legally. My husband is furious. I'm confused. And we just don't know what to do."

Still, there is no appealing to many of the war evaders here on even the grounds of their family welfare. The acrimony of their individual experiences runs too deep. One fellow, Jerry Samuels, tells how he volunteered for the Army at 17, volunteered for Vietnam at 18 and wound up so "raunchy" that he raped four Vietnamese women and eventually cracked up. Another man, 22, says he spent some time at Fort Bragg, some time in Vietnam, some time in the stockade and thinks if he returned to the United States now he would "shoot the first goddam Army officer I saw."

Dee Knight, a California conscientious objector and editor of an exile magazine here, says: "Face it, the only kind of amnesty we'll ever get will be tied to some kind of alternative service. That means alternative punishment. I don't think many guys will want to go back from freedom to spend two years pushing Uncle Sam's bedpan."

Bitter. Very bitter. And one story says it all. Grim draft evaders recall the experience of Lloyd Kantor, who in 1968 campaigned for Richard Nixon because he felt the man would end the war. Nixon was elected. Kantor was drafted. Short time later the young campaigner was caught in a landmine explosion, lost both hands, both feet, one eye and part of his hearing. When Kantor wrote to Nixon, his former hero, to tell him what happened, he got no reply.

"Can you imagine?" says a four-year deserter in Windsor. "I'm not going to go home until Richard Nixon writes Lloyd Kantor an apology and gives him back his hands, his feet and his eye."

With all this outrage, though, the tough talk here about permanent exile may yet soften. Thought most war resisters seem to insist otherwise, they are probably not making hard decisions yet. And their return to America will likely be in proportion to the generosity of whatever amnesty terms are finally decided. "God," confesses one 20-year-old from Atlanta, "I'd like to live on Peachtree Street again."

Jack Colhoun, for one, is ready to go back today. "I'm American through and through," he says. And his hope is his country will let him continue to be. "Richard Nixon says we have to pay the penalty for running away. Well, okay. I've paid. Two months after I got up here, my mother was taken to the hospital with cancer. My relatives wrote about her, asking me to come and comfort her. But I couldn't. After a year or so my mother died. Now I'd like to go home and just see her grave."

Saturday Wedding Unites Couple

New Hope Baptist Church here formed the setting Saturday for the wedding ceremony uniting Miss Janice Ann Lucas, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Coy Lucas, Smithton, to Dennis Eugene Patrick, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Patrick, LaMonte.

(Fine Art Studio)

MRS. DENNIS EUGENE PATRICK
Miss Janice Ann Lucas

The Rev. Kenneth Gray performed the candlelight ceremony before an altar decorated with a 15 branched candle arch with noble fir, blue carnations and white pompon mums.

Mrs. Larry Flaugher was vocalist accompanied by Miss Kathryn Payne and Russell Lucas sang to the accompaniment of Mrs. Randy Cate, pianist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a traditional white gown of Chantilly lace. Tiers of lace fell from the natural waist and swept to a chapel length train. Seed pearls accented the sabrina neckline which enhanced the fitted bodice and the bride wore a face framing headpiece of Chantilly lace petals secured to a three tiered veil. She carried a crescent bouquet of red roses, white miniature carnations, white pompon mums, holly and noble fir.

Mrs. J. D. Muschany, sister of the bride, was matron of honor, wearing a floor length gown of royal blue velvet accented with white nylon ruffles. She carried a nosegay of blue miniature carnations and noble fir and wore a head piece with the same flowers.

Serving as best man was David Harrison and performing ushering duties were Russell Lucas, J. D. Muschany, Mike Intelmann and Mike Patrick.

Miss Jeanene Lucas was the flower girl and Larry Dave Flaugher was candlelighter.

A reception at the church followed the ceremony where blue and white streamers and white wedding bells decorated the room. The bride's table was covered with a white lace cloth and the blue and white wedding cake was flanked by silver candelabra.

Serving were Mrs. Edwin Patrick, Mrs. Ruth Ann Rosa, Mrs. Larry Esser and Miss Nancy Patrick.

Presiding at the guest book was Mrs. Russell Lucas and attending the gifts were Mrs. Mike Intelmann and Mrs. Rosa.

For traveling on a honeymoon to Tennessee and other southern states the bride chose a princess styled green velvet dress with white satin and lace yoke. She wore a red rosebud corsage.

The couple will reside in Western View Estates. The bride is employed by Weber Shoe Co. in Tipton and the groom works for American Arnis Inc., at Independence.

To Observe 50th Year

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence H. Williams, Route 5, will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary with an open house from 2 to 4 p.m. Dec. 10 at the East Sedalia Baptist Church. The reception is being hosted by their children, Mrs. William Conklyn, Mrs. Joseph Waters, Mrs. John Curran and C.H. Williams Jr. Married Dec. 13, 1922, Mr. and Mrs. Williams have lived since that time in rural Sedalia. They have 11 grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

Stella Louise Barber Marries Kenneth Everts

Democrat-Capital Service)

KNOB NOSTER — Miss Stella Louise Barber became the bride of Kenneth Everts November 18 at the First Christian Church here. The Rev. Marvin Platt officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Barber, Whiteman AFB, and Mr. and Mrs. Donald Everts, Knob Noster, are parents of the groom.

Vows were spoken before the altar which was decorated with a bouquet of daisies and candelabra holding pink tapers.

Wedding music was provided by Mrs. Thomas Wesley, organist.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white rose lace over satin. Tiny buttons trimmed the bodice from the high neckline to the raised waist and the long full sleeves were cuffed at the wrist. A tierra of pearls held her floor length veil of illusion, which was edged with matching rose lace set with rhinestones. She carried a bridal bouquet of white daisies and white pom pons.

Miss Mary Carol Brooks was maid of honor and Miss Joyce Yeager, the bride's cousin, was bridesmaid. Miss Brooks wore a pink satin gown styled with high neck and long sleeves. Miss Yeager's yellow satin and lace gown was styled identical to the maid of honor's. They each carried a cluster of daisies.

Dona Everts, sister of the groom, was flower girl. She wore a green dotted swiss gown.

Alan Dale Everts was best man and Robin Curnutt was groomsman. Mike Hill and Steve Hill ushered and also lighted the candles.

A reception was held in the church Fellowship Hall following the ceremony. The bride's table was covered with a yellow cloth. A cluster of white daisies accented the drape at the front of the table with pink candles completing the setting. The three-tiered wedding cake was served by Mrs. Bobby Hill, Mrs. Dean Yeager, and Mrs. Jim Kodesh.

The bride's traveling costume was a light purple dress with black accessories. The couple left after the reception for their home at Oceanview, Va., where the groom is stationed with the U.S. Navy. Enroute to Virginia they visited the bride's sister in Lancaster, Ohio.

Girl Found Adventure in India

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

In other generations it was the boys who elected to see the world before settling down in familiar surroundings after college. Today girls also have developed a wanderlust, and their nomadic peregrinations may provide them with more adventure than they anticipated.

At an exhibit of Tibet in a New York store, Barbara Bailey Bolton, who collected the art work in India where the Dalai Lama is in political exile, explained how she acquired the unusual collection — eleven Thangkas temple paintings and woodblock prints in 500-or-so different motifs — deities, horoscopes, mandalas, charms, prayer flags. Her trip to India had not been planned. After tiring of classroom work, she was seeking new frontiers.

"I went from the University of Michigan to Columbia to the University to the University of University of Vienna and on scholarship to the Free University of Berlin," she observed. "I became disgusted with revolutionary activists on campus and began to realize I even knew more about the subject of my thesis (a German expressionist poet) than the professors. Why continue? I suddenly realized that philosphy to date had little bearing on life or reality..."

With money earned lecturing on comparative literature in Berlin, she began real experiences which led her to try "the wide-open frontiers of Australia," but she found it "a little too wide-open and crude." Instead she began farming mussels on the seacoast, an art she had observed in Spain. She also wrote for a newspaper and lectured at a university.

Nothing escaped her adventurous spirit. She had noted abandoned model-A Fords on Australian farms, and with a partner, Peter Henry of London and the help of mechanics, she began restoring the cars. It takes five old Fords to make one, and soon they were running out of parts.

An English photographer, Derek Hobby, persuaded the two to make a film with him and they hit on filming the ideas of research scholar, Velikovsky, in whom they all shared interests. Their first attempt was to have been his "legend of Rama" with still photo background sequences — temple friezes, katikali dances — to be filmed in India. Someone suggested Tibetan monasteries would provide pure pictures.

The trio walked 16 days to Thyangboche, half way up Mt. Everest, which Barbara says served as Hilary's base camp for his famous climb.

They ran into an original culture — the people were in the midst of their spring printing of woodcuts which lasts two weeks.

"The woodcuts are made on the Chinese 60-year calendar cycle and are brought out when certain deities are in favor or auspicious. Some blocks are 200 years old and fragile, but usually they are carved anew by monks at least every 150 years," Barbara explained. Most of the prayer flags, woodblock prints that show Tibetan patron saints, deities, and prayer inscriptions, are bought by the laity and flown from trees or poles on lines. Some religious families add a flag each month as an act of devotion.

The group observed the age-old method of making paper from wood shavings that are pounded by mallet into pulp that is spread on a tray of gauze, dried in the sun and peeled off. It is then put on stretchers, removed while still moist by monks and placed over fruitwood blocks that have been inked.

Some of the collection have been purchased by museums, universities and galleries, which are active in trying to preserve Tibetan culture. When the Dalai Lama fled from Tibet in 1959, he and his priests took as many carvings and shrines as they could.

"Fifteen years ago it would have been impossible to buy anything from them," Barbara comments, "but today they are keen to have their stories known in the west...and the monasteries sell the temple paintings to support themselves..."

Some of the woodcuts were silk screened in Bombay on handmade India papers so that many more people can enjoy the ancient prints. Barbara and Peter are keeping one copy of each print, but they have a movie record of their trip, and it was shown at Gimbels department store during an exhibition. The trio also spent a year in Nepal, Sikkim, Bhutan.

They are having a six-week exhibit at a Manhasset, L.I. department store and then will take the art to the Buffalo Science Museum for an exhibit. After that they hope to research the early Aztec ruins in Central America, the impetus having been provided by their Tibetan experience. Barbara has acquired a 1959 school bus which is being remodeled to accomodate living quarters. On the way, she and her partners will stop in Mexico to develop a leather market of handcrafted items — she had supplied some New York stores with luggage and handbags when she was in India.

When they have acquired enough money, they hope to go back to their original idea of filming some of the myths of Velikovsky.

Decorating Contest Is Announced

KNOB NOSTER — The Business and Professional Women's Club here announces an exterior Christmas decorating contest for persons residing within a three mile radius of Knob Noster.

Judging of homes and trailers will be based on originality, lighting effects, effectiveness and portrayal of the theme, it was reported. Size is not significant.

Out of town judges will rate the displays which will be categorized as either religious or miscellaneous.

Entries will be accepted until 5 p.m. Dec. 16 and judging will take place Dec. 19. Applications are available from local merchants and at Whiteman AFB Exchange.

Folk Music Sung At Guest Night

Folk Music, Then and Now, was the title of the Helen G. Steele Music Club Guest night, Wednesday at Heard Memorial Club House.

Presented by Mrs. Ben Mahoney, Mrs. Tom Miller and Mrs. Jack Grey, chairmen, selections included "Scarborough Fair," sung by Mrs. Miller, Mrs. Fred Riggs, Mrs. Kenneth Schriener, Mrs. Mahoney and Mrs. Harold Pittman, accompanied by Mrs. Duane Slagel.

"Little Liza Jane" and "Shennandoah" were also sung by the quintet followed by a duet by Mrs. Mahoney and Mrs. Miller who sang, "I Gave my Love a Cherry."

Mrs. Norman Capps sang "Black Is the Color of my True Love's Hair," to complete the first half of the program.

Guitars and voices of Dan Grey and John Niemeier accompanied Nancy Nuzum who sang "Fire and Rain," "Joe Hill," "I Had a Dream Last Night," "Four Strong Winds," and "I Believe in Music and I Believe in Love."

Guests at the meeting included Dr. Stanley Fisher, Duane Slagel, Mrs. Frances Wilhorte, Mrs. Oren Durvill, Miss Letha Shaw, Mrs. Hanna Anderson, Miss Edna Mae Kirchofer, Miss Nadyne Stone, Mrs. Virgil Herrick, Winston Ream, Louis R. Hughes, Theodore Doffelt, Bill Claycomb, Kenneth Schreiner, Robert Horton, Wayne Daley, Hillery Norton, Claude Boul and A. J. Hunkel.

Club Note

Flat Creek Extension Homemakers Club met Tuesday with Mrs. Myrtle Neville for a program given by Mrs. Felix Ash on storage for better use and new ideas.

Officers for the coming year were installed by outgoing president, Mrs. Ralph Milburn, and plans for a Christmas party were made.

Roll call was answered by giving a Thanksgiving scripture.

Mrs. Melvin Tullis hosted the Tuesday meeting of Sunnyside Extension Club where Mrs. Mary Kay Hunter showed slides and told about the benefits of the Children's Therapy Center here. She showed how the new facility will provide more space for the Center.

Officers installed for the coming year are Miss Opal O'Briant, president; Mrs. Merle Vaughan, vice president; Mrs. Clarence Wells, secretary; and Mrs. Robert McCarty, treasurer.

Mrs. A. Brooke Wade was welcomed into the club as a new member.

Airmen's Wives Organize Club

WHITEMAN AFB — More than 20 airmen's wives were present for a fashion show and coffee recently at the Whiteman AFB Recreation Center.

The fashion show and coffee was held to organize an Airmen's Wives Club. The show was under the direction of Mrs. Shirley Chaney, wife of the base commander.

According to Mrs. Chaney, several wives of airmen have been asking for a club similar to the Officer and NCO Wive's Clubs.

The event was given to let representatives from the other clubs exchange ideas and give assistance to the airmen wives in forming a new club.

Wool pant suits, evening gowns and sleep wear were part of the selection that was presented in the fashion show.

KISS OF LIFE

PIETERMARITZBURG, So. Africa (AP) — Rangers of the Natal Province Parks Board say that the "kiss of life," as mouth to mouth resuscitation is known, is nothing new to them.

They used it 10 years ago on full grown rhinoceros. This was when they first utilized tranquilizers to move the beasts to new pastures. Those old anaesthetics weren't altogether problem-free and to revive the rhinos one ranger pushed rubber tubes down its nostrils while another heaved himself on and off the rhino's chest. It worked, they claim.

Thanksgiving Weekend Wedding Unites Linda Lewis and Dickinson

First United Methodist Church here was the scene Nov. 24 of the wedding of Miss Linda Lewis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ollie W. Lewis, 1805 West Fifth, to Charles Kent Dickinson, son of Dr. and Mrs. C.R. Dickinson, Coffeyville, Kan.

The Rev. Denis Craft officiated before an altar arranged with pink gladioli and mums. Seven branch candelabra with white cathedral tapers and entwined with ivy were on either side. Two 15-branch arch candelabra entwined with ivy were on either side of the chancel steps and the center aisle pews were lined with hurricane light candelabra entwined with ivy and tied with pink satin bows.

Organist was Mrs. Rosalie DeLozier and vocalist was Miss Carlene Harre who accompanied herself on the guitar.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore an ivory maracine gown of double knit matt jersey. Venice lace formed a high collar, cuffed the long fitted sleeves and made its way down the bodice leaving open a deep "V" accent. The skirt fell softly from the raised waist and swept to a chapel length train and her three tiered veil was secured to a Venice lace cap with pear highlights.

The bride carried a Victorian bouquet of white sweetheart roses, miniature carnations and gypsophilia backed with glacier ivy accented with purple, green, pink and turquoise miniature star flowers and showered with ivory pecot streamers.

Maid of honor was Miss Pam McGrath and bridesmaids were Miss Joy Roth, Miss Judy Roth and Miss Charlene Harre. All were in gowns of double knit jersey that featured high Victorian necklines and long sleeves that ended in cuffs trimmed with ivory lace. The floor length gown of the maid of honor was emerald green and others were purple, turquoise and pink.

All carried carriage lanterns with hurricane lights arranged with iceburg mums tinted to match their gowns and accented with miniature star flowers and glacier ivy.

Candlelighters were Miss Shelly Dickinson, sister of the groom and Miss Kathy Zagar. Both were dressed in hot pink gowns designed identical to the bridesmaids.

Best man was James Dickinson, brother of the groom. Jack Lewis, brother of the bride, Dain Newlon and Jerry Schultz were groomsmen. Serving ushering duties were Joe Sainato, Robby Dickinson and John Brooks.

A reception at the Holiday Inn followed the ceremony. The bride's table and punch table were covered with floor length tiered ivory lace cloths over pink satin and a three tiered wedding cake centered the bride's table topped with an arrangement of purple gypsophilia and pink miniature star flowers and garlanded with smilax gypsolphilia, purple seafoam, miniature pink roses and carnations.

A large urn of pink gladioli formed the background for the tables. Serving were Mrs. Joe Sainato, Miss Jeanette Krueger and Miss Robin Willett. Mrs. Rodney Westal presided at the guest book.

For traveling on a honeymoon to an undisclosed destination, the bride wore a black velvet blazer, long black and white checked skirt and white blouse.

The couple will reside in Springfield where the groom attends Anesthetist School at St. John's Hospital. The bride is a teacher at Ash Grove High School, Ash Grove.

40th Anniversary To Be Celebrated

Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Thomas, 320 East Chestnut, will observe their 40th wedding anniversary with an open house from 2 to 4 p.m. Dec. 10 at their home.

The former Garnette Lenore Palmer and F. M. (Slick) Thomas were married Dec. 13, 1932.

Hosting the event will be their children, Mrs. Harold McBain, Kansas City; Marion E. Thomas, 1608 South Carr; and Jerry Thomas, 506 North Prospect.

The couple asks that gifts be omitted.

Local Family Has Reunion

The Rev. and Mrs. L. C. Neal, 914 South Osage, hosted a family reunion with their five children over the Thanksgiving weekend for the first time in 22 years. A total of 14 persons visited from Wisconsin, Kansas, New York, Florida and Missouri.

LOOKING INTO WINDOWS

Cool Cover-Ups

If you don't live in a climate that's toasty warm year-round, chances are you at least receive the sun's bright, warm rays during the summer months. If you do, it's a good bet you've installed, or are thinking of installing an air conditioner. Although these modern miracles are wonderful for cooling your home, they can present problems for your window treatments. Let's talk about a few ways to cover up unsightly air conditioners.

By using two tiers of cafe curtains, you can create a striking treatment while hiding a window air conditioner. The bottom tier can remain closed to serve as the 'cover-up,' while the top tier lets in plenty of light. Three or four tiers may also be used for this treatment. You can even use a single cafe section if you wish. This keeps the upper part of the window free to let in maximum light and view. Simply add an overhead valance to complete the attractive treatment.

Would you like some help in solving a window treatment problem? Our trained decorating experts can turn a problem area into a room's focal point quickly and without great expense to you.

If you're decorating a new home or designing a new look for your present home, you're sure to like the large selection of curtain and drapery window treatments at HOBSON'S. We are at your service at all times without cost or obligation. Open 8:30 to 5:00 P.M. Tuesday thru Thursday & Saturday. Open Monday and Friday until 8:30 P.M. See us at 2805 West Broadway, Sedalia, Missouri 65031 or Phone 826-1192.

Women's Rights Is Topic of Sorisis

Chairman of the first Missouri Commission on the Status of Women, Miss Alberta J. Meyer, will address the 2 p.m. meeting of Sorosis Monday at Heard Memorial Club House.

Miss Meyer, Jefferson City, is employed with the Missouri Division of Employment Security where she is an administrative analyst.

She has held many positions including the presidency of the Missouri Federation of Business and Professional Women's Club and treasurer of Interstate Association of State Commissions on the Status of Women. Her name has been listed twice in editions of Who's Who of American Women.

Miss Meyer will talk Monday on women's rights, the Equal Rights Amendment and the status of women in Missouri.

She Sells Bikinis

LAKE HAVASU CITY, Ariz. — Randee Campbell is an unlikely looking businesswoman at 24. She's attractive, blond, and sexy. Her business: manufacturing bikinis.

"That's how she makes her livelihood," says her mother, Mrs. Bill Campbell. "When we moved the family boat business here from Glendale, Cal., in May, 1961, we wanted Randee to come along. Out of that came the idea for her to make bikinis."

Not long after the Campbell's moved here Randee started to make microscopic sized bathing suits. It started out as a gag.

But during the first month of her sewing venture, she had 200 orders for bikinis, along with swimming trunks and hot pants. Randee's gag had turned into a business.

"Now she sells to stores in Parker, Ariz., and some other places," her mother says. "She started out in a room at our shop, but she wasn't accomplishing much and moved the business into an apartment."

At first, Randee worked for her father, who had heard women have more patience than men in fabricating the various parts of cabins for luxury boats.

"Maybe I did have more patience than the men," she says, "but I bet I itched more, too. Those fiber glass particles are awful."

About 20 yards of "smile" material cloth bearing the drawing of a smiling face went into her first venture — five bikinis, three pairs of trunks and two sets of curtains for a dentist, his family and his boat.

"I was sore at the whole world when I started that job," she says, "but it's hard to stay mad looking at all the smiles."

When asked if she's had any complaints about her work, Miss Campbell replied:

"Only one. I made a pair of trunks for my boyfriend. He was skiing about 80 miles an hour when he hit the water. The pocket ripped off. He was quite upset. I think he was real lucky the trunks didn't rip off."

Readers Support City-Owned Ambulance

The concept of a city-owned ambulance service brought a 69 per cent favorable response from Democrat-Capital readers despite a radio advertising campaign sponsored by the owner of a local ambulance company urging the submission of "no" votes.

The latest Democrat-Capital survey asked: "City ambulance services have been in the news recently, with the latest step being the city's announcement it would study a city-operated emergency service. Do you think that a city-owned ambulance service would be better than a privately-owned company?"

Joe Wasson, owner of the Pettis County Ambulance Service, early in the week told The Democrat-Capital he had purchased 50 radio advertising "spots" to "ask for responses and encourage them to say 'no' " to the survey question.

Wasson has said that he will go to court, if necessary, in an effort to try to prevent the city from establishing a public ambulance system.

One of those responding in favor of the city system wrote: "I am definitely in favor of a tax to support public ambulance service...We all know of the absurd happenings with our present system. In another city years ago I saw examples of ambulance races on crowded streets which could have proved disasterous. This was solved only after the city passed an ordinance requiring an ambulance service to have police clearance before leaving its station. I would suggest this as an intermediate step. The present system is inadequate, dangerous and a hazard to public safety. From news accounts where ambulance services were provided by governmental agencies, they were found to be very successful," she concluded.

The city, so far, has not determined how a public ambulance service would be financed and has made no mention of a special tax to subsidize such a service.

About 39 per cent of the responses favoring Wasson's position were apparently the direct result of the radio advertising campaign. One of them, from Lloyd R. Wasson, 906 East Fourth, read: "I think the City Council should stay out of owning an ambulance service. Instead of the city trying to help private enterprise, they are making it worse. Several years ago the city purchased a water company. Immediately the water rates doubled...It seems the city should grant a franchise for one (ambulance) company."

Should the city operate its own ambulance service, he asked, "what about the county people. Have they (the council) consulted the county any? A question I would like answered, is the city going to go 10 or 15 miles out in the country...and pick up sick and injured and transfer patients to Kansas City and Columbia and all states around, which I know is being done at the present time by one company in business?"

Another "no" vote came from Robert P. Mock, 509 South Sunset Drive, who said, "I admire Mr. Wasson for his effort. Maybe with a little help from the city (mayor and council), Mr. Wasson could serve the city well. He furnished the area with a service when we might have been without one...If the mayor and council are not pleased with the present system or service, then try to regulate it..."

A reader who asked to remain anonymous outlined five "advantages" when she voted in favor of the city's position. She said, "We need a hospital-oriented, city-owned ambulance service. It offers the following advantages: 1) better qualified attendants; 2) better trained personnel; 3) safer equipment; 4) better insurance coverage) and 5) elimination of conflict (provided private-owned ambulance service is no longer with us.) With the present plans for hospital expansion, ambulance service would work well into the plans."

U. L. Howerton, 1534 South Grand, cast his vote in person when he came to The Democrat-Capital's offices. He said the city ambulance plan "looks like the silliest thing in the world for the city..." He added that conversations he had with Wasson indicated to him the city would spend $15,000 to $20,000 for fully-equipped vehicles. "Our present ambulance attendants are well qualified and I don't think they can be beat," he said.

And finally, another unidentified reader said she did not think it necessary for the city to assume ambulance operations. "I do think," she wrote, "a committee should be appointed (including some doctors and nurses) to make a set of rules for the ambulance owners and drivers to go by — first aid, use of oxygen, etc." She recommended levying "a stiff fine or revocation of license in case of carelessness or misconduct."

She also said that there "should at least be two (ambulance companies) as it is better to have competition in any business. If only one, the sky could be the limit on what they charge..."

Scholarship Program Is Established

Scholarships for college or university students majoring in government or journalism will be offered yearly by the Missouri County Clerks Association, County Clerk Mrs. Mary Jane Wilson announced Friday.

Mrs. Wilson, a member of the association's scholarship committee, said plans for the scholarship program were completed Thursday at the group's annual convention in Jefferson City.

The first year's scholarships will be $750 and an accompanying $500 gift. Students eligible for the scholarships must live in the state but need not attend Missouri colleges or universities.

The scholarships will be funded through money received by the association from the national news agencies for cooperation in providing election news and results.

Candiates for the scholarships will be selected based on the following priority scale: children of deceased clerks, children of living past or present clerks, children of clerk's employes, and financial need.

Mrs. Wilson said she will soon appoint a three man board to review all county applications. The student selected as Pettis County's representative will then vie with contestants from other Missouri counties for the two awards.

Applications may be made at Mrs. Wilson's office beginning Friday and lasting until March 15. The names of the two winners will be released May 10.

Ann Landers

Defends Question on Arrested Development

Dear Ann Landers: I am getting sick and tired of your statement that men who like pornography are cases of arrested development. Banana oil! The letter from that nut in Appleton who went to pieces because she found some dirty pictures and a few reels of stag movies in her husband's tackle box was ridiculous.

Some people like sugar on their grapefruit. I happen to like salt on mine. Does that make me a case of arrested development? Preference in literature, art or music is a matter of taste. It would be a pretty dull world if everyone liked the same thing.

A while back you made an unflattering remark about a guy who insisted that his wife wear high heels at all times — even to bed. That letter gave me an idea and I'm frank to admit that it improved my sex life.

So please don't be so quick to shoot people down just because their ideas are a little different from the ordinary. Differences are what makes life interesting. — No Me-Too'er

Dear No: They sure do. And what some people find "interesting" is a good clue to what kind of people they are. I don't happen to care for salt on my grapefruit, but if YOU do, I'll defend your right to have it. The same goes for the high heels and the pornography, assuming, of course, that you are an adult. But I still say if you need stag movies and dirty pictures to turn you on, you are a case of arrested development.

Dear Ann Landers: A word of comment on your advice to the young girl whose fiance died within weeks of the wedding. Your advice was so corny I couldn't believe it. You said, "Life is for the living." Big deal. I can tell you still have your husband.

I was widowed less than 18 months ago and for your information, keeping busy is not the answer. I take care of a big house, a huge yard, two active children. I accept every invitation that comes my way and I try to reciprocate. But life is never the same after you've lost the man you've loved for seventeen years.

I don't play our favorite records. I don't look at old picture albums. And I don't mope around. But I am still plenty miserable. So don't use that corny phrase ever again to a person whose loved one is in the grave. — Still Grieving In Hutchinson

Dear Friend: If the simple, unvarnished truth is corny, then I plead guilty. Another way of putting it is this: It's an exercise in futility to live on memories. The past is an unreal refuge, but worse than that, it's gone. I feel that the real salvation of widows and widowers is to look ahead and build something new.

Dear Ann Landers: I have this perfectly charming friend who is well-mannered and elegant, but whenever we play cards she sticks out her tongue and moistens the thumb of her right hand before dealing each card.

It looks dainty, but when you get right down to it she is actually spitting on the cards. I consider this a nasty habit and I hope you will tell me if you feel the same way. — I Like A Dry Deck

Dear Dry: It's been 25 years since I held a deck, wet or dry, but I have a sister in California who plays cards and she tells me that almost all card players do this so the cards won't stick. It is not considered unhygienic — and so far as I know nobody ever got sick from it.

———

Don't flunk your chemistry test. Love is more than one set of glands calling to another. If you have trouble making a distinction you need Ann's booklet, "Love Or Sex And How To Tell The Difference." Send a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request and 35 cents in coin to this newspaper.

BUSINESS NEWS

Two Sedalia doctors have been named fellows of the American Academy of Family Physicians, a degree which serves as an acknowledgement of successfully completing 600 or more hours of continued medical study in family medicine.

Named by the Academy were Dr. D. R. Edwards and Dr. C. Gordon Stauffacher.

The American Academy of Family Physicians represents more than 32,000 family doctors and is the only national medical group requiring members to take continuing study.

Accident Rate For Sedalia On Increase

Sedalia police have investigated 821 accidents so far this year, according to H. C. Randall Sr., records clerk. He said the collisions resulted in two deaths and 196 injuries.

That compares to 815 accidents for the first 11 months last year, including two fatalities and 212 injuries.

For November alone, the number of accidents stood at 78 last month, compared to 88 in the same month last year. The number of injuries for November, 1972, was also down from the same month last year, 13 compared to 20, Randall's figures show.

The Sedalia Capital

'Sunshine' bill has a gaping loophole

Among the deluge of bills introduced Friday, the first day for filing proposed legislation in the Missouri General Assembly, one measure demands special attention from the press and the public at large.

This is Senate Bill No. 1, introduced by Sen. William J. Cason, D-Clinton, president pro-tem of the Missouri Senate. The bill is called an "open meetings" or "sunshine" bill, but in actuality it falls short of either one.

The bill would represent solid advances in two problem areas by requiring that all voting in public bodies be recorded, and that public records, with only a few specified exceptions, be open to inspection and duplication.

Both provisions are badly needed in Missouri, where the public has been denied access to voting records, especially in legislative committees, for years. A so-called "rules change" adopted by the Missouri House and Senate last term, supposedly to insure that committee votes be recorded, turned out to be a farce, as legislators easily side-stepped the careless language adopted. This loophole would be closed under Senator Cason's bill.

The nearly fatal flaw in the bill is found in the last sentence of Section 7, which follows a list of bona fide exceptions to open meetings, and then states: "In all other cases closed meetings may be used only for the purpose of discussion."

This sentence would make a mockery of the open meetings concept. As every newsman who covers public bodies knows, the real substance of public policy and debate is decided during the DISCUSSION stages, with open voting often only a way of formalizing what has gone on before. Under this section public bodies that currently open their doors could close them for the most part, and have the force of law behind them.

Missourians seem to want open meetings, as was indicated last session when more than 90,000 voters signed petitions circulated by the Citizens Lobby calling for a vote on a constitutional amendment.

But unless Senate Bill No. 1 is amended to close its gaping loophole, no bill at all would perhaps be better than this one, which gives the appearance of protecting the public interest without the substance.

Tip their hat to paper boy

I wish to commend our paper boy (Roger Luckinbill). My husband is a retired serviceman, and having lived in various places we have never seen a paperboy to equal Roger. Our paper at all times is hand-delivered to the doorstep, and in bad weather it is always wrapped and placed inside the storm door.

We feel a boy who does such a great job should be recognized.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

Twentieth Century warfare has been bravely depicted by modern newscameramen. The World Almanac notes that war photography was perfected during the American Civil War by Matthew Brady. He and his lensmen vividly portrayed many historic episodes of America's most devastating war, often risking their lives to capture the "life-like" reality of the carnage about them.

Low-paid 'deejays' often take payola

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — In a prominent Southern city, the black, midnight-to-dawn disc jocket earned a paltry $500 a month from the radio station's pernurious white owner.

Yet the "deejay" drove an extravagant car that put the white owner's auto to shame and occupied a deep-carpeted suite in the city's most luxurious hotel.

The station owner, worried about illegal payola, asked the "deejay" about the source of his affluence but couldn't get a straight answer. The owner monitored the program but could find no sure evidence of payola. Nevertheless, he fired the disc jockey on suspicion.

In a smaller city, a young, black disc jockey getting his start made $95 a week. He loved the glamor of the job, but his wife was sick. The bills started piling up.

A black promotion man from a white-owned record company dropped by to push his rhythm-and-blues records. As recounted to us by one of America's top black "deejays," the promotion man "loaned" the disc jockey $200 to pay the bills. In gratitude, the "deejay" plugged and played his new friend's records.

Our interviews with black disc jockeys, white owners, promotion men, record critics, FCC officials and many other confirm that payola is all too common among both whites and blacks.

But among the blacks, who are generally far less well paid than white "deejays," payola comes close to being a necessity. Until recently, one of the worst-paying of the big city radio station chains was Starr Broadcasting Group, Inc.

At one of the three black-format stations in Memphis, WLOK, the going salary for a disc jockey three years ago was as low as $100. Now the low is closer to $150, the high $200.

The disc jockeys, meanwhile, are aware that at $17 a minute for national commercials and $5 to $8 for local ads, Starr is grossing thousands every month.

Peter Starr, president of the chain, explained that he can't afford higher salaries. A check with Starr's corporate reports shows that four days before he pleaded poormouth with us, his company had announced a 400 per cent net income jump.

Starr, however, insists the bumptious, brash sound of WLOK grosses only $40,000 a month and that each station should make its own way.

Asked whether low salaries might drive jockeys to payola, Starr said he is haunted by stories that an employe or two are on the take, but he has never obtained any proof of it. He says he regulates what records are to be played to prevent a "deejay" from slipping in a "turkey" for pay.

The big record companies, meanwhile, are covering up payola. In one rare case, we found a record executive who fired a promotion man for allegedly giving "deejays" cocaine for playing the firm's records.

In another, a reliable witness overheard a promotion person talking about providing $20 bags of marijuana as payola. Her company, while denying knowledge of the dope, warned promotion men against "drugola" or any other form of payola:

"If we find that any employee of this company is guilty of this or any other infraction, be advised that the employee will be immediately dismissed," warned the firm in a memo.

Snooping has become one of the government's main enterprises. Each day, hordes of investigators swarm out to check on the loyalty and integrity of their fellow Americans, most of whom are quite innocent of any criminal activity.

These gumshoes have filed solemn, secret reports, for example, on the Rev. Ralph Abernathy's spats with his wife, football hero Joe Namath's favorite Manhattan hangout and actor Rock Hudson's sex life. The private affairs of these good gentlemen, of course, is none of the government's business.

Our high-paid sleuths could be better employed investigating organized crime or keeping misfits out of "critical-sensitive" government jobs.

The Commerce Department's regulations, for instance, sternly declare that "no person shall be appointed to a 'critical-senstive' position until a full field investigation with satisfactory results has been completed."

Yet the Department hired Charles Tuller last January as a $26,000-a-year minority business consultant. The job is listed as "critical-sensitive." To the embarrassment of the sedate officials at the Commerce Department, Tuller allegedly tried to rob a bank a few weeks ago. He is accused of murdering two suburban Washington policemen in the abortive attempt. With his two sons and a fourth man, Tuller is also alleged to have gunned down an airline ticket clerk in Houston before hijacking a plane to Havana.

Instead of digging up titillating tidbits about movie stars and football heroes, government investigators could easily have learned enough about Tuller to disqualify him from a "critical-sensitive" job. Here are a few facts from his past that the most routine investigation should have developed:

✓ On Oct. 24, 1954, Tuller was arrested on a charge of indecently exposing himself to three teen-age girls in a theater. The charge was dropped when the complainants would not appear in court.

✓ In April 1956, Tuller was fired by Sterns Department Store in New York City for allegedly failing to ring up sales on at least five occasions after taking customers' money.

✓ Not long afterwards, Tuller was fired from his job with B. Altman department store for omitting from his employment application his dismissal from Sterns.

It's a little dismaying that a department store should have no trouble nailing and firing Tuller, but that the federal government, with its investigative hordes, should fail to do so.

Christmas music in the air

By CYRENE DEAR

WASHINGTON — December is the most musical month in the year. The beautiful Christmas music is ushered in officially on the third of the month, which is the first Sunday in Advent.

Prayer for the first day of Advent:

"Eighteen shopping days till Christmas. That, dear God, is bad news. It isn't just the shopping, its everything else — writing, wrapping, mailing and meals. Can it be, that we're working on the wrong thing? Help us concentrate on the right thing: the good news of your coming again into our darkened world with light and hope. Getting ready to celebrate — that shouldn't mean pressure and weariness at all, but quiet minds and hearts spilling over with joy."

The churches in Washington offer special Christmas music, Handel's "Messiah," The Bach Christmas Oratorio, and many others. There are special concerts in the libraries with such as "Amahl and the Night Visitors," "The Nutcracker Suite" and many other delightful programs are presented for children as well as adults.

The popular play "Godspell" at Ford's Theater, based on the gospel of St. Matthew, is the longest running show in Washington history, and has now been extended to Feb. 11, 1973. It will soon be made into a film.

The schools in nearby Prince Georges County are following the Supreme Court edict of no religion in schools, but have made a few concessions. There will be Christmas music of a classical nature and some carols.

The stores in this area are already enjoying the ring of their cash registers. Beautiful decorations help to herald the holiday shopping.

The Kennedy Center will feature the Acrobatic Art Troup from the People's Republic of China as part of the cultural exchange program. The reviews from Canada of their performances called them a dazzling show of grace, skill, and even whimsey. Their spectacular, colorful costumes and artistry were more like a ballet than an acrobatic performance.

President Nixon continues to work at Camp David because he says he can concentrate better there. His cabinet and top White House advisers joined him to help him reorganize for his next term.

Inauguration Day will be Jan. 20. The cost in 1969 was over $2 million and is expected to be even higher this year. J. Willard Marriott Sr. is chairman and the inaugural balls will be held in the Kennedy Center and Smithsonian Institution of History and Technology.

The President hopes to have at least four "Henry Kissingers" to help him mastermind the various departments under his controls. He thinks this will save money and cut down on staff.

President Nixon and Secretary Who?

WASHINGTON — President Nixon has just announced he will work more closely with his Cabinet in his second term than he did in his first. For four years the President has preferred to work with only a few close White House aides.

Buchwald

It has been forgotten now, but at the start of the Nixon Administration the President not only vowed that he would work very closely with his Cabinet officers he also announced that he planned to have Cabinet officers' wives attend the meetings so they could better understand the workings of the government.

In a much publicized meeting, husbands and wives of the President's Cabinet were photographed around a large table with Mr. Nixon presiding.

As far as anyone knows, not only was this the last meeting the wives attended but shortly after that the President stopped meeting with the husbands as well.

The Cabinet officers may have taken all this in stride but the wives remained bitter to the end.

"I thought when my husband became a Cabinet officer," one wife told me, "he would be working until midnight, seven days a week. But he was home every night at 5 o'clock, and I couldn't get him out of the house on weekends."

"Well, what was wrong with that?"

"The first thing he would do when he came in was ask, 'Did the President call?' I would always have to reply, 'He didn't.' Then he would say to the kids, 'I don't want anyone to touch the phone while I'm home. The White House may be trying to get me.'

"Every time we wanted to call someone we had to go to the drugstore. When the phone rang, he would jump up and grab it and say, 'Yes Sir, Mr. President.' It was usually my mother calling and he'd have a fit."

"There must have been a lot of tension in the house," I said.

"Month after month he brooded about it. Finally it go so bad I asked, 'Why don't you call the President?' He said, 'You're right. I'll call the President!' He picked up the phone and asked directory assistance for the number of the White House. Then he dialed the number.

"The whole family stood behind him waiting breathlessly. 'I wish to speak to the President,' he said. There was a pause. 'Yes, the call is paid for,' he said angrily. They switched him to another person who made him spell his name. Then they asked him for his title. He said he was a Cabinet officer. This apparently had some effect because they switched him to another person who told him the President was not there. This, of course, was a lie because we had just seen him on television speaking from the Oval Room.'

"My husband said, 'It's urgent that I see the President on some very important business concerning my department.' The person on the other end of the line asked him to hold on. Then he told my husband he could see the President at next Sunday's prayer breakfast meeting at the White House. 'Good,' my husband said, 'I have to talk to him.'

"The person on the other end of the line replied, 'We said you could SEE the President next Sunday — we didn't say anything about TALKING to him.' "

"And that was the last time your husband SAW the President?" I asked.

"No, as a matter of fact, we saw him last week — three years later.

"We were at Rockefeller Center, Christmas shopping, and who should come by but President Nixon and Pat. My husband thought fast and pushed himself through the Secret Service men. 'Hello, Mr. President!' he shouted.

"President Nixon held out his hand. 'Where are you from?' the President asked.

" 'Washington, D.C.,' my husband replied.

" 'Well,' said the President, 'how do you like those Redskins?' And before my husband could answer, the President walked on."

"I'll bet you that's something you two will never forget," I said.

"I should say so. My husband said he'd never wash his right hand again."

Fisticuffs Mar Final Night Of Smith-Cotton Tourney

By VAUGHN HART
Sports Editor

Smith-Cotton won the game, the fight and saved some face in the early portion of the season with a 62-51 win over Columbia Hickman in an early-season match-up of the two Central Missouri Conference favorites. But it wasn't for the big bag of marbles as Springfield Glendale won that with a 51-43 verdict in the championship game of the Smith-Cotton Invitational Tournament.

A happy, but somewhat shaken, Jim Dinsdale reviewed the third-place contest against the Kewpies that saw his standout 6-9 center, Kim Anderson, fall victim of a blide-side, haymaker right from Columbia's Alan Jordan in the late minutes of the Friday night opener.

"We matured a lot tonight," said the Bengals' coach. "We put two good halves together, hit the boards harder and played much stronger defensively," he continued as he compared the game to his team's performance of 24 hours earlier, when the Tigers dropped the tourney opener to Glendale.

Smith-Cotton broke from the gate early, running up a 10-0 count in the first five and one half minutes of play. By the time the buzzer ended the first period of play, Columbia walked to the sidelines, trailing 14-2.

The Tigers didn't let up the way they had the night before, when they built up an 11-point margin. They just kept pouring it on, until with 3:10 remaining in the final stanza, they had swelled the margin to 18, 56-38. And then the fireworks started.

Jordan, a 6-4 junior forward, who had been having a tough time with teammates David Vaught and Ross Stroupe in the Kewpies 2-1-2 collapsing zone keeping Anderson and 6-5 junior forward Jim Sanders off the boards, decided he's had enough. After being whistled for a foul on Anderson, Jordan reached back to somewhere near Smithton and took a wild swing at the rear of Anderson's head. The blow landed squarely on target, which emptied both benches and part of the stands.

Order was restored within a couple of minutes, although it looked as if Earl Finley, Smith-Cotton principal, was ready to call a halt to the night's activity as he nervously held the ball in front of the scorers' table.

However, Anderson went to the line for a possible four foul shots. Two were awarded on the flagrent foul by Jordan, in addition to the one-and-one he had been awarded on the initial foul by Jordan.

Jordan, who was tossed out of the game by referees Ray Hentges (Jefferson City) and Charles Whitten (Boonville), will have to miss the Kewpies' next contest, due to a new ruling by the Missouri State High School Activities Association. Under the regulation by the MSHSAA, any player who is ejected by a referee cannot participate in the team's next game.

Playing much more aggressively, the Tigers whipped their counterparts on the boards, 24-21. Anderson pulled off 20 defensive and 10 offensive caroms. He also led all scorers with 20 points.

Sophomore guard Marvin Spruell, seeing action only in his second varsity contest, held the Kewpies' standout back court ace Steve Marshall to only eight points. The night before, Marshall netted 18. "He (Spruell) played a tremendous game defensively," said Dinsdale.

Glendale's defense held the Paseo Pirates completely off the scoreboard in the first quarter of the championship contest, and the Bucs could never really recover.

Trailing 14-0 as play opened in the second quarter, Paseo started its long climb back. But they could only cut the lead to 10, 24-14, by the half.

Things took a turn for the better, at least from the Pirates' standpoint, in the early going of the third quarter. Paseo, who started getting some results from their man-to-man press, managed to tie Glendale on a field goal in close by 6-3 senior forward Terry Blanks, which knotted the count a 24-all with 5:28 remaining.

The lead changed hands three times and was tied on two other occasions, before Glendale managed a 32-31 lead as the quarter closed.

The Falcons held off the Pirates' late-game rush in the final quarter and built up a 47-39 lead on a layup by Steve Miller with 3:15 showing. Still trailing by that margin with 2:29 remaining, Paseo's Arthur Clayton turned the ball over and any hope of victory.

Glendale went into their delay game with just over two minutes to go and just waited for the clock to run out.

Nicklaus Leads By 2 In Disney

LAKE BUENA VISTA, Fla. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus, gunning for his seventh victory of the season, fashioned a five-under-par 67 and pulled away to a two-stroke lead Saturday in the third round of the $150,000 Walt Disney World Open Golf Tournament.

The powerful blond, the defending titleholder in this final tournament of the season, had a 54-hole total of 203, 13 under par on the 7,222-yard Magnolia Course at Disney World.

Jim Dent, the one-time caddy at the Augusta National Course, moved into second with a brilliant 65 for 205.

Dent is a hulking 220-pounder who hasn't come close to winning in his two years on the pro tour.

George Archer slipped back to third as he again encountered double bogey disaster. Archer, just one stroke off the pace going into the third round, hooked a drive into an unplayable lie in the woods and took a seven on the eighth hole. The former ranchhand from Gilroy, Calif., finished with a 69 and a third place at 206.

Veterans Bob Goalby and Dave Marr each had a 65 and were tied at 207.

Bert Yancey blazed away with a string of seven consecutive birdies on his first seven holes and broke the course record with a 64. He was tied at 208 with Frank Beard and Len Thompson. Beard had a 70 and Thompson a 69.

Arnold Palmer failed to qualify for the final two days of play.

Missouri Southern Tops Northwestern Iowa, 21-14

JOPLIN, Mo. (AP) — Missouri Southern, the nation's No. 1 NAIA Division II football team, proved it Saturday by scoring twice in the final four minutes to turn back Northwestern Iowa, 21-14, and win the national divisional title.

The victory was Southern's 12th straight this season and extended its two-season victory to 14 games. The defeat was the first for Northwestern in 11 games and snapped the Red Raiders' 16-game winning streak.

Northwestern was leading 14-7 and drove inside Southern's 30-yard line with less than four minutes left.

Southern defensive end Larry Cameron pounced on a Jerry Brown fumble on the Southern 42 with 3:21 left to give the Lions possession.

On the next play quarterback Ray Harding connected with split end Kerry Anders for 58 yards and a touchdown. Southern failed on a two-point conversion try and still trailed by a point with three minutes left.

Missouri Southern held Northwestern on its next possession and forced the Red Raiders to punt from their own 19. Center Mike Key's snap sailed over punter Mark Johnson's head and the Lions' Sam Kealoha recovered in the end zone.

Terry Starks, who rushed for 127 yards on 15 carries, plunged over for the two-point conversion.

Northwestern's Curt Krull was selected the game's outstanding back while outstanding lineman honors went to Northwestern's defensive end Mike Bengard.

SMU Smothers Texas Christian

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Southern Methodist, stunned by the firing of Coach Hayden Fry, smothered Texas Christian 35-22 Saturday in the wave of emotion to give the Mustangs a tie for second place in the final Southwest Conference standings.

The fired-up Mustangs, led by quarterback Keith Bobo who made an inspirational speech to the team dedicating the game to Fry, buried the Horned Frogs with a 21-point second quarter, as Bobo threw three touchdown passes.

The victory gave SMU a 7-4 season record.

It was Fry's third winning season in 11 years in which he compiled a 49-66-1 record. Bobo threw his touchdown passes in the second quarter after having left the game twice with injuries.

After the final gun, SMU players hosted Fry to their shoulders, carried him to midfield for the congratulatory handshake with TCU coach Billy Tohill, then lugged him 70 yards to the exit before they put him down.

The solemn SMU players walked on the field before the game after Bobo told them, "You know who we're dedicating this game to."

The Mustang defense was so inspired TCU was limited to only 29 yards offense in the first half and the Horned Frogs had a minus 5 yards rushing in the first half.

Sacred Heart Bid Falls Short Of Goal

(Democrat-Capital Service)

TIPTON — Sacred Heart, bidding for their second straight Tipton Invitational Tournament championship, couldn't counter the torrid Eldon Mustangs' zone press in Friday night's title battle.

"Their press hurt us a lot early," said Tom Beer, the Gremlins' head coach. "They scored a lot of easy (layups) off it and put us down early," he added as he looked over the scoring and the statistics from the 82-75 loss.

"Something else that hurt us was the play of Mike Vernon. Our scouting reports didn't show that he was that good of a ball player...I've changed my mind about him," he continued talking about the performance of the Mustangs' 6-2 senior. Vernon tossed in 20 points, second only to Cully Jobe, who fired in 26 in the Eldon victory.

Trailing by as many as 10 in the early part of the contest, Sacred Heart managed to get within five, 21-16, as the first quarter closed.

The Grems knotted the count at 39-39 by the half. Sacred Heart led during some of the third quarter by as many as five points.

"We were tired...so much, in fact, that I had to rest Danny Borchers the last three minutes of the game; he just ran out of gas...a lot of our kids did after playing that tight game with Jefferson City the night before," said Beer.

"I don't think that we had letdown from our win over Jefferson City...I just think we were tired...but that doesn't mean that Eldon didn't do a fine job...they really did, especially in the press and in scoring with Jobe and Vernon," he concluded.

If the Gremlins had won the title, it would have marked the second time in as many years that they would have done so by way of upsets. Last year, Beer's charges were not even seeded in the top four and won it with three upsets, including an overtime win over Jefferson City and a victory over Eldon in the championship.

Jefferson City downed second-seeded Fulton in Friday night's third-place contest, 82-75; Steve Newman was the top scorer for the Jays with 20 points.

In the consolation tilt, host Tipton edged Versailles 54-52, for the trophy. Harold Wolf topped all scorers with 24 points for the Cardinals.

Mark Dunham was one of four Sacred Heart players to reach double figures in the championship loss to Eldon. He found the range for 25 points. Jeff Karigan followed with 15; 13 more came from Borchers, while Mike Twenter netted 10.

The Gremlins will not see action again until Friday, when they take to the road for a two-game trip to the Kansas City area. They will face Precious Blood of Liberty Friday and move on to face St. Mary's of Independence Saturday.

Templemire Sets All-Time Record

By BOB SHACKELFORD
Staff Sportswriter

SMITHTON — Rusty Templemire, 6-4 junior pivot man, put on an awesome display of offense and defense Friday night as he led the Smithton Tigers to a 97-59 win over the Northwest Mustangs.

It was a Kaysinger Conference game that brought Coach Terry Pummill's crew to a 7-2 overall season's record.

The lanky Templemire hit 16 of 22 from the field and 15 of 16 from the charity stripe. While not on offense he managed to rip 21 rebounds off the boards. The 47 points marked an all-time school record for individual scoring, breaking the record set by Ken Hampy in 1968 of 40 points.

In addition, Templemire had not missed a free throw since the third-place contest with Warsaw in the Kaysinger Conference Tournament; a string of 41 in a row covering five games, but he missed his last one of the night to break the string.

The Mustangs started the contest in a 2-1-2 zone and kept the Bengals close with a bothersome 2-2-1 zone press. With the score tied 11-11, Smithton reeled off five straight buckets, while holding Northwest scoreless to own a 21-11 first-quarter margin.

The second quarter showed Paul Anderson, a hot-shot senior forward, hitting from the wings of the zone to break the game wide open. Anderson had 22 points on 11 baskets in 15 attempts at the intermission, with the zone holding Templemire to 13. Ad at the half-way mark the scoreboard found Smithton in the lead, 46-24.

With Northwest switching to a man-to-man defense in the third quarter, Anderson and the balance of the Tigers began feeding Templemire and he responded with a fantastic 34-point performance in the final half.

By the end of the third quarter, the margin spread to 70-40. The fourth stanza was a rerun of the third, as Smithton continued the onslought.

The junior varsity contest was no contest from the onset, as Smithton jumped to a 21-4 half time margin and won the encounter 39-13. Martin White led the winners with 11 points, while Tony Knight had six for the losers.

Smithton made a sweep of the night's activity by defeating the Mustangs in the volleyball contest, 25-24. Northwest led by four points with less than a minute to play, but the Tigers caught up and scored the winning point at the final buzzer.

Grambling Wins Bowl With Ease

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Grambling, led by quarterback Matthew Reed and a trio of fleet running backs, routed North Carolina Central 56-6 in the inaugural Pelican Bowl Saturday and claimed the national black college football championship.

From the time Central quarterback Garvin Stone fumbled the first center snap, the Eagles found themselves in trouble. They were forced to punt and Grambling took over on the 36. Reed completed a couple of low, flat passes to Jackie Jefferson and Lee Fobbs and a pass interference call in the end zone gave the Tigers the ball on the one.

(Democrat-Capital Service)

KANSAS CITY — Lou Piniella and John Mayberry had outstanding individual seasons in 1972 with the Kansas City Royals.

But official American League batting statistics released Saturday also showed they were powerful as a tandem.

Mayberry, with 100 runs-batted-in, and Piniella, with 72, were the second best 1-2 punch in RBI on any team in the American League, trailing only Dick Allen (113) and Carlos May (68) of the Chicago White Sox who combined for 181.

That fact adds lustre to the statistics chalked up by the two Royals. Piniella finished second in the league batting race with a .312 average, only six points behind the leader Rod Carew, and led the league in doubles with 33. Mayberry was seventh with a .298 average.

Mayberry's statistics go even further. He was one of only three players in the American League to finish in the top ten in average, home runs, RBI, and slugging percentage. The other two were Allen and Bobby Murcer of the New York Yankees.

Mayberry had 25 home runs, tied for fifth in the league; 100 RBI, second best; and had a .507 slugging percentage, fourth highest Allen hit .308 with 37 homers, 113 RBI and a .603 slugging percentage while Murcer hit .292, tied for tenth in the league, slammed 33 homers and drove in 96 runs with a .537 slugging percentage.

Other Royals in the top ten in batting were Richie Scheinblum, sixth at .300, and Amos Otis, eighth at .293.

Led by this quartet, the Royals paced the league in batting with a .255 average, led in hits with 1,317, were second in doubles with 220 to Boston's 229, and were third in RBI with 547 to Boston's 594 and Oakland's 565.

Kansas City also led the league in number of walks received with 534 and had the second lowest strikeout total, fanning only 711 times.

Patriots Top Derby In Town Team Play

The Sedalia Patriots downed Derby 118-108 in town team basketball action Friday evening.

The Patriots controlled the game most of the time, leading at the half by a comfortable 66-46 margin.

Gary Pirtle pumped in 42 for the Pats while Jim Hill had 38 for Derby. Also over the 35-point mark was Steve Holmes of the Patriots who had 36.

Skyline To Play Again In Warsaw Championship

By WARREN RIPLEY
Staff Sportswriter

WARSAW — Three years ago the Skyline Tigers were entered in the Warsaw Invitational Tournament for the first time. In those three years, the Tigers have made it into the championship game. Friday they did it with a 51-36 thrashing of the host Warsaw.

In the consolation bracket the Cole Camp Blue Birds move into the finals against Clinton with a 65-39 victory over Windsor.

Skyline, who doesn't start a man taller than 6-0, but plays all areas of the game with confidence and skill, have won this tournament the two years that they have been in it, and were in a position to win it for an unprecedented third year in a row Saturday night. Only the LaMonte Vikings, a surprising team that plays much like Skyline, stood between Skyline and their goal.

The Tigers strong man-to-man defense allowed only three Warsaw players to score in the contest. Man-to-man looks like a funny term to apply to the Tigers defense if one has seen them play. It seems as if there are seven or eight Skyline players on the floor and whenever there is a loose ball all the Bengals are after it like a pack of starving wolves. One Kaysinger Conference coach commented, "I had to count the kids that they (Skyline) had on the floor several times. They were all over the place.

Warsaw battled the Tigers even in the opening moments of the game. With the score 4-4, Skyline started to move. With their press and hustling defense, the scrappy Tigers held the Wildcats scoreless for the remainder of the quarter to take a 14-4 lead into the second period.

In the second stanza, 6-6 Doug Stevens tried to bring the Warsaw squad back into the game. The big center scored several times on short jumpers to cut the Skyline lead, but the Tigers kept the lead, 22-14.

The third period saw another stalemate as the Tigers were content to hold onto their margin. Warsaw played the Tigers almost even up in the period but even up would not win them the game. Skyline outscored the hosts 13-12 to give them a 35-26 advantage.

In the finale, the Tigers ran away for good. Skyline went into a semi-delay with 4:19 left, but Warsaw fouled Dwire who calmly hit a pair of charity shots that made the score 41-32. That was the icing on the cake as Warsaw never recovered and fell to the Tigers, 51-36.

The Windsor Greyhounds tried to check Cole Camp with a 1-2-2 zone, which at first was marginally effective. But in the second half the Blue Birds found the range and walked away with an easy victory.

Cole Camp never trailed and was in command throughout most of the game. Kent Schnakenberg and Harry Goosen did the job for the Bluebirds from the field and on the backboards. Schnakenberg had 19 while Goosen tallied 14. For Windsor, Tim Craig and Chris Mitchell reached double figures.

The Bluebirds broke loose in the final period when they outscored their Windsor foes 21-10.

Scoring

Cole Camp (65) — Schnakenberg 19, Goosen 14, Weymuth 9, Schnell 8, Case 8, Harmes 5, Ives 2.

Windsor (39) — Craig 15, Mitchell 13, Whitworth 4, Sypes 3, Parks 2, Riecke 2.

Skyline (51) — Bybee 14, Payne 12, Lake 11, Mawhiney 8, Dwire 6.

Warsaw (36) — Stevens 18, Barnes 14, Steffans 4.

Final Trading Day Sees Seven Deals Transacted

HONOLULU (AP) — That was the week that was.

In seven frantic days of trading, baseball's general managers exchanged bodies at a record pace, climaxing the fireworks with seven deals on the final day of the annual winter meetings.

In all, 20 deals involving 69 players were announced with only three clubs, Boston, Montreal and Milwaukee, not making any moves.

There were plenty of big names moving around too. The new York Yankees came away with one of the biggest plums of the week in slugger Graig Nettles, obtained from Cleveland in a six-man swap. The Yankees also opened the week-long run of deals by acquiring veteran outfielder Matty Alou from Oakland.

Alou was one of two regular dealt away by the world champion A's. The other was slugger Mike Epstein, surrendered rather cheaply, it seemed, to Texas for reliever Horacio Pina.

The biggest deal of the week, by reason of numbers, at least, was the seven-player swap between California and Los Angeles with veteran slugger Frank Robinson and four other players going to the Angels in exchange for pitcher Andy Messersmith and third baseman Ken McMullen.

Messersmith was one of four former 20-game winner to be dealt during the week. The others were Bill Singer, who accompanied Robinson to the Angels, Bill Hands, who went to Minnesota with two other pitchers for reliever Dave LaRoche, and Pat Dobson, one of four players Baltimore surrendered to Atlanta for slugger Earl Williams.

The most active teams at the meetings were Cleveland with four deals and Minnesota, St. Louis, and the New York Mets, who made three trades apiece. The Indians added nine new faces, the biggest turnover of bodies at the meetings. Minnesota got the most return in terms of numbers, surrendering only three players, LaRoche, reliever Wayne Granger and handyman Cesar Tovar, to get eight fresh faces.

HUTCHINSON, Kan. — State Fair Community College stayed tough right up to the end here Saturday night, losing to Hutchinson Junior College in double overtime, 91-90.

KANSAS CITY — Smith-Cotton opened their 1972 soccer season here Saturday with a 0-0 tie against O'Hara.

Sooners Clinch Big Eight Title By Downing 'Pokes

NORMAN, Okla. (AP)-Quarterback Dave Robertson hurled two touchdown passes to propel third-ranked Oklahoma to a 24-0 halftime lead, then the Sugar Bowl-bound Sooners fought off a series of mistakes to defeat arch-rival Oklahoma State, 38-15, here Saturday and claim the Big Eight championship.

Robertson combined with tight end Al Chandler on a 68-yard scoring bomb on OU's first possession. He later hit freshman Tinker Owens on a seven-yard TD toss.

The Sooners finished 6-1 in the Big Eight and 10-1 for the season, but needed to beat the Cowboys to grab the title. OSU wound up tied with Colorado for third in the conferfence at 4-3 and had an over-all record of 6-5, OSU's first winning season since 1959.

Freshman sensation Joe Washington scored two touchdowns on runs of seven and 17 yards, Leon Crosswhite scored on a one-yard plunge and Rick Fulcher kicked a 23-yard field goal for the Sooners.

Oklahoma State, taking advantage of two Sooner fumbles and a pass interception, outscored OU, 9-0, in the third period as quarterback Brent Blackman went in on a three-yard run and Eddie Garrett kicked a 31-yard field goal.

But the Sooners bounced back with Crosswhite scoring the clinching touchdown midway in the final period. The TD was set up by a 19-yard sprint off a fake punt by Joe Wylie, who atoned for a muffed fair catch and a fumble, that led to OSU's nine points.

Davis Leads Trojans In Defeat Of Irish

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Southern California's super sophomore Anthony Davis ran for six touchdowns, shocking Notre Dame with 97 and 96-yard kickoff returns, and the nationally top-ranked Trojans shattered the Fighting Irish 45-23 Saturday in college football.

The victory gave Southern Cal, which will play Ohio State in the Rose Bowl on New Year's Day, an 11-0 season, and coupled with Auburn's stunning upset earlier in the day of Alabama, left the Trojans as the only unbeaten and untied team in major college football for the 1972 season.

The 5-foot-9, 185-pound Davis, a tailback from San Fernando, Calif., ran the game's opening kickoff a school record 97 yards, then broke Notre Dame's comeback bid late in the third quarter with his second long dash when the Irish appeared to have momentum.

The 10th-ranked Irish, who finished the season 8-2, fought back to trail just 25-23. Then Davis took a kickoff, skipped away from two defenders at the Notre Dame 35 and completed his 96-yard effort.

Davis, who became the first USC sophomore to gain more than 1,000 yards in a season, also scored on runs of 1, 5, 4 and 8 yards before 75,243 in sunny Memorial Coliseum and a national television audience.

His six touchdowns was one shy of the all-time major college mark for a single game. The record of seven was set by Mississippi's Showboat Boykin in 1951.

This was only the third start for Davis, who advanced from third string because of injuries to other backs. Yet his 99 yards in 22 carries gave him a season total of 1,034.

Notre Dame, which plays Nebraska in the Orange Bowl on Jan. 1, scored quick touchdowns after two interceptions by Mike Townsend in the third quarter. Tom Clements passed 11 yards to Gary Diminick for one and 10 yards to Mike Creaney for another.

A two-point conversion pass try, which would have tied the score at 25-all was broken up.

McFerren Nearing Class-A Golf Rating

Bob McFerren, head golf professional at Walnut Hills Country Club, has passed the written part of the national Professional Golfers Association examination toward a Class-A rating.

McFerren, who has been a PGA apprentice since 1969, said Friday that "...ever since I decided to make professional golf my career, I wanted to become a full-fledged member of the association (PGA)."

The next step for McFerren will be to pass his oral examination in Kansas City. If no objections are filed within 30 days and he passes the oral portion of the PGA test, he will be classified as a Class-A PGA member.

Areas covered in the written portion of the examination included the PGA Constitution, golf club construction, pro shop merchandising, rules of golf, teaching, finance, accounting and inventory control, as well as other general topics.

Bob McFerren

A score no lower than 70 per cent on all portions of the test is needed to pass. McFerren's lowest score was 85 per cent.

BULLETIN

WARSAW — Skyline of Urbana took the Warsaw Tournament title for the third straight year here Saturday night, downing the LaMonte Vikings, 63-49.

The first half saw excellent action as the score was knotted up at the end of both of the first two stanzas. The Tigers began to widen their lead late in the third quarter and when LaMonte's star guard Buggar Bennet committed his fifth personal with about 6½ minutes left in the fourth period, the end became almost certain.

Third place in the tourney went to the host Wildcats with their victory over Stover, 49-40. The consolation prize was claimed by Clinton, who defeated Cole Camp, 61-43.

Defeat Cloud County, 86-61

SFCC Notches First Road Win

(Democrat-Capital Service)

HUTCHINSON, Kan. — State Fair Community College ended their four-game losing streak in a big way here Friday night with an 86-61 rout over Cloud County, Kan. Community Junior College. It was the first game of the season that the Roadrunners had been able to place in the winning column on the road.

Although two of SFCC's top front-line threats, Charles Shell and Joe Hailey, were held to a combined total of only 14 points, the Roadrunners got double-figure performances from four other players.

Shell and Hailey, both freshman forwards, got into foul trouble in the first eight minutes of the contest and didn't see much action.

SFCC coach Bill Barton, who had seen his squad drop four straight road encounters, was naturally pleased after the contest. "We really were hurting for a victory...a win is something that you can't substitute for building up your momentum," he said Saturday morning.

The State Fair-Cloud County contest was the first end of a twinbill in the Hutchinson Sports Arena, site of the annual national JuCo finals. In the nightcap, the host Blue Dragons rallied behind Teko Wynder and Rudy Johnson to post a come-from-behind win over South Plains, Tex. College. Hutchinson trailed at the intermission, 48-45, but Wynder and Jackson led the second-half Blue Dragon effort and wound up with 32 and 30-point performances, as Hutchinson nailed down a 89-79 victory.

State Fair was scheduled to play the Blue Dragons last night in the second game of another doubleheader. In the first contest, South Plains met Cloud County.

Brent Yates, the Roadrunners hard-nosed sophomore guard, led SFCC in scoring with 16. Also in double figures were Lewis Busch and Colles Webb, who had 12 each, and Jack Easley, Yates' back court mate, who tossed in 10.

Larry Chambers was the leading scorer in the contest with 25. Earl Findley followed with 10.

South Plains got 24 points out of George Pannell and 18 from Ron Powdrell.

The Roadrunners will next see action Tuesday at 8 p.m. on their home court hosting Penn Valley Community College of Kansas City.

Scoring

State Fair (86) — Yates 16, Webb 12, Busch 12, Easley 10, Hailey 8, Gilmore 8, Shell 6, Jones 6, Flippin 4, Donnell 3, Day 1.

Cloud County (61) — Chambers 25, Findley 10, Bartley 7, Selevemmer 4, Muschcock 4, Durbin 4, Krier 3, Siegle 2, Brown 2.

NFL Gift Items? What You Want Is What You Get

NEW YORK (AP) — How would your kid like a Washington Redskin hubcap for his Christmas bicycle? Or maybe one from the Houston Oilers if you don't mind taking a chance on the wheel coming off.

Or a Dallas Cowboys parka, a Miami Dolphin lamp, a Minnesota Viking pewter pitcher or a Philadelphia Eagle trash can?

They're all on the market.

Maybe a $17.95 NFL electric football game for the well-heeled Santa to drop under your tree? Or even an NFL Dri-Grip wristband to keep the sweat off your hands while shoveling snow.

Hundreds of gift items carry the National Football League's sanction in what has become a multimillion dollar business. The main pitch is to small fry who idolize Sunday's heroes.

Young-at-heart fathers also buy heavily.

Department stores from Honolulu to Key West bulge with goodies bearing insignias of NFL teams. One large chain even has an "NFL Department" in its stores coast to coast.

Strangely, NFL clubs claim to reap little financial gain from the mushrooming enterprise. Profits of about $350,000 annually are scheduled to go to charity beginning in 1973.

Any item with NFL team or league markings must be sanctioned by an outfit known as NFL Properties, Inc., which operates down the hall from Commissioner Pete Rozelle's posh New York offices.

NFL Properties belongs equally to the 26 pro football club owners. Rozelle says he has no control. Bob Carey, a onetime Proctor and Gamble executive, operates the Properties.

"We get a 5 per cent royalty on the wholesale price of approved products," Carey said. "That means that $100,000 in sales—and that's wholesale, not retail prices—earns us only $5,000."

The 26 NFL clubs supposedly will get less than $15,000 each as their share of the take. Rozelle is expected to announce soon that the relatively paltry sums will be lumped together for charities such as helping destitute former pro football players.

Gift-buyers, like most sports fans, tend to be front-runners. This fall, Washington Redskin and Miami Dolphin items are hot. But, the demand for Kansas City Chiefs teeshirts and Minnesota Viking drinking glasses have declined with the performances of those teams.

"We don't care if manufacturers cross team boundaries," said Carey. "If Redskin thermos jugs sell in Dallas or Dolphin towels go in San Francisco, the fans get what they want."

You'd think, looking at the stores' array of NFL goods, that nothing else could be devised to grab your holiday dollar. But, don't bet on it.

"We turned down one company that wanted to put out toilet paper with NFL team insignias," Carey grinned. "The idea would be to peddle Green Bay toilet paper in Dallas the week before the Packers were playing the Cowboys. You get the idea."

One eager corporation, maybe during the Y.A. Tittle era, applied to sell NFL toupees. That was considered too hairy and Carey turned it down.

Profits from some items don't go where they might seem. Say, for instance, that a kid on Long Island purchases a green and white jersey bearing the number 12.

Money for the NFL, right? Or for the Jets, since it's their team colors? Or, at least for Joe Namath who wears the famed numeral in those colors for the New York team?

You're wrong on all counts. Colors and numbers cannot be patented. The manufacturer gets every dime, no matter if Larry Brown's performance causes them to sell 50,000 maroon No. 43s in Washington or the heroics of Floyd Little causes Denver kiddies to load up on No. 44s.

But, for the Super Fan, there's everything but bacon and eggs. A fellow can awake to a Lion alarm clock, put on his 49er cuff links, wipe his drousy face with a Ram towel, put on his Colts sock hat, pack his cash in a Bengal moneyclip, fasten his Steeler belt and head for work.

Not That One

Army's line backer Tim Pfister (69) lands on one hand after failing to intercept a pass from Navy quarterback Al Glenny in the first quarter of the Army-Navy Classic in Philadelphia, Saturday. The pass, which fell incomplete, was intended for Navy's Jack Forde. The midshipmen were upset by Army's cadets, 23-15.

Big Upset, 17-16

Auburn Whammies Tide

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Bill Newton blocked two punts in the final quarter and David Langner ran the ball for touchdowns both times as ninth-ranked Auburn upset second-ranked Alabama 17-16 Saturday.

Langner sealed Alabama's doom in the incredible upset shortly after his second touchdown by intercepting a pass at the Auburn 41.

It was the first regular season loss for Alabama in 22 games, and virtually ruined the Tide's chances for a national title.

Alabama will take its 10-1 record into the Cotton Bowl against Texas, while Cinderella Auburn, 9-1, will meet Colorado in the Gator Bowl.

Alabama appeared to have the game salted away with a 16-0 margin going into the final period. Auburn moved to the Tide 24 early in the period and Gardner Jett kicked a 42-yard field goal.

On Alabama's next possession, Newton and Ken Bernich led Auburn players rushing in at punter Greg Gantt and blocked the kick. Langner scooped it up at the 25 and ran untouched for a score.

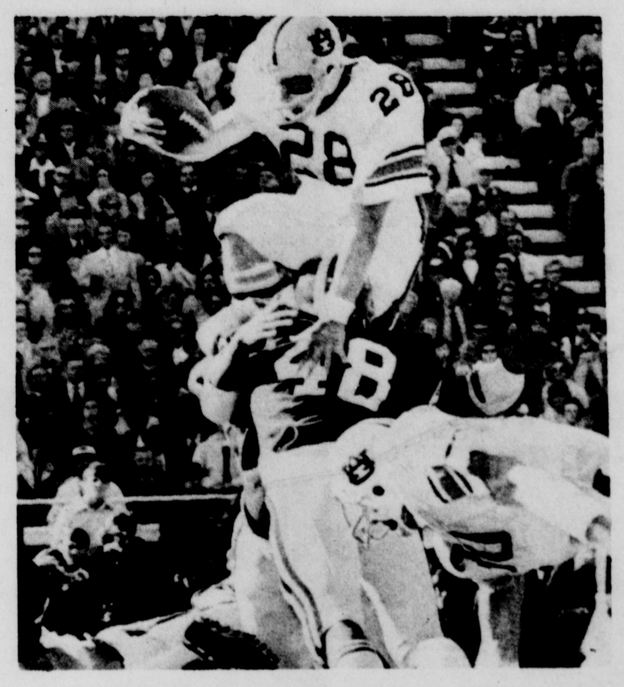
On its next possession, Alabama moved to the 43 and then saw a virtual replay. Newton again led a big rush and blocked Gantt's punt. And again Langner picked it up, this time at the 20, and took it in.

Jett's extra point made it 17-16.

The two blocked kicks were indicative of the defensive struggle. A stiff wind kept both teams from passing effectively.

Alabama struck in the second and third periods for its scores: runs by Steve Bisceglia and Wilbur Jackson and a field goal by Bill Davis. But a bad snap after the Tide's first touchdown botched the extra point attempt and this later cost the Tide a tie.

Auburn's only loss was 35-7 to Louisiana State, a team that Alabama defeated 35-21, and the Tigers came into the Alabama game a decided underdog.



Taking Off

Auburn's David Langner (28) scampers high over the shoulders of Alabama's Robin Cary (48) during a second quarter punt return in the Crimson Tide-Tiger football game played Saturday at Birmingham.

Sees Steelers, 49ers Racking Up NFL Wins

By HUBERT MIZELL
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Pittsburgh will crack the Cleveland Browns' six-game victory streak 27-20 in Sunday's showdown, almost assuring the Steelers of a National Football League playoff invitation.

Grinning from last week's 12-1 prediction record, that's our call on the American Conference Central Division showdown where even the loser has a shot at a post-season berth.

Los Angeles-San Francisco is a Monday night game and, being a Steve Spurrier believer from his 1966 Heisman Trophy year at Florida, I go with the 49ers 27-20.

Here's a game-by-game look with a pumped-up percentage of .737 after missing only the New Orleans upset of the Rams last weekend:

STEELERS 27, BROWNS 20—Pittsburgh hasn't lost at Three Rivers Stadium this year and the combination of Franco Harris' running and a bullish Steeler defense will make me go with them over Cleveland every time.

FORTY-NINERS 27, RAMS 20—The heat won't get to Spurrier and the guy is a born winner. San Francisco will blow it if John Brodie is returned to duty at quarterback.

PACKERS 17, LIONS 14—Another showdown and Green Bay will take it on a Chester Marcol field goal. Now doesn't that sound positive?

FALCONS 27, OILERS 10—Poor Bill Peterson. The likeable former Florida State and Rice coach doesn't deserve to be No. 26 in a 26-team league.

RAIDERS 34, CHARGERS 21—Oakland wraps it up amazingly early in the AFC West.

DOLPHINS 27, PATRIOTS 0—Minutemen are flailed by the 60-minute men as Miami bags its 12th straight en route to a possible 14-0 regular season.

REDSKINS 37, EAGLES 10—No contest as Washington inches nearer NFC East crown and host role for a first-round playoff game Christmas Eve.

VIKINGS 21, BEARS 10—Chicago long ago wasted away and Minnesota still clings to hope for playoffs despite loss to Steelers last week.

COWBOYS 27, CARDS 10—St. Louis is almost to hopeless stage and Dallas can't afford to think about losing before rematch with Redskins; if then.

BENGALS 10, GIANTS 7—New York's playoff hopes perish.

JETS 28, SAINTS 21—But, Jets alive for another week.

CHIEFS 24, BRONCOS 17—Kansas City has to save face now since it'll be watching the playoffs on TV.

COLTS 20, BILLS 14—The Marty Domres Era folks from Baltimore make it three straight as General Manager Joe Thomas keeps saying, "I knew I was right."

Pitcher Gary Nolan of the Cincinnati Reds is a native of Herlong, Calif.

Cadets Upset Middies

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Underdog Army spotted Navy two first-period touchdowns and then rallied with the help of an intercepted pass and an 83-yard touchdown return of a blocked field goal to beat the Middies 23-15 Saturday in the 73rd service football classic.

Defensive back Joe Furloni started the Army comeback early in the third period when he intercepted a Navy pass at the Middie 43. On first down, Army's bull-like rusher, Bob Hines, burst up the middle, shook off several tacklers and raced for the first West Point touchdown. Jim Barclay converted and Army trailed 12-7.

Navy took the ensuing kickoff and stormed from its 35 to a first down at the Army 18, where Cadet defensive back Scott Beaty was guilty of pass interference. The Middies, however, managed only six yards on three plays and Roger Lanning attempted a field goal.

The kick was blocked by Army linebacker Tim Pfister. The ball took one bounce into the hands of Beaty, who ran 83 yards for the touchdown that sent the Cadets ahead 13-12.

Immediately afterward, Navy's Cleveland Cooper, who gained 135 yards to become the first Middie to total 1,000 yards in a single season, spearheaded a drive that died on a fourth down-and-two option sweep at the Army five.

Cooper reeled off successive runs of 12, 26 and 29 yards that carried the ball to a first down at the Cadets' 13. From there, Dan Howard picked up nine on two plays but Cooper lost a yard, leaving the Middies with their fourth-and-two. Quarterback Al Glenny was tossed for a yard loss by the tough Army defense and the Cadets took over.

Early in the fourth period after an exchange of punts, Army drove 52 yards on four plays and went ahead 20-12. Bruce Simpson ran 21 yards up the middle for the touchdown and Barclay converted.

The teams traded late field goals—Navy's a 37-yard effort by Lanning and Army's a 23-yarder by Barclay.

In the first quarter, Navy drove 56 yards on 16 plays and took a 6-0 lead. Cooper took a pitch from Glenny, and after juggling the ball and almost fumbling, scored the touchdown from the one. The drive was keyed by a 13-yard pass on a fake field goal from Glenny to Andy Pease that gave the Middies a first down at the Army 17. A pass for the two-point conversion failed.

The Middies drove 50 yards on nine plays to boost their lead to 12-0 before the end of the quarter. Defensive back Charlie Robinson intercepted an Army pass and returned it six yards to midfield. The touchdown came on an 11-yard pass from Glenny to Howard on the final play of the quarter. This time, the Middies tried a run for the conversion, but were stopped.

Army's Hines carried 30 times for 172 yards as the Cadets gained their sixth victory against four defeats this season. It was the second straight triumph for Army over Navy and boosted their lead in the series to 36-31 with six ties.

The seven-point favorite Middies lost their seventh against four victories for the 1972 season.

Congress, FBI Check On NFL Bribe Attempt

NEW YORK (AP) — Jim Kensil, the executive director of the National Football League, confirmed Saturday that an attempted bribe of an NFL player last season was being investigated by the FBI and a congressional committee.

Kinsel said the House Select Committee on Crime, headed by Rep. Claude Pepper, D-Fla., had access to the information since spring or early summer, but he said he did not know to what extent the committee had delved.

Knight newspapers published in its Saturday editions a story from Washington saying an offensive star in the American Conference had been offered a $10,000 bribe by a former teammate to hold down his team's scores in the final three regular season games last year.

The copyrighted story said the player refused the bribe from a person described as an "old, old buddy" and reported it to NFL officials. The league, in turn, notified the FBI.

Race Puts Up $200 Against CS Title Belt

The Central States professional wrestling championship will be on the line Tuesday night in the Convention Hall ring, Harley Race paying $200 for the opportunity to regain the title.

The big Iowa heavyweight has challenged stocky Omar Atlas to the showdown. Race will hand over the money to the new champion before the match gets under way.

Atlas battled his way past the 255-pounder two weeks ago in St. Joseph to take possession of the title. In a free-swinging clash here last week, the two were disqualified for failing to heed the referee's warnings.

Tangling in the semifinal Tuesday will be Canada's Steve Bolas and the masked Destroyer.

In a special mixed tag team affair, Les Thornton will join with midget Bobo Johnson to oppose heavyweight Benny Ramirez and his midget partner, Little Bruiser.

The two midgets will match strategy in the opening event.

Bruins Bury Bradley And Tie Record

LOS ANGELES (AP) — No. 1 ranked UCLA tied its own second longest national basketball winning streak at 47 games Friday night, burying Bradley 73-38.

The Bruins faced their first deliberate offense of the season in the first half while the defense held Bradley to 10 first-half points, a Pauley Pavillion record low. The Bruins managed 28 points, in the half, most of them in an 18-2 blitz making the score 24-5 with four minutes left in the half.

All-American center Bill Walton had eight blocked shots in the first half to help stall Bradley.

Bradley did not attempt a shot for the first 5:46 of the game and did not score until center Mark Dohner hit a three-point play after 7:37 of the game.

The Braves ended up four for 20 shooting in the half, most coming in the last five minutes of the period.

Walton led all scoring with 16 points followed by Bruin forward Larry Farmer with 12. Dohner topped Bradley with 11.

The oldest expert was telling about some of the things that had happened to him during his 40 years of play. He said, "Most of the things were the fault of my partners, but here is one where I must take some share of the blame.

"The game was rubber bridge. North and West were fair players. East was one of those individuals who loved to play bridge but had a faculty of doing the worst possible thing at every chance to go wrong.

"I didn't have to pass to three no-trump. You can see that six in either minor suit wheels in but I had no idea what my partner might put on the table so when he went to three no-trump, I passed."

"You made three no-trump, didn't you?" asked someone.

"No, I didn't," was the reply. "I ducked the first heart but had to win the continuation. I could have gone right over to dummy and taken the diamond finesse but I didn't know where the king was and I had an extra chance to bring home my contract.

"I played my ace of clubs to see if I might just drop the king from East. Sure enough, East did drop the king. Now the rest of the clubs appeared to be good. I led a second club and played dummy's 10. East discarded a heart and West asked, 'No clubs, partner?'

"East replied that he didn't have any, whereupon West asked him to look carefully. Eventually East produced the jack of clubs which won the trick. He had exposed a heart and had to lead it and I was down two."

What do you do now?

A—Bid four hearts. Your partner can't have much, but you still want to be in game.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Instead of bidding two no-trump, your partner has jumped to three no-trump over your two spades. What do you do now?

Truman Was Target For Bad Mail

NEW YORK (AP) — The White House mail room in 1947 intercepted several letter-bombs sent by Zionist terrorists known as the "Stern Gang" to President Harry Truman and his staff, the former president's daughter has written in a new biography of Truman.

The incident was described in another book in 1949 by Ira R. T. Smith, a White House mail reader. But Margaret Truman Daniel's account, contained in her new book "Harry S Truman," is believed to be the first confirmation by someone in Truman's circle.

In quotations from the book published in Saturday's edition of the New York Times, Mrs. Daniel writes that "a number of cream-colored envelopes" arrived at the White House addressed to the President and various staff members.

They contained envelopes inside marked "Private and Confidential" and, inside these, were potentially lethal devices made of "powdered gelignite, a pencil battery and a detonator rigged to explode the gelignite when the envelope was opened," according to the book.

Mrs. Daniel said the letters were intercepted and given to the Secret Service, which defused them, because similar letters had been mailed to British officials.

Mrs. Daniel does not say why the letters were attributed to the Stern Gang, which was named for Abraham Stern, a militant Zionist killed by the British in 1942.

Smith — in his book, " 'Dear Mr. President....' The Story of Fifty Years in the White House Mail Room" — says the gang claimed responsibility for the letters mailed to Britain.

CBS Warns Space Group Of 'Dangers'

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The Columbia Broadcasting System says the space agency "will be setting a dangerous precedent" if it does not provide the network television feeds during Wednesday's planned launch of the Apollo 17 moon flight.

Space-agency technicians who belong to the same union that is striking CBS have said they will not handle CBS network television feeds during the launch.

A CBS spokesman said Local 660 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (IBEW) notified CBS of the decision Friday.

In New York, Richard Salant, president of CBS News, sent a telegram to NASA administrator Dr. James Fletcher protesting the union move and demanding that the network be provided the television feeds.

"Any other course will be official government discrimination causing us serious loss and — more important — setting a dangerous precedent which would permit the government to control what news organizations can cover an important public event," Salant said.

The network was struck 29 days ago by 1,200 IBEW cameramen, technicians and engineers.

Vote Recount Reduces Brandt Total

BONN, Germany (AP) — A recount of votes from the Nov. 19 landslide re-election of Chancellor Willy Brandt slightly reduced his coalition's new majority in parliament by one seat, it was announced Saturday.

But Brandt's coalition still has well over the number of seats needed to rule.

The federal election office announced that the recount, required by law, gave the Free Democrats 41 seats, one fewer than the number it had won in the preliminary vote count.

The Free Democratic party is the junior coalition partner of Brandt's Social Democrats, who won 230 seats.

Their combined coalition seats total 271—22 more than the minimum needed to formally re-elect Brandt chancellor in parliament later this month.

Under the recount, the opposition Christian Democrats led by Rainer Barzel, picked up one more seat to make their total 177.

Organic Foods Attacked

NEW YORK (AP) — Some organic foods are overpriced, lacking in the nutritional values they claim to offer and show a higher rate of pesticide residues than regular foods, according to testimony from a battery of professional nutritionists.

The health-food critics spoke Friday at a consumer hearing conducted by State Atty. Gen. Louis J. Lefkowitz, to clarify some of the confusion he says "reigns supreme" in the organic-food field.

Pro-organic-food witnesses asked that the entire industry not be faulted for a few "rip-offs," adding that new self-policing programs were being developed.

Dr. Elmer George, director of the state food laboratory, said 30 per cent of 55 organic-food samples tested contained "pesticide residues," whereas 20 per cent of 2,000 normal-food samples showed pesticide traces.

Although there is no single accepted definition of what organic food is, such food is assumed to be grown without pesticides or artifical fertilizer and to contain no additives.

George said 17 organic products — although labeled with such claims as unsprayed, organically grown and no chemical residues — were found to have traces of DDT; DDE, a derivative of DDT; phosphorus, and chlorianted pesticides.

Dr. William Sebrell, former director of the National Institues of Health, said he knew of "no acceptable medical benefits or nutritional advantages" to health foods. But, he said, he knew of no disadvantages and concluded: "Anyone who wants to waste their money should be free to do so."

Commission Approves 15 Projects

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Fifteen new sewage treatment projects costing almost $20 million have been approved by the Missouri Clean Water Commission for funding when the money becomes available.

Funded on the basis of 75 per cent from federal and 25 per cent from state funds, the projects call for $4,897,276 in state money and $14,691,823 from federal grants.

Another 14 projects were approved for increases in grants — $491,640 from the state and $1,083,857 from federal grants.

Here are the new projects approved, including the amounts of state and federal money, with state grants listed first:

Holcomb $29,325 and $87,975; St. Joseph $3,875,027 and $11,625,081; Grandview $25,750 and $77,250; Licking $106,250 and $318,750;

St. Charles $31,000 and $93,000; Metropolitan Sewer District of St. Louis $31,250 and $93,750; Risco $24,475 and $73,425; Metropolitan Sewer District of St. Louis $16,250 and $48,750;

Mountain Grove $22,800 and $68,400; Mount Vernon $218,562 and $655,686; Crystal City $26,483 and $79,444;

Princeton $10,900 and $32,700; second Princeton project $53,400 and $160,200; Dearborn (subject to site approval) $31,829 and $95,487; Neosho $393,975 and $1,181,925.

Open Meetings Bills Are in House and Senate

By JIM CHURCH
Associated Press Writer

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Three bills, two in the House and one in the Senate, have been introduced to open up meetings of public agencies in varying degrees.

They were among 152 measures offered Friday in the first day of pre-filing for the 1973 legislative session.

An open meetings bill failed to pass in the last session and the Citizens Lobby failed to obtain engough signatures to put the question to a vote in the form of a constitutional amendment.

The lobby now has half of the signatures required to call a constitutional convention in hopes of writing a strong open meetings law. Missouri has an open records law, but no open meetings law, meaning that the general public could be excluded from meetings of school boards, city councils and other government bodies.

A bill by Rep. James G. Baker, D-Kansas City, says flatly that "all public meetings shall be open to the public at all times."

The bill describes an open meeting as a meeting of any public body where public business is discussed or formal action is taken.

All minutes or transcripts of public meetings would be open to the public and the news media.

The bill exempts "any body exercising a judicial function," the state militia or national guard or any group discussing "security," any meeting pertaining to the proposed purchase or sale of property, proposed legal actions or litigation involving a public governmental body.

Also exempted would be any meeting on the illegitimacy, adoption, mental or physical health, scholastic graduation, probation, parole, employment, promotion, demotion, discipline or firing of an individual.

Circuit courts would enforce the act by injunction upon presentation of a petition by any citizen.

The bill is similar to one introduced by the new president pro tem of the Senate, William J. Cason, D-Clinton, and a duplicate of the Cason bill by Rep. Vernon King, D-Lawson.

Cason's bill—the first one in the Senate and already the subject of controversy—has a section on exemptions, and the last sentence of the section says:

"In all other cases closed meetings may be used only for the purpose of discussion."

Newsmen and the Mid-Missouri chapter of Sigma Delta Chi, the professional journalism fraternity, have expressed fears that the sentence would give carte blanche to legislators and other public officials to discuss their views privately and merely make the vote public.

The Sigma Delta Chi group drafted an amendment Thursday night at a Columbia meeting, whereby the sentence in question would read:

"Closed meetings may be used only for the purpose of discussion of matters set out in this section."

The section on exemptions from the law, in Cason's bill, reads:

"Meetings, records, or votes of judges or a jury during the deliberation of a verdict, meetings of the state militia or national guard or any part thereof in performing their duties in regard to matters of security, any meeting, record, or vote pertaining to legal actions, causes of action, or litigation involving a public governmental body, criminal proceedings against a particular individual, and proceedings involving the legitimacy, illegitimacy, adoption, mental health, physical health, scholastic graduation, public subsidy determination statements or filed taxation statements of a particular individual may be a closed meeting, closed record or closed vote."

Damaged

Unfavorable weather has delayed the soybean and corn harvest in Missouri. These soybeans are in a field across the river from the Missouri Capitol building. Crop estimates are being revised downward. Many of the stalks have broken over and much of the crop will be missed by the combines that will harvest the fields when the ground gets dry or freezes. (UPI)

LIKE GREAT SOUND AND MAGNIFICENT STYLING!

Whatever your budget and whatever your decorating preference . . . you'll find that we have just the right Magnavox stereo for you! Acknowledged as the world leader in console stereo, Magnavox puts the same degree of excellence into the crafting of each exquisitely designed cabinet as it puts into the advanced solid-state acoustical components . . . to bring you a fine furniture masterpiece that will be treasured through the years . . . as well as an instrument that will bring you wonderful listening pleasure—from Stereo FM/AM radio, your favorite recordings, or tape. Shown here are but four of our many Magnavox stereo models—all offering the brilliant performance and innovative styling for which Magnavox is famous. Make this your year to give yourself and your family a truly distinctive and most enjoyable gift—a magnificent Magnavox stereo.

A. Model 3473—in unique Spanish Drum Table styling, conceals a six speaker sound system, a pull-out stereo FM/AM radio-phono and ample storage space for records. Also in Provincial, Contemporary and Early American styles—it is truly a stereo in disguise! $369.50

B. Model 3522—"The Pedestal" is from the innovative Stereorama® Collection, seven startlingly original and beautiful shapes for stereo sound. It contains a Stereo FM/AM Radio with 8-Track Cartridge Player and four speakers in an Air-Suspension System. And, it takes up just slightly more than one square foot of floor space! $298.50

C. Model 3454—in rustic Early American styling, has a stereo FM/AM Radio-Phonograph, plus a built-in 8-Track Cartridge Player. An exceptional value, it is also available in Contemporary and Mediterranean styling. All look as good as they sound! $349.50

D. Model 3346—in handsome Spanish styling, is modest in price but big in performance. Only 36" wide, it is ideal for smaller rooms or apartments . . . and will bring you great listening with its Stereo FM/AM Radio-Phonograph and four speakers. Early American and Contemporary styles available, too. $219.50

Christmas Gift Guide

Cathy McRoy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Larry McRoy, 2504 South Stewart, helps Mrs. Ruth O'Bannon, Route 2, a gift wrapper in one Sedalia department store, wrap a present for one of her friends. Like many other children this Christmas, Cathy will be giving as well as receiving many gifts.

The Sedalia Democrat-Capital has planned this Christmas Gift Guide to help area readers find new ideas for gift selections and to make holiday shopping days more enjoyable. Tips for holiday entertaining and home decorating are also included.

A Festive Face Is Deep Down Clean

All that holiday partying! You miss a little sleep here, eat some extra goodies there. You remember. It happens every year: then comes the morning you look at your face, and (sob) the rest of the holidays loom unprettily.

No reason to let your glamour go gloomy this year. Your face should reflect a glowing Christmas spirit, but it can't if your own spirit is out of sorts. All because of a few, but fun, holiday indulgences.

Indulge, by all means. But this year vow to be aware of things like how late it is . . . how much you've eaten . . how little time you've taken for skin care.

Here's some holiday festive-face therapy you can do for yourself easily and inconspicuously (so they'll all wonder how you do all you do and still look so good!):

Diet. Your face and skin are mirrors of your general health, and good diet is the foundation on which to build. You already know about greens and yellows and fruits and fish (all fresh, when possible). But also try drinking at least three glasses of water a day. (Hot water is even better.)

Proper skin cleansing. It's one of the cardinal rules for beautiful young-looking skin.

Fresh air. Get plenty of it because it maintains skin tone.

Sleep and rest. Relax for a period each day with your feet higher than your head. A slant board is great, but a pile of pillows will do.

Be happy. Tension is the cause of many of your skin's upsets. Often, all you have to say to yourself is "Slow down!"

Protection against the weather. Too much sun and too little moisture team up to age skin. Use lots of moisturizer, everywhere.

Careful cosmetics. Select ones geared to your skin and its special needs. Most faces are a combination of dry, oily and normal and each part should be treated separately. Use loose, translucent powder; pressed powder tends to clog pores.

Whether the therapy is for your own skin — or for that boy or girl just beginning to care about skin problems — make this holiday a healthy one. Remember, it's your only face — keep it clean to make it festive.

The most famous gift-giver, known to American children as Santa Claus, was introduced to this country as St. Nicholas by early Dutch settlers. St. Nick was the Archbishop of Myra and, according to legend, he learned of a poor man who had no dowries for his three daughters. A generous man who wished to remain anonymous in his good deeds, St. Nicholas dropped gold pieces for the girls' dowries down the chimney of their home. Some of the gold fell into stockings.

Choose Quality Gifts

A gift should say "quality," no matter what its price. A well-made present of obviously high quality is very flattering — it says that, as far as you're concerned, the recipient deserves the best. No matter what you're buying, you can be assured of good quality if you choose time-tested brands, and items which carry a simple, unconditional guarantee.

Jars Transformed By Imagination and Glue

For special gifts this Christmas, why not create imaginative surprises from baby food jars? In this way you accomplish two things. People love to receive a personalized present; and you're helping our environment by reusing these handy containers.

The little jars can be transformed into any number of practical and useful objects. Check the following suggestions as a beginning. Then let your imagination go and you'll come up with your own ideas.

If there isn't a baby at your house, arrange to get the jars from a family with one.

For Mothers, Brides, Aunts and Grandmothers: Make a spice set; a trio to hold buttons and sewing paraphernalia; matched jars to hold artist's supplies, or a refrigerator set for garlic, lemon wedges, parsley sprigs or herb butter. Decorate the lids and label the contents.

For the Family: There always seem to be collections of little things needing storage space. And almost anyone would welcome holders for stationery items (paper clips, rubber bands, staples, and postage stamps); and a little girl's pony-tail holders and barrettes. Store a boy's marbles, model-making equipment and "junk;" baby's needs — cotton puffs, safety pins, and piggy bank; and use them for the workshop (plastic lids that hook into pegboard are available in craft shops especially for baby food jars).

For an easy-to-make hanging holder, anchor standard baby food jar lids on a block of wood with screws. Stain or varnish the wood; enamel the lids, add a decorative hanger or hood, and twist the jars into the lids. That's all it takes to make a gift that is certain to be appreciated throughout the year.

Gifts from the kitchen: Fill baby food jars with your own refrigerator or freezer jams, marmalades, relishes, dessert toppings or sauces. Screw on lids. If jars are to be frozen, allow at least one-half inch headspace at top; liquid mixtures like jams expand as they freeze and if there is no room, the glass will break. Seal the lids with freezer tape and keep frozen constantly until used.

Home canning in baby food jars is definitely not recommended. When baby food is commercially processed, the lids are vacuum sealed by special machines. Jar lids do not have an airtight seal when replaced by hand, and contents may be subject to spiolage. You can seal jams and jellies with paraffin in the jars.

Dress up the jars with colorful toppers cut from felt. Make a cone shape, then glue or sew on cut-outs or sequins for Santa Clauses or Christmas trees. Add a loop of gold braid and each felt decoration becomes an ornament for the Christmas tree.

Baby Food Jar Festival

Easy home-made gifts begin with baby food jars, felt and wood. The containers can be filled with favorite freezer or refrigerator jams, jellies or sauces and topped with a felt Santa.

Gift of Lights Brightens Day

Often the so-called "house" gift solves many problems at the Yuletide season. A glamorous lamp can be the perfect answer here because there are so many styles and finishes to choose from as well as one priced to fit almost any budget.

Lighting centers offer hundreds of models to choose from in contemporary and traditional styles fashioned in ceramic, fine woods and metal.

New from one manufacturer is a group of lamps especially distinctive for their handrubbed woods, classic finishes and burnished metals.

Bases are contoured from familiar objects of the past and present — candlesticks, oil lamps, urns, vases and miniature pylons. Shade materials include denim, silk shantung and opaque chromecoat parchment.

Centuries of fine craftsmanship are reflected in the hand finished woods which expose unusual grains of such traditional materials as distressed chestnut, pecan, oak and walnut.

Brushing

Snoopy Power Toothbrush, operated by batteries, is designed to fit small mouths. Makes the brushing ritual fun.

Children Make Horns-of-Plenty

Children will enjoy using heavy colored construction paper to make horns-of-plenty decorated with paste-on stars, ribbons and bits of holly. When filled with candy, nuts or glazed fruits and hung around the tree, the horns-of-plenty become instant snack servers that can be refilled as often as necessary.

A 'Bonus' Gift Shows Thoughtfulness Twice

No one needs to be reminded that when it comes to gift giving, "it's the thought that counts."

An easy way to increase the thought-quotient of most any Christmas gift you are considering for a friend or member of the family is to ask yourself — "what logically goes with this?"

Take a book, for instance. Why not add a personalized bookmark? Maybe even decorative bookends.

Giving your son a sports jacket? Make it an ensemble. Add tie and handkerchief. If it's to be a tie, look for a matching or complementary handkerchief.

Or if you are picking out earrings for a friend, check for bracelets and-or a necklace that go together nicely with the earrings.

For a man, a new razor is an appreciated gift. It'll be all the more appreciated if accompanied by a goodly supply of blades, shaving cream, and after shave lotion, and don't forget styptic pencil to take care of the almost inevitable nicks and cuts.

If your choice is an electric shaver, don't worry about the styptic pensil; , nicks and cuts are virtually impossible with an electric shaver.

Let's say you're buying a record for a teen age rock 'n' roll fan. Instead of just getting the latest Rolling Stones album, see if you can get a "middle" and "early" Stones record too. That way, you can give a whole Rolling Stones history.

Flowers are another Christmas favorite. But why not add a vase if you are ordering loose flowers instead of an arrangement. If you are giving a potted plant, you can accompany it with a gay watering can from the dime store and maybe even a book on plant care.

It's the thought that counts and ensemble gift giving shows that you thought enough go think a little more.

Cleaning winter woolens for the holidays? You can save by using coin machines, but you may miss the professional finish. Magic sizing helps you give woolens that professional touch at home. After cleaning garments, spray with sizing, then press. Sizing restores the "like-new" look to woolens, and adds a fresh, bouncy feel.

Sporty Two-Wheeler Is Toddler Pleaser

Wide-Track Whiz-Kid

Just in time for Christmas, here's a rugged two-wheeler that will put a smile on the face of any toddler ... even if he's as young as 18 months. The super-wide barrel tires on this Mini-Bike give the safety and stability needed by the very young.

Cycling has become a national pastime for millions of Americans. Pity the tiny toddler who looks with envy and awe at older brothers and sisters or playmates because they're riding a two-wheeler, and he's peddling around on a tricycle.

Santa can remedy that situation this Christmas by bringing a new two-wheeler designed specially for children as young as 1½ years. This Mini-Bike sports super-wide barrel tires that provide the safety and stability needed by the very young child.

Imagine the delight on a toddler's face when he or she discovers this rugged two-wheel Mini-Bike under the tree Christmas morning. The child can jump on and begin to ride immediately because the wide blow-molded tires are equally at home indoors or out — even on sand and gravel.

While adult bike riders pedal to exercise and strengthen their legs, the mini-biker will get exercise and bouncing fun on the strong steel spring seat. He'll develop balance and coordination too while biking.

In bright red and black with white safety rubber hand grips, the Mini-Bike has a sturdy chrome tubular frame. It comes fully assembled (a fact that should please Dads) and ready to ride.

Add Medolic Touch To Gift Wrapping

For those of you who like to add a melodic touch to the Yule holidays try gift wrapping to the tune of Christmas. In fact, there's a whole medly of Christmas gift packages you can "compose" right from the pages of a holiday songbook.

For the theme of Christmas melodies, try making a frosty Christmas tree package with the musical background of "O Christmas Tree" ("O Tannenbaum"). The icy fir needles are made of gift ribbon that's been slit and crisscrossed, then placed in descending layers on the package.

Bright Ideas In Holiday Make-up

The holidays are a time for experimenting with bright new ideas in makeup, for a look that matches festive clothes and occasions.

But if there's a doubt that blotches and "blears" will spoil this special "decorating" art, take the advice of beauty experts and try cosmetics that are free of all known irritants and allergens.

It's easy now to identify ingredients that can cause allergic reaction, by checking the consumer formularly issued by Ar-Ex, which lists all of the contents of its hypo-allergenic cosmetics. This handy guide — the only one of its kind found at cosmetic counters — also flags up those trouble-makers that must be left out of truly hypo-allergenic cosmetics, so they can be recognized and avoided at all times.

Translucent shades of make-up, mascaras and eye shadows, lotions and creams for the skin; vivid lipsticks — all make up the holiday face beautifully and in perfect safety.

This season, both dazzling evenings and informal cheery afternoons focus make-up interest on the eyes, according to beauty experts, with lively color on lips, against a lighter skin tone. The daytime eye has light, warm touches; for evening eyes darken with subdued color.

It's a wise and sensitive woman who saves the most careful Christmas decorating for herself.

Party-Wise Tips From Bartender

To separate an egg yolk from the white, shake the uncracked egg so that the yolk flips down toward the rounded end. Then break a small hole in the pointed end, shake downwards gently, and out comes only the white. The yolk is left all by itself in the shell.

The most efficient way to get lemon essence in your cafe espresso is to hold peel between thumb and forefinger, rough side down toward the liquid. Then snapping the sides of the peel together quickly, you can see drops of lemon oil appear on the surface of the coffee. Rubbing the rim of the cup of glass with the inner side or the peel is not nearly as effective.

If you want a long, unbroken lemon peel spiral to decorate a ginger ale, or a highball, use a sharp paring knife to cut the skin on a spiral three quarters of the way around the lemon. Leaving the cut piece hang, turn the lemon and start back from the other end.

A gift is an announcement. It should say Merry Christmas, Happy Birthday, I Love You, or whatever you want to convey. Don't lose sight of this function, and don't fail to enclose a card that expresses the sentiments you want to convey. Don't just sign your name to a printed card — a few sincere phrases of your own devising add an extra dimension to any gift.

Unusual Puzzles Are Developed for Pre-Schoolers

A major toy manufacturer this Christmas is offering a tempting package of 12 unusual puzzles which it has had made under a special arrangement with a Dutch manufacturer.

The new puzzles, called "Pick-up & Peek" puzzles, are geared for the two to six-year-old age group. Twelve different subjects are offered, including Children Around The World, Nursery Rhymes, Farm Animals, Occupations and other, similar subjects.

Each puzzle is solid wood finished in bright, non-toxic colors. The puzzle pieces have non-removable "easy lift" plastic knobs so they can be removed to reveal a picture discovery under each. These pictures relate to and amplify the subject of the puzzle.

A number of the puzzles have pieces designed to stand; thus they become toys in their own right.

Play Family Airport and Play Family Houseboat are new additions to the successful Play Family series which was initiated several years ago.

Pick-up and Peek

One of a new series of educational puzzles for pre-schoolers is made of hardwood in bright colors. The cut-outs are fitted with lift-up knobs for easier play.

The Airport has two hinged sections which permit a child to create many different layouts. The item, which will retail in the $17-18 price range, includes the popular Play Family Fun Jet (which is already in the line as a separate item), a helicopter, six play family figures (including a stewardess and helicopter pilot) four pieces of luggage, a line tractor, two baggage trucks, a fuel truck, and two 2-passenger cars with "trunks" for luggage.

The top level of the terminal has a parking port for the helicopter. A crank, which turns the baggage conveyor and also spins the helicopter's rotor, activates a realistic "whomp, whomp" copter sound. The lower level of the Airport has a check-in counter and access ramps. The fuel truck hose fits all vehicles including the jet which has a realistic whirring sound and a pilot whose head turns left and right.

Play Family Airport is solidly constructed from hardboard, wood and plastic. It is intended for ages two to eight.

Play Family Houseboat is a land and water toy. On land it can be used as a pulltoy which makes a realistic "putt-putt" sound. In the water the boat and all accessory parts are floatable.

Included in the item are five play family passengers, dining table and two matching chairs, barbeque grill, two deck lounges (with three "resting" positions), a sturdy little speedboat and two play family life preservers. All accessories are removable.

When pulled the "skipper" looks port and starboard as the helm wheel turns left and right. The sun deck, which tilts up to allow easy access to the main deck, also becomes a convenient carrying handle.

The Houseboat is designed and colored in every detail. It is intended for children two to eight-years old and provides for versatile play situations which can help children develop manipulative skills as well as powers of imagination.

Consumers questioned have indicated they consider the toys and puzzles good values, particularly in view of the educational and constructive aspects of their designs.

Harmonica Gift Is 'In' This Year

This Christmas a really "in" gift will be a harmonica, the happy little instrument that is being heard loud and clear on records, radio, television and on countless campuses across the nation.

Literally anyone can play the harmonica. It's as simple as breathing in and out — and in fact, that is how it's played.

The sturdy, compact musical mighty mite is especially popular with the younger generation, thanks to its widespread use by prominent rock and blues stars.

When you give a harmonica as a gift, you'll be giving a gift of music that will last long after the Christmas tinsel is packed away.

Olympic Skier Tells How To Choose a Parka

Whether you are a skier in the expert class or just ready to tackle your first mogul, your ski parka is an important part of your equipment. And before you go shopping for skiwear, it's best to know what features to look for.

"A ski parka should be carefully designed for protection from the elements, comfort and convenience," stated Othmar Schneider, famed Olympic skier and member of the sports advisory staff of a large retail chain.

Schneider stated several features to look for in a parka. They include zippered outer pockets plus an extra inside snap pocket, lift ticket tab and detachable hood with its own carrying pocket.

"The two-way zipper is important for all parkas over hip length," he said. "When on the chair lift, you can unzip the bottom of the jacket and still keep the top closed."

position. And sleeves should have ample room for bulky sweaters.

To keep out wind and cold," he said "make sure the sleeve cuffs are either the knit cuff type, inner knit storm cuff or snap adjustable cuff. Any of the three types is suitable."

Schneider also added, make sure the parka is cut close to the hips. This preserves body heat and helps keep out the cold.

A Two-in-One Gift Is Practical and Special

By AILEEN SNODDY

Sometimes the perfect gift for someone on your Christmas list does not seem quite complete. You feel it needs a little something more.

This year why not give a two-for-one gift? The complete present. A very special gift complemented by a more "practical" item.

Let's start with the young married on your list. The girl who tries to have a candlelight dinner just for the two of them. How about a gift of a sterling silver candle snuffer? Include two chunky bayberry candles to be used as a centerpiece with the addition of Christmas holly and greens. Another combination might be a set of elegant sterling silver demitasse spoons, along with a generous supply of their favorite espresso coffee.

For the "not-so-newlywed" who hasn't added to her sterling service for years how about a sterling silver cheese knife with a selection of her favorite cheeses (a nice, extra-added touch might be a cheeseboard, too).

The young career girl who's just starting out on her first job and in a first apartment can always use a "two-for-one" gift. A delightful one would be one or two spreaders with your favorite hors d'oeuvre recipe.

Probably one of the most difficult people to get just the right present for is Grandma. She seems to have everything — or does she? Does she, for instance, have an up-to-the-minute picture of her grandchildren — or you? Take a new family shot and march right into your favorite jeweler to get a handsome sterling silver frame.

Finally, did you know, statistically, there are almost as many brides at Christmas as in June? For the girl who will soon be starting her first home, the complete present would seem the most appropriate. There's a good chance she's already started her flatware service, but what about those extra or fill-in pieces that have to be put off till tomorrow? Extras, like a sterling silver cake carver, gift-wrapped with a china cake plate or the handsome sterling silver salad spoon and salad fork with tiny, gem-like cruets for oil and vinegar.

Have Your Cake And Diet, Too

Countless diets are wrecked by holiday fare: at one sitting, a hearty eater can put away 2,000 or more calories, the calorie requirement for a whole day. And that doesn't include second helpings. Indulgence takes its toll in extra pounds, blooming waistlines and creeping regret.

As you sit lazy and heavy in an armchair listening to the cacophony of indigestion, think of the ways you could have had your cake and a diet, too.

You could have passed over the fudge brownies and settled for an apple or a handful of carrot or celery sticks when you decorated the Christmas tree.

You know dinner was going to be big, so why the big breakfast?

Had you watched all those calories before dinner, you could have asked for a second helping of turkey or ham and taken a bigger than usual slab of pie or cake without a nagging conscience.

Gifts That Last, Are First on Lists

Every Christmas season many of us bombard the shops and spend hundreds of dollars on novelties that are often not really wanted or needed. We tend to forget about the real chance we have to substantially enhance our recipients' surroundings and get carried away by holiday whimsy.

Increasingly, however, people are beginning to see the benefits of thinking practical in spite of being revved-up with the Christmas spirit, by considering useful items such as sheets, accent furniture and household basics.

A good example of a useful gift would be one of the versatile, vinyl veneer occasional tables. The multifunctional tables feature elegant fronts of walnut and rosewood in alternating panels edged with chrome. Their sleek design makes them suitable for use in almost every room and decor, providing hidden storage space as well as a decorateve accent.

The sturdy vinyl veneer surfaces resist mars, scratches, glass rings, heat and warping and never needs polishing. They would be a perfect selection for the young family wanting a look of elegance that's high in upkeep and low on maintenance or an established couple who need something new to spark up a tired decor.

The tables, shown recently in a Christmas setting, are set off by a unique decorative treatment. New York designer Emy Leeser came up with a way to skip the tree route and still maintain the presence of Christmas. She applied the decorations directly to a room divider. In this case she used a cloth because the divider was papered and susceptible to mars, although masking tape would work well on painted dividers. If your divider is of the wooden shelved variety, the possibilities are as limitless as your imagination.

Let new approaches to Christmas gift giving and decor make this season the most satisfying ever. By taking a practical interest in the gifts you buy, you can be sure they won't wind up being stashed away with next year's decorations.

Girl Scout Decorations

Members of Washington Junior Girl Scout Troop No. 358 will take Christmas to their homes after making wreath mobiles from aluminum pie pans and silver garland that have small plastic cups dangling in their centers. Making the decorations are Miss Dawn McLaughlin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill McLaughlin, 1402 South Mildred; Sarah Diefenderfer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Diefenderfer, 2309 East 10th and Miss Pamela Hatfield, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Hatfield, 2300 East 10th. (Democrat-Capital Photo)

In days gone by, strings of chewy popcorn balls, gaily-wrapped candies, bright paper chains and thickly-iced cookies dangled from the family Christmas tree, delighting the eyes and tummies of young and old alike.

Maybe this is the year to stop buying a lot of THINGS for your family and friends at Christmas time. Instead of presenting them with superfluous luxury objects, why not take a more meaningful approach to Christmas gifts?

The Gift She Wants Before Christmas

One-third of the nation's women spend between 7 to 10 hours a day completing household chores, while another 38 per cent take 4 to 6 hours each day, according to a national survey conducted by the Home Care Institute. Almost 60 per cent of today's homemakers lack an organized schedule for accomplishing housekeeping tasks, the survey revealed. Perhaps that's why they're spending so much time on housework.

With the busy holiday season upon us, the average homemaker will have even more cleaning, baking and shopping to do. If she wants to accomplish all this work and still have time to relax and enjoy the holiday festivities with her family and friends, she'll need a well-planned schedule.

The Home Care Institute advises women to prepare a regular housekeeping schedule which is flexible enough to accomodate family routines. In fact, the homemaker may want to enlist help from family members, who under normal circumstances also spend several hours each week performing housekeeping chores, according to an Institute's survey.

Figures revealed that 56.4 per cent of the husbands help out around the house with fully 70 per cent of them spending 6 to 10 hours each week on household chores. The kids weren't far behind — half of them work 6 to 10 hours a week around the home and 10 per cent put in more than 10 hours. With all this help and an efficient daily and weekly work routine, all mom's homemaking goals can be accomplished before the last-minute holiday rush.

Experts advise that you space heavy cleaning chores over a few weeks prior to the holidays, so you won't exhaust yourself washing windows or waxing floors the day before you're giving a big party.

In beautifying your home for the holidays, make the best possible use of the many appliances you have on hand. For instance the vacuum cleaner, rated by the women interviewed as the most important appliance in helping them keep their home beautiful, was not used to full advantage by 63 per cent of the women. In the Home Care Institute survey, only 43 per cent of the respondents reported using this multi-use appliance more than once-a-week.

To speed up housework and lighten the work load during the holidays, here are some creative, helpful hints for using your vacuum from the Home Care Institute:

When unpacking holiday decorations, clean ornaments and tree lights with the soft bristle dusting brush attachment on your vacuum. Use the same brush to brighten felt decorations, those made of synthetic materials or even artificial wreaths and door displays. If you decorate with pine cones and save them from year to year, they have a habit of collecting dust which the brush or crevice tool can whisk away.

Special holiday tableclothes, runners and Christmas tree skirts can be freshened up with your vacuum's upholstery brush. This saves on laundering and cleaning bills.

If you plan to store your wrapped gifts — providing you've done your shopping early, of course — they are bound to accumulate dust if hidden in a closet or under a bed. Before placing them under the tree, give them a light going over with the dusting brush attachment to renew their shiny bright wrappings.

Before bringing a live Christmas tree into your home, vacuum branches lightly with the dusting brush or suction hose to remove dead needles and excess bark. This prevents a trail of needles from accumulating between entryway and living room. If yours is an artificial tree, brighten up its branches with a light wisp of the dusting brush before decorating it.

Loose flour, sugar and nuts left on countertops and floors after Christmas baking can be cleaned up quickly with an upholstery brush or dusting brush so they won't be tracked throughout the house.

At dressy holiday parties, you'll want to look your finest even if wearing last year's fashions. Freshen up formal clothes and furs by going over them gently with the upholstery brush to remove lint and top soil.

By following these housekeeping tips now, homemakers can be well on their way to enjoying the holiday season without having to face a last-minute rush.

Let Her Gift Say Love

By HELEN HENNESSY
NEA Women's Editor

What sort of holiday gifts bring a glow to the eyes of every girl from 6 to 60? Anything you select, when it is offered with love and chosen after careful consideration for the kind of person she is.

So take notebook and pencil in hand and plan your Christmas list for the ladies — giving thought to the individual likes and interests of each. This precaution will help even the most timid man to look at home right in the center aisle of "ladies lingerie."

For the financially well-endowed, both the selection and the shopping itself are a simpler matter than for the average working chap. There are diamonds, real pearls, mink and chinchilla hats, jackets and stoles and lots of trinkets in real gold. And the places where these are sold generally preclude the jostle of crowds.

For those with a moderate income there are perfumes, cosmetic aids, make-up mirrors, electric curlers.

With separates so big in fashion you can choose from slacks, sweaters, belts, blazers and vests. And boots are "big" even though her feet may be small.

There are some gifts to buy that will bring joy not only to you and your girl but to many others less fortunate.

Many wonderful things made by the blind come from the Lighthouse and make delightful gifts. There are scents, too, made by Flame of Hope and the price you pay goes to help the mentally retarded.

Gifts for women run the gamut from ornate earrings to valuable reference books, from ski togs and equipment to ranges and refrigerators. And for the gal who dwells in a college dorm or a studio apartment posters make quick decorating tricks possible.

Handbags for daytime or evening are always welcome gifts.

Fake fur flies in the most unexpected fashion areas — from hats to jumpers to boots, vests and coats and will make a sure-fire hit with the ecology-minded miss.

If the most important lass on your yule list is about three-feet high how about a pretty party dress or a pint-sized fake fur coat? Or an at-home wear ensemble with matching slippers that will outshine mom's?

For girls of all ages there is a plethora of pretty holiday presents available. Team them with thought and love from you and a truly happy Christmas should be the result.

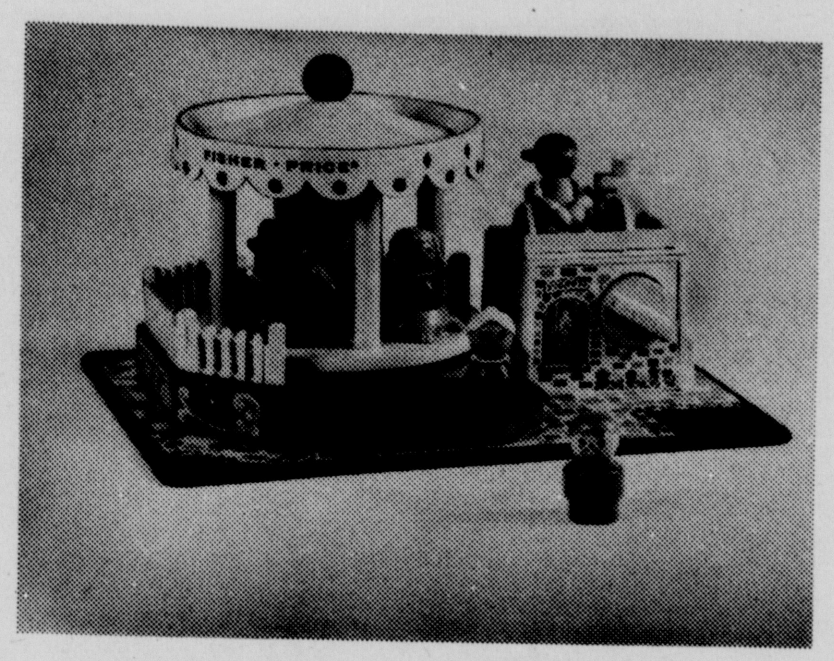
Develop Eye-Hand Coordination

"What's In My Pockets?" A Surprise Book, is the name of two similar items, one geared for girls and the other for boys. The books are intended for youngsters aged two to six. Each look and learn cloth book teaches children about different types of pockets and fasteners and helps develop eye-hand coordination. The fasteners are oversized and rustproof so that small children can easily manipulate them.

Each book contains eight pockets: a buttom pocket, zipper pocket, patch pocket, slash pocket, sticky pocket, hip poclet, snap pocket, and even a secret pocket. Each pocket, hip pocket, snap pocket, and even a secret pocket. Each pocket contains a "surprise" — a removable plastic picture disc

Each cloth page is beautifully illustrated and contains a verse describing and challenging the child to guess what's in the pocket. The book is made of high grade, soft but durable cotton and is colorfast.



Merry Merry-Go-Round

A new music box will stimulate the imagination of any child who has ever been on a real merry-go-round. When wound, the toy revolves to sounds of the "Skater's Waltz."

Season's Eatings

Berries are a treat for many birds. Bunch sprigs of berries into clusters and tie them on the tree with red waterproof ribbons. Bright red hol , or dogwood berries, pewter gray bayberry, brilliant orange mountain ash, slate blue juniper or dark red sumac can be used. To give the birds a real holiday treat, tie on tiny bunches of fresh grapes.

Keep bread and cracker crumbs, stale corn bread, rolls or biscuits, melon, squash and pumpkin seeds, pieces of suet and bacon fat. The remnants of poultry dressing, cereals that are no longer crisp, stale potato chips or the few peanuts left in a can can also be used. To make the pudding, melt the suet and bacon fat, add some peanut butter and crumble and stir in the other ingredients.

Some of this mixture can be put in star-shaped pudding molds to harden. When they are solid, remove the molds, run a piece of heavy florist's wire through each and make a loop to hang on the tree.

Thoughts About the Act of Giving

A gift must have a proper setting. Psychologists say the act of giving must be a bit of make believe, a little play-acting between two people. This holds true no matter how long you've known each other, or how unsentimental you believe you are. Never hurriedly give something as you dash out of the door, or as a peace offering after an unpleasant moment. Be relaxed, establish a pleasant mood, talk around the subject first: "I thought of you this afternoon. . ." or "I saw the most marvelous. . ."

A gift should not create anxiety. A fragile, hard-to-care-for or easy-to-lose present may make the recipient anxious, and destroy most of his or her pleasere in the gift. An overly lavish present can also create anxiety and embarrassment.

'Straw' Basket

Homemade Gift Gives Pleasure

By AILEEN SNODDY

Everyone appreciates the very personal touch associated with a homemade gift. One that is both decorative and useful brings double pleasure to the receiver of such a thoughtful item. A good project for an older child or a group of adults is gold braided "straw" basket. The basket filled with ribbon or metallic ornaments makes a simple centerpiece.

To make such a basket you will need:

Eight spools gold Lustre-Cord, 15 nine-inch pipe cleaners, heavy cardboard, white glue, florist wire No. 24, scissors, knife, compass and pencil.

To make the basket base: Cut 3 six-inch circles of cardboard. Cover the surface of one circle with a spiral of Lustre-Cord. Starting at center, wrap towards outside, gluing as you go. Mark edge of other circle into 15 equal spaces. Cut 15 nine-inch lengths of Lustre-Cord. Remove cotton core from each. Insert pipe cleaners into Lustre-Cord. Glue one end of each to mark on circle. Glue Lustre-Cord covered circle over them.

To make sides of basket: Make a four-strand braid by weaving right-hand strand across all others. Repeat with each new right-hand strand. Bend pipe cleaners up and weave braid through them. Side of basket is eight braids high. Glue braid to each pipe cleaner on inside. Bend top of each pipe cleaner downward on outside of basket to form "V" with bottom of adjacent pipe cleaner. Insert excess between layers of cardboard base. Make another four-strand braid to circle outside edge of base. Glue in place.

To make the handle: Cut four 24-inch lengths of Lustre-Cord. Remove core. Insert florist wire in each. Make 13-inch braid with four inches unbraided at each end. Form "Y" at each end by twisting wired Lustre-Cord into pairs. Cut end two inches from end of braid. Hook ends onto basket.

Bring Family Together in A Photograph

In the "Good Old Days" the holiday season was a time for all the relatives to get together for the exchange of presents, a good feast and a jolly time. Today some families still manage to visit on Christmas day, but many more find themselves separated geographically and unable to get together for the occasion.

A Christmas present that helps everyone keep in touch is a professional portrait photograph. A portrait of the entire family, or just the children, even Mom and Dad alone, would be welcomed by grandparents, aunts and uncles alike. A professional photograph can show how much everyone has grown and changed over the months and years; it is an ideal way to reintroduce the family to old friends and seldom-seen relatives.

Photography experts recommend scheduling the portrait sitting now as pre-holiday weeks are the photographers' busiest. If children are in school or away from home, try to arrange an appointment for a vacation day or weekend when the whole family can get together. Many photographers will take portraits in their studios or in private homes. Some will photograph in favorite outdoor settings.

You may wish to do a little "window shopping" before picking the studio photographer. Ask friends who've had portraits taken for their recommendations; visit different studios to see the sample photographs on display and talk with the photographer. Once you've selected a professional, discuss with him the type of portrait you wish and the uses you plan for the photograph.

The photographer will suggest clothing styles and colors as well as the location for the portrait sitting. His advice comes from years of experience, from knowing what colors photograph best and what styles flatter most. During the portrait sitting, he will suggest different poses. All you need do is relax and let the artist in the professional photographer take command.

You will receive several proofs from the sitting from which you can choose the portrait you like best. Studios generally keep negatives on files for several years so that customers may reorder as the need arises. But, consider the many immediate uses for a portrait taken now.

One portrait sitting can yield a harvest of Christmas gifts and greetings. Large color prints are suitable for framing and display in any home setting. Today, many decorators select living rooms or hallways to hang the treasured family portraits. Others may choose to include new professional photographers in any wall display of artwork or other photos.

Portraits can be used for special holiday greetings, also long after wrapping paper and tinsel have been thrown away the portraits can be framed for tabletop display or included in photo albums.

To keep in touch this holiday season, plan now to send a little love in the form of a portrait photograph or one of the personal, portrait greeting cards.

How to Save Shoppers' Feet

Armed with master lists, charge plates, and an extra reserve of energy, thousands of shoppers soon will start on holiday gift-buying rounds.

This Christmas, as always, the greatest burden of holiday shopping falls on the feet. Even without a load of packages, footcare experts report, the average person brings down tons of weight onto the feet every day.

To help feet step lively and lightly along the department store circuit, the foot comfort people have these suggestions:

Get off to a fresh start by powdering feet liberally. Don't forget to spray powder on the insides of shoes and boots to keep feet dry and comfortable.

At the day's end, give feet a luxurious soak, adding a special preparation that will soothe and refresh skin.

Busy-ness, Prettiness Get Equal Time

No doubt you're busy planning so that your house will gleam and glow for the holidays. Did it ever occur to you that your house might upstage you? That you ought to be more glamorous than your surroundings?

Sure, we're all busy, busy, busy at Christmas-time — but kids and cooking should be put in limbo for just a little bit of time, while you concentrate on your own holiday looks and wardrobe.

There'll be some partying, of course, and some very exciting fashions and new coiffures. Evening clothes will be more spectacular. Sometimes the designers have accomplished this with color (red or black), sometimes with clinging sexy fabrics. And long skirts will take precedence over severe trousers.

This new emphasis on ultra femininity is accompanied by sleeker shorter, shining hairstyles. Short to mid-long (just sweeping in the shoulders) is the trend. The look is romantic without being fussy or frankly wild, according to a noted hairdresser. And that look depends on a good cut to establish the shape of the head, and hair in gleaming good condition.

Hair that's dull, mousey, or graying, just won't do. Rather than an indication of aging, gray hair is just one more beauty problem meant to be solved with one of today's beautiful semi-permanent hair color treatments. Go ahead. Lavish a little love on yourself without the worry of taking a chunk of time away from your holiday preparations.

Don't say: oh, holidays are such a drag — so exhausting. Say: partying. Say radiant ... my house ... my clothes ... my hair and me.

By the way, mistletoe can be used for things other than a romantic excuse. The mantel of the fireplace or center of a Christmas wreath are ideal spots for this colorful decoration.

At the Wig Wam you'll find a larger selection of Wigs, Hairpieces and Falls in the newest styles for the holiday season.

This Noah's Ark Mobile Is Toddler Pleaser

Mother Made Mobile

Stretch your Christmas gift fund by custom-making presents such as this Noah's Ark mobile, certain to delight a little son or daughter, cousin or friend. The characters are cut out of rolled-out play clay, a cooked-up mixture of baking soda, corn starch and water.

With Christmas creeping close, now is a good time to test your craftsmanship. Maybe you're a wizard with scissors, a beanbag artist, a tin can genius, a master of stitchery witchery. It's well worth finding out, for the financial investment in custom-made gifts is so tiny that your savings stretch and stretch.

Here's a project to try. It begins in the kitchen with play clay ... a cooked-up mixture of baking soda, corn starch and water and ends up with a whimsical mobile of Noah's Ark characters for a child's room that's guaranteed to delight any little boy or girl on your list.

You'll need: baking soda, corn starch, rolling pin, cord, dislodged stones from old costume jewelry, broom straws, defrosted frozen peas, pipe cleaners, paper clips, poster paints, paint brush, clear shellac and wire. And here's the recipe for play clay:

2 cups baking soda
(one 1-pound package)
1 cup corn starch
1¼ cups cold water

Whisk together the baking soda and corn starch in a saucepan. Mix in the water and bring to boil over medium heat stirring constantly. Cook a minute longer or until mixture resembles moist mashed potatoes. Remove immediately from the heat (over-cooking makes clay crumbly) and turn out onto plate. Cover with a damp cloth and when cool enough to handle, knead a little. Store all but the clay you're about to use in closed plastic bag.

Now roll out clay on wax paper to ¼-inch thickness. Stamp out animals with cookie cutters. If you prefer your own designs make cut-out cardboard patterns. Make cardboard pattern for Noah. Add hanging attachments by pressing snipped off out end of paper clip into top edge of each character. Now with toothpick, or tip of sharp knife, press identifying features into clay; stones for eyes; broom straws for whiskers; curlycued pipe cleaners for lamb's wool; peas for alligator scales; snips of frayed cord for tails, mane, Noah's hair, beard and sash. Slide finished pieces onto cookie sheet and wait a day or two until they are bone dry. Then paint, using water colors, tempera or anything except oils. Shellac.

Now to put Noah and his companions aloft. To form the vertical center bar of the mobile, take five 6-inch lengths of fairly heavy wire, forming a hook at the end of each. Hook lengths together. For your horizontal bars cut four lengths of wire varying from 18-inches for the top bar to 6-inches for the bottom bar. Form a loop at the center of each bar. Horizontal bars now hook onto vertical bars, and animals get attached to each end of horizontal bars. Noah hangs from the bottom.

Suspend your masterpiece from a ceiling light fixture and you have the merriest mobile imaginable ... one that's guaranteed to bring ooh's of delight from any child.

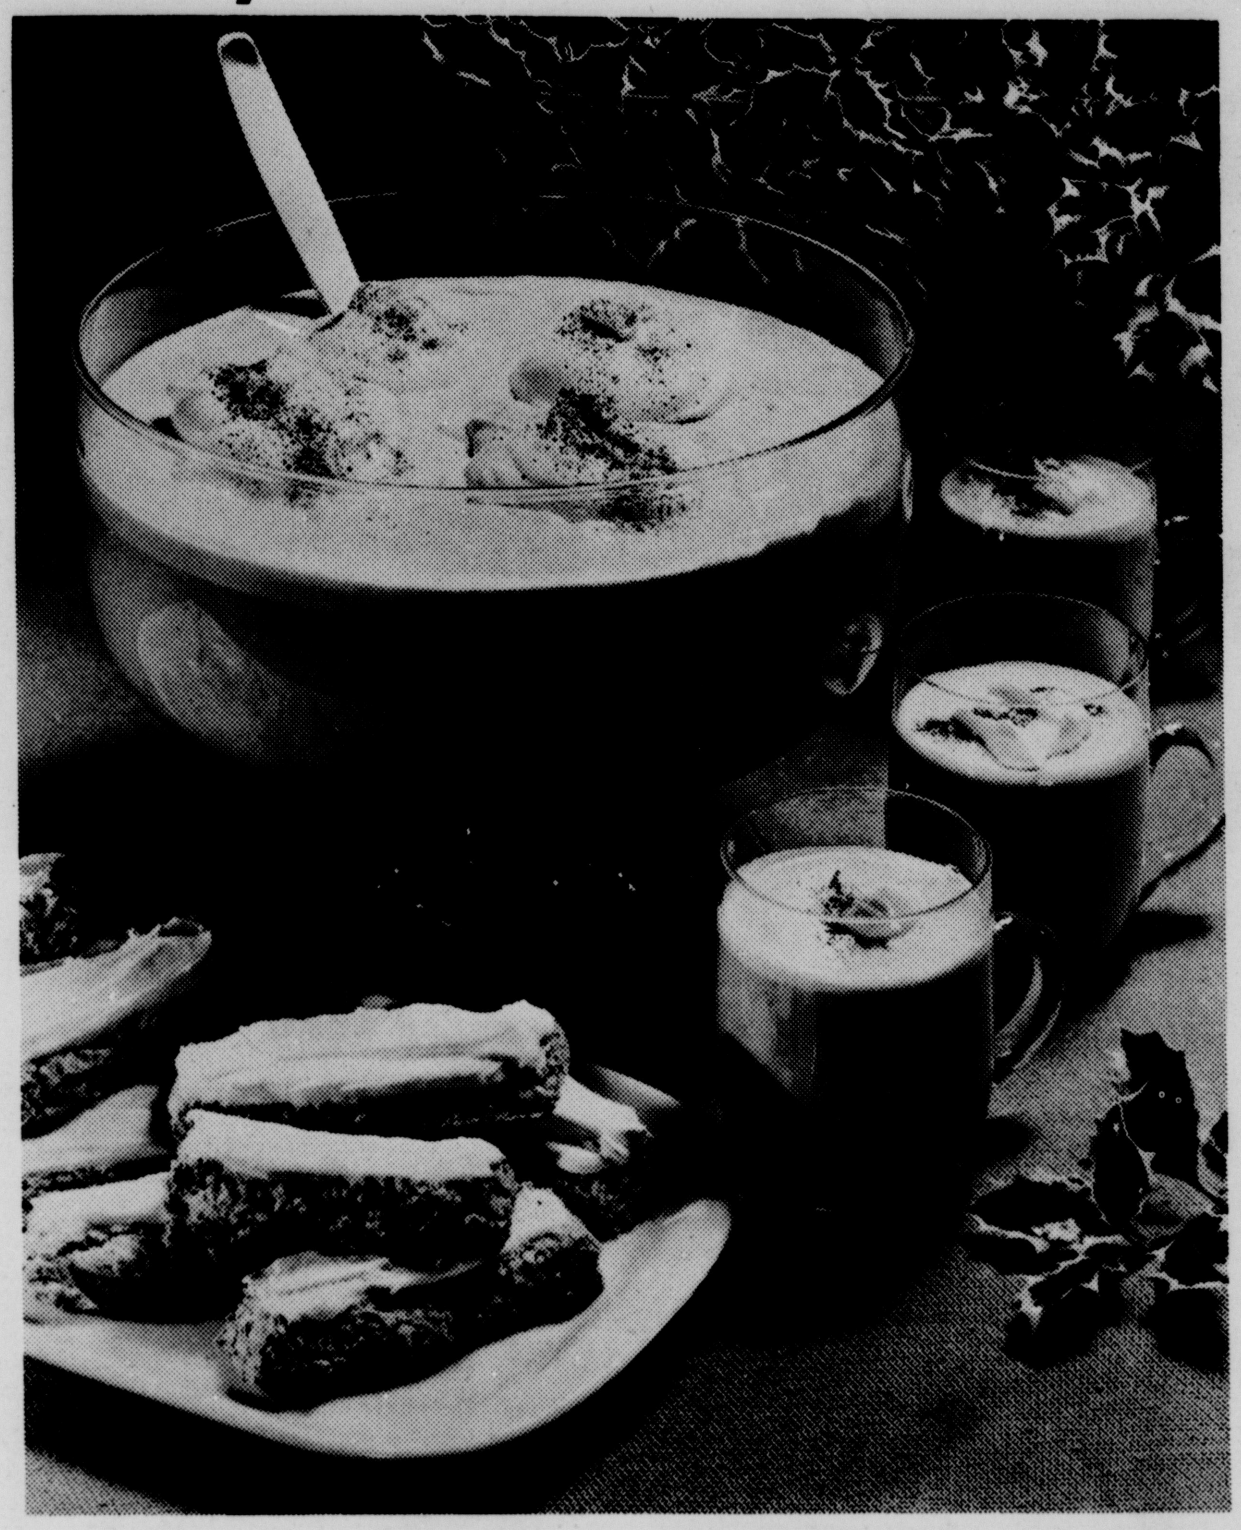
History Is Given of Traditional Holiday Drink



Holiday Entertaining Beverage

Egg nog, flavored with orange spiced tea, is perfect for holiday entertaining with or without the addition of spirits. The sprinkling of a hot tea and toddy mix adds a dash of color and an orange spiced flavor to the cream.

Egg nog at Christmas is as traditional in American homes as pumpkin pie at Thanksgiving. But unlike Thanksgiving fare, egg nog has English ancestors.

In case you've ever wondered where the "nog" in egg nog comes from, it's a shortened version of the word "noggin." Used in England for centuries, a noggin was a small drinking vessel in which posset, a milk and egg beverage, was served.

Along with changing ingredients and techniques of preparation, the beverage has had many names. It has been egg-pop, custard posset, syllabub, milk punch, egg-and-milk, flip, one-yard-of-flannel, and auld man's milk.

There were no hard and fast rules for mixing it over the years. Sometimes the punch was made with eggs; sometimes only egg whites were used, and sometimes no egg at all.

The Americanization of egg nog has seen the firm addition of milk and eggs to the recipe, and alcoholic beverages have been substituted for ale in the original posset.

But with typical resourcefulness, Americans have created many variations on the egg nog theme. One very good version substitutes an orange and spice flavored tea and toddy mix for the spices in the old time posset.

The orange and spice flavored tea mix imparts a subtle flavor and gives a golden color to the creamy rich drink. A sprinkling of the tea and toddy mix on top adds a dash of color to the heavy cream. Made with or without spirits, this egg nog gives a festive touch to holiday entertaining.

Serve it to guests at dinner or at a holiday party, and you'll be sure to hear nothing but compliments about your spiced egg nog. This recipe features such a tea and toddy mix.

Egg Nog

((Makes about 2 quarts)

1 quart milk
6 eggs, separated
One-third cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ cup orange and spice flavored tea & toddy mix
1 cup light rum, optional
1 cup heavy cream, whipped
Additional tea and toddy mix

Scald milk in large saucepan. Beat together egg yolks, sugar and salt in large bowl; gradually stir in scalded milk. Return mixture to saucepan and cook over low heat. Stir constantly until mixture is thick enough to coat a metal spoon. Blend in ¼ cup tea and toddy mix. Chill. Add rum. Beat egg whites until soft peaks form; fold beaten egg whites and half the whipped cream into egg nog mixture. Pour into chilled punch bowl. Top with spoonfuls of remaining whipped cream. Sprinkle with hot tea and toddy mix.

Spiced Tea Nectar

(Makes about 1 quart)

2 cups water
3 tea bags
1 can (18 ounces) apricot nectar
1 teaspoon lemon juice
2 tablespoons sugar

Bring water to boil in saucepan. Add tea bags and steep 5 minutes. Remove tea bags. Add nectar, lemon juice and sugar to tea. Heat to serving temperature. Orange spiced tea bags are recommended, for distinctive flavor.

Safety Precautions Should Be Taken

Preparing for Christmas sometimes invites small accidents. Take precautions against spot happenings: Spread a plastic sheet or tablecloth under the Christmas tree stand as carpet protector; rearrange furniture to keep valuables out of the heavy-traffic lanes; consider adding a stainproof finish to delicate furniture fabrics to form a shield against spots and spills; brush up the furnishings before the holiday guests arrive — it will be easier to take out spots from clean fabrics.

Role Began With Rejection

BURBANK, CALIF. — (NEA) — There are as many ways to become an actor as there are actors but Ralph Waite's path must be the most unusual, if not the most circuitous.

Waite, whose only previous TV exposure had been a role in Nichols, is playing the strong, warm, sensitive father of The Waltons, the new series about a family filled with love and joy, despite the Depression around them. He even got that role through a quirk of fate.

To begin, Waite is from White Plains, N.Y. He went to Bucknell University. After graduation he became a social worker in Westchester County.

"Then I went to Yale Divinity School. I wasn't particularly religious then but I liked the intellectual life and the philosophy."

It rubbed off and Ralph became a minister, first tending his flock at Fisher's Island, a remote summer place for the rich off New York's Long Island. Then he was transferred to Garden City, also in a wealthy area, where he met singer and actor Bill Hayes, who helped change his life.

Ralph, by this time, was married and had two children. He decided the religious life was not for him. "I left the Church, but not religion, and went into public life."

His first job was at Harper & Row in their religious book department. He stayed with them some time, becoming an assistant editor.

He remained friends with Hayes who took him to an acting class one day.

"I'd been having trouble with my family and Bill took care of me, thinking I was lonely. Which I was. So he took me to class to get my mind off things."

And he decided, at 32, to pursue an acting career.

"The day I gave my notice at Harper & Row I remember asking, 'What do actors do?' I knew I had to work at something, because I had responsibilities to my family, even if they decided I was too crazy to have around.

"I'll never forget my last day at the office. I was wearing a Madison Avenue suit and I said goodbye to my secretary and left to look for a job. I went to all the restaurants on Third Avenue asking if they needed a waiter, because I had waited on tables in college. I got to a place called P.J. O'Hara's at the noon rush hour. They told me a waiter hadn't shown up so they hurried me into a white jacket. At one table was a man who had been one of my deacons at Garden City. When he saw me he was so embarrassed he left the restaurant."

Soon after Ralph embarked on his new career, he got a job as general understudy in Jose Quintero's "The Balcony." In the six months he was with the play, he did many of the male roles. He continued to work waiting tables and bartending while appearing in several plays. His major break came when he was cast in the off-Broadway production of "Hogan's Goat," which also launched Faye Dunaway's career.

"During rehearsals, I tended bar at a nearby Broadway bar where theatrical crowds and actors used to go. Even on opening night I rushed from the theater to my job. But when the New York Times came in with a rave review, I jumped over the bar, quit and bought drinks for the house."

That was the last time he tended bar.

He left New York after a play he loved, "The Watering Place," closed after opening night, all because the most influential critic in New York hated the play. "We worked like hell on the play, night and day for a month, and then that happened."

He was discouraged and disillusioned by the theater, so he headed west where he began working steadily in such films as "Five Easy Pieces," "The Grissom Gang" and "Sporting Club," which was produced by Lee Rich, who is now producing The Waltons.

Lorna Luft

Lorna Makes It On Her Own

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Judy Garland's "other" daughter, Lorna Luft, was practically born a professional. Part of the Garland clan, living Hollywood with neighbors like Humphrey Bogart and Lauren Bacall, Lorna was nursed on backstage flurry, the high pressure and all the publicity that goes with stardom.

Lorna started her career at the Palace. She was only 14 when she sang with her mother before the black-tie crowd in 1967.

"I was terrified," says Lorna, "but I knew that was what I wanted to do and I had to start someplace."

Lorna, now 20 and singing at top nightclubs, has two members of her family to contend with: her mother Judy Garland and her half-sister Liza Minnelli.

Audiences, expecting a bit of the family magic, make requests for Lorna to do her mother's songs and now her sister's. "Over the Rainbow," "Cabaret" the audience calls. But Lorna just says, "they've been done." She explains why she never sings any of Judy Garland's songs: "Nobody can sing those songs as well as Mama did, so why even try."

Lorna, a slight 5-4, sat wrapped in a blanket in her suite at the St. Regis in New York. As questions were raised about her mother, her sister and her own childhood, she sank deeper and deeper into the blankets.

"I'm not competing with my mother's memory or my sister's reputation," explains Lorna. "It opened a lot of doors for me, but you have to have a lot of talent once the doors are open. People expect a lot from me."

Lorna is a delicate blend of youth and nostalgia. The songs she sings range from rock and roll to the old classics.

Golddigger Life Not All Good

BURBANK, CALIF. (NEA) — They're young, shapely, beautiful, talented, lionized, stared at, well-traveled, well-paid and recognizable throughout the world. They are the epitome of glamor, yet...

"Glamor is when we're on camera," says Francie Mendenhall, one of the eight Golddiggers.

Francie and Susan Lund, both from Houston, Tex., had a moment or two free, and they were talking about the hard work that most of us mistake for glamor.

They and the six other members (Jimmi Cannon, Karen Cavanaugh, Loyita Chapel, Jackie Chidsey, Rebecca Olivia Jones and Liz Kelley) of Greg Garrison's popular group are all over the place, simultaneously. Their syndicated TV series, sponsored by Chevrolet, is popular and all 26 episodes are finished, having been completed in six weeks of very concentrated work. They came to Los Angeles to tape three appearances on The Dean Martin Show, set for December, and to pick up their new, glittery costumes. Then they resume their tour with brief interruptions, for several months.

They will be making their debut in Mexico City, which worries Susie, already suffering from a cold, who hopes she won't get sick. She has been sick before, once in the Bahamas and one, at the end of a tour with Bob Hope, in Alaska.

"One of the other girls and I were literally on the way to the hospital and someone asked to take a picture of us. So we put our heads together, managed a smile and went to the hospital. The caption said we were 'slightly under the weather.'"

"The road is a trial at best," Francie said.

For instance, they have been robbed in New York City and in Atlantic City.

"At the Plaza Hotel in New York, they took our shoes. That's all," Francie said.

"It was around Christmas," Susie said, "and we had a tree and about 150 presents lying under it. Our jewels and furs were all over and all they took was our shoes."

"They took our shoes in Atlantic City, too," Francie said, "but they also took a lot more. We lost suitcases, tape recorders and I lost income tax papers and my birth certificate."

Then in Edmonton, Alberta, Canada, they got death threats. In Montreal they got strange telephone calls from a woman who said they obviously hated her because they gave her dirty looks from the TV screen.

But despite these things, the girls have a good time, and see each other socially a lot. When they're on the road, their conductor and manager, Charles Sanford (Pops to them), is their protector.

Film Director Probes Children's Reactions To War

BEVERLY HILLS, CALIF. — (NEA) — Roger Gimbel does not produce easy films.

Last season he took cast and crew to Utah State Prison and turned out the magnificent, highly-acclaimed, "The Glass House."

This season he filmed, literally under fire, in Belfast, Northern Ireland, an unforgettable, shatteringly powerful film detailing what hatred from the present warfare does to a loving family. It's called "A War of Children" and will be telecast on the CBS Tuesday Night Movies this week.

The only members of the cast known here are Vivien Merchant (Mrs. Harold Pinter) and brilliant young Jenny Agutter, who won an Emmy for "The Snow Goose."

"I knew I wanted Jenny for the role," Gimbel said. "It's the first thing she has accepted since 'The Snow Goose.'"

The other actors were rounded up in London and Dublin.

The filming in Belfast was "undercover," although authorities were aware of the crew's presence and purpose.

"Everyone knew exactly what we were doing, but, in a sense, we were undercover. Like the prison picture it was hazardous to shoot. It was hard to get around."

A War of Children

Roger Gimbel directed a film probing childrens' response to war and the results of conflict on a single family. The production was filmed in Belfast, Northern Ireland and the company often was involved in hazardous situations. — (NEA)

One time Roger wanted to take some photos of children and as he raised his camera, a sniper appeared, pointed a gun and said, "You take a picture and I'll shoot your head off."

Twice he was spreadeagled and been searched at gunpoint.

"But despite it all life goes on in Northern Ireland. There are no windows in certain sections, just boards. There are other sections you can't go into. We even had another title on our scripts, 'A Thing of Beauty', because we didn't want the word 'war' in the title."

The dramatic scenes were filmed in Dublin. "The actors didn't want to work in the North. There is no way we could have done the dramatic scenes in the North."

The climactic scene, terrible in its tragedy, involves the use of a British tank. It's presence in peaceful Dublin caused newspaper headlines, fears that the British were invading and a raid on the vehicle, during which it was blown up, because, had it been real, it would have contained guns.

With this picture finished, you think Roger (who is related to the department store Gimbels and is a cousin of Peter Gimbel who made "Blue Water, White Death") might turn to a drawing room comedy as his next TV feature.

Think again. He's finishing up a movie set for release some time after the first of the year called "Birds of Prey." It's about a running dogfight between two helicopters in the Grand Canyon.

Pay T.V. Experiment Draws Crowds to Living Room Movies

LOS ANGELES — (NEA) — A very small box in designer colors and a series of laminated cards which look like ordinary credit cards may very well revolutionize the TV industry.

The pilot program for what is essentially pay-TV, is about to begin in San Diego and Geoffrey Nathanson, president of Optical Systems, is confident the experiment will be a success.

It starts with cable-TV, which is a means of bringing clear TV reception to areas where, without cables, viewers either were deprived of TV or watched muddy, murky lined, pictures.

The cable used in cable-TV is a powerful bit of wire. While the FCC has allocated 12 channels for commercial VHF stations, the cable wire is capable of carrying 100 channels of video, 1000 channels of audio and 100,000 channels of data on closed circuits, described by youthful, handsome Nathanson as "secure and private circuits."

Nearly 8 million TV sets in the U.S. and Canada are hooked to cables and "all they are doing is bringing the same TV pictures to areas where there were no clear pictures," Nathanson says. He decided to do something about this. Enter Optical Systems.

For a $20 deposit his company attaches a tiny black box to the viewer's cable. The viewer than buys tickets and, in his own home, at his own convenience, he can see the latest movies for a price as low as $1.50. He can see sports events not generally telecast. He can sign up for an extension course from a university. He has a brand new toy with which to play.

The films, which play a week each in subscriber's living rooms, and are run in double bills, are so new that the film companies prefer the titles not be publicized. Additionally, FCC rules state the films can't be over two years old. But you can figure out some of the titles of recent hits and odds are they're in the batch which San Diego viewers get.

Customers will be able to buy a movie season ticket, which allows unlimited viewings of film, or individual tickets, which allow unlimited viewings during the week the film is telecast. They can buy season or individual tickets to sports events. When they agree to subscribe to the service they are given a deck of "Wild Cards," which have numbers and letters in punchboard fashion on the back. These can be used by people who make up their minds at the last minute. They call an operator, give her their subscription number and tell her they want to watch that night's event. She gives them the figure-letter combination to punch out, and they're in business. They'll be billed for the fee.

The next city on Optical Systems list is Vancouver, B.C.

Nathanson feels his system, if successful, could bring financial aid to hurting box offices.

Population Growth Explored

(Democrat-Capital Service)

A special two hour telecast by channel 12, St. Louis' educational television station, will explore the implications and problems inherent in the growth and distribution of population in the United States between now and the end of the century.

The special report, "Population Growth and the American Future," will be televised Sunday, Dec. 3 at 3 p.m. on channel 12.

The program will include the official film report of the National Commission on Population Growth and the American Future, produced by Fisher Film Group, Ltd. and narrated by Hugh Downs. The report has been the subject of some controversy from population groups who disagree with the findings of the commission and the releasing of the findings via television.

The two-hour special marks the first time a national commission has submitted its message to the public on television.

Under the chairmanship of John D. Rockefeller III, the commission spent two years studying the subject of population in this country. Members of the commission will appear on the program to discuss their findings and recommendations — among them liberalized abortion, voluntary sterilization, and other steps to limit the nation's population growth — with representatives from a broad range of supporting and opposing population growth groups.

The film is divided into two segments, the first offering some of the reasons why we are in the position we are — more than 200 million people and growing at the rate of over 6,000 a day — from an historical and demographic point of view. It also poses the question: "Does growth have to continue for the good of the country and the individual?" The second sement examines population and fertility-related subjects from a number of viewpoints.

STAMPS ON EXPLORERS

LONDON (AP) — Explorers Henry Hudson, Capt. Robert Falcon Scott, Martin Frobisher and James Clark Ross will be featured on a series of British stamps to be issued Feb. 16.

On April 26, a stamp marking the 50th anniversary of the discovery of Tutankhamen's tomb in Egypt will be put out.

TV Changes Turn Jack Weston Off

BURBANK, CALIF. (NEA) — Jack Weston doesn't like television or what's on it. He tries to avoid television at all costs and in the last few years has been seen only twice. Once in "Sadbird," a drama on CBS and, more recently, on All In the Family.

"I did that because of my friend Carroll O'Connor. He called and asked if I wanted to be on the show and I ran all the way from New York," Weston said. Jack's third TV appearance in recent times was in Neil Simon's The Trouble With People.

The show consisted of five playlets, starring George C. Scott, Alan Arkin, Valerie Harper, Joseph Campanella and James Coco among others. Four of the segments were done in New York before an audience and the fifth, with Scott and Elaine Shore, was taped (also before an audience) in Los Angeles, because Scott was busy on a film.

"I've been trying not to do TV," Weston said. "I like my one feature film a year and the stage when I can get a really good play. But I was really flattered when Neil Simon called and asked me to do this."

Weston's skit pairs him with Gene Wilder. "It's kind of an extension of The Odd Couple set in an office," he says.

He adds, "It's the most gratifying thing I've done on TV in 15 years."

A veteran of the good old days of live TV, Jack says his dislike of the medium does not extend back to those days. There was immediacy then, authors like Paddy Cheyevsky and directors like Sidney Lumit and Arthur Penn.

Jack still likes life in New York, although he and his wife, Marge Redmond, maintain homes on both coasts. "We actors are really peach pickers. We go where the work is."

While Marge was in The Flying Nun, Jack stayed in Los Angeles and became enough of an Angelino to buy a car. But his roots are still in the east. Recently, Jack and Marge have toured in a highly successful production of Simon's "The Last of the Red Hot Lovers."

Jack is a great Simon fan. "We leased an apartment in New York across the street from him. You know what he dies? He lives two blocks from Bloomingdale's and he goes to the store and rides the escalators listening to the people talk. If he hears a funny name or a funny line, he writes it down.

"Did you hear about his mugging? He got mugged in a typical Neil Simon mugging. It was three in the afternoon and he was walking on a Central Park path that parallels Fifth Avenue. Suddenly a guy jumped out of the bushes, started to beat him, screamed 'Don't you ever call me a fag' and ran away. Isn't that the greatest non-sequitor mugging of all time?"

Films Return to Classic Style

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — Most directors these days like to think of themselves as artists. They have affected dress, affected airs and, generally, affected films. Which brings us to Ronald Neame, who affects none of these.

He's a distinguished English director ("The Prime of Miss Jean Brodie," "Gambit," "The Chalk Garden" among many) who just finished the big adventure yarn here, "The Poseidon Adventure." But he doesn't think of himself as an artist.

"I'm not even sure," he says, "whether or not cinema is an art form. It's certainly not in the same class as music where a composer takes notes out of the air and creates in his head a symphony which he then writes down."

Neame believes that the director is not, and shouldn't be, a star.

"If Maggic Smith wins an Oscar for a picture I did (as she did in 'Jean Brodie')," he says, "that is tribute enough to my work.".

Neame, who learned his craft at the side of David Lean, for whom he was lighting cameraman for some years, is a director of the old school. He doesn't like to think of himself, or others like him, as "old-fashioned." He prefers to use the term "classic."

But he doesn't believe that too many of the new directors are over-conscious of themselves and their camera.

"I was brought up," he says, "in the tradition that the camera should be unobtrusive. The camera looks in the window at life. Too many young men these days have the camera as part of the production. It jiggles and bounces and we're always aware of it."

Neame doesn't believe a director is a creator but rather an interpreter. "The writer is the creator on the film," he says.

He feels that better things are coming in the film area.

"The pendulum has swung too far in the direction of 'trendy' films," he says, "and the public doesn't care for them any more. 'The Poseidon Adventure' is a film in the classic tradition and the pendulum is swinging back in that direction, toward real entertainment."

Almost Back in the Bosom of Bonanza

David Canary

HOLLYWOOD —(NEA) — Bonanza had to do some major cast juggling because of the death of Dan Blocker. One of the first things they did was bring back David Canary as Candy.

"Two days after Dan died," Canary says, "I got a call from Mike Landon. He'd spoken to Lorne (Greene) and they wanted to know if I'd be interested in coming back.

"I know it sounds a little callous for the two of them to be concerned about the show at a time like that, so soon after Dan died. But you have to understand that they were just about to go into production. As it was the new season's product was delayed for a few weeks."

David Canary had played Candy on the show for three years but had been off for the last two. He says he left the show because he wanted to do more, although the story at that time was that a salary dispute was the root.

"The salary dispute was there," David says, "but it was just one phase. The basic thing was a desire on my part to do more."

When Canary left the show there was bitterness on both sides. A story circulated at the time, and published in one of Hollywood's trade papers, which attributed to producer David Dortort a report that Canary was a trouble-maker.

"Dortort denies ever saying that," Canary says, "but, nevertheless, it gave me a lot of trouble. A lot of problems. I went through a very cold spell and the next year and a half had very few jobs on TV. I turned to the stage, doing straight plays and musicals (he's a fine singer) and then to writing."

The two years in which Canary was off Bonanza were, all in all, traumatic. Besides his professional problems he had personal problems. He and his wife were divorced "a divorce is always difficult when a child is involved."

He tried his hand at writing and turned out a screenplay which is currently being read by producers. The story revolves around the beginnings of professional football. Canary grew up in Ohio, near where the Canton Bulldogs and Massillon Tigers started the whole Sunday madness. His story centers on Jim Thorpe.

But he didn't hesitate very long when Landon called him that day.

"I was ready to go back," he says. "I felt it would be good for me. Both Mike and Lorne wanted me and that was important. They carry a lot of weight around the show."

He also has a yen to write and direct, and hopes to follow Landon's trail and try his hand at writing and directing a Bonanza episode.

(At this writing Bonanza has been cancelled after 14 years as a regular TV series. Reruns to come.)

A Smidgeon of Fact Makes Good Fiction

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — A couple of ladies have taken pen in hand and written some interesting books. Both Joan Blondell and Helen Noga call their creations fiction but both have obvious factual roots.

Miss Blondell, for years one of our most popular actresses, calls hers, "Center Door Fancy." It is the story of a girl who grew up along the vaudeville trail (which she did), became a movie star (which she did) and married, in order, a cinematographer, an actor-singer and a big Broadway producer (which she did).

Only the names have been changed, to protect the innocent. (And avoid lawsuits).

"It's a novel," Joan says. "Lots of it comes from my own life, of course. But, no, it's not an autobiography. If I wrote the story of my life it would be too heavy to lift. I don't think I'll ever write my life story. Not ever."

Whatever you call it, it's well-written, fast-moving and endlessly fascinating. Obviously, Joan Blondell is a writer.

"I've been writing since I was eight," she says. "I have the largest trunk in the world, crammed with finished and half-finished things."

She writes, she says, in long hand — "I can't type, I can't dictate things." She admits to being the world's worst speller. So writing, for her, is a long and arduous process.

Already, there is talk of a movie version of "Center Door Fancy," and Joan has it all cast — in her own mind. She'd like to see Alan Arkin play the part of Johnny Marten, the novel's version of her father.

"He doesn't look like him," she says, "but he has the same quality and the same warm smile."

For the leading role — the Joan Blondellesque character — she likes Ann-Margret. And for the Michael Todd-type producer she leans toward Peter Falk.

If she could get that group, it would be a hit — fact or fiction.

———

Then there's "Ayisha," a novel by Helen Noga, the San Francisco nightclub owner who discovered and managed Johnny Mathis for 10 years.

Her book, too, is based on fact although the story isn't Helen's. It's a romantic novel set against the Armenian-Turkish bloodshed and spans years and continents, ending in California.

"I've wanted to write the book for 30 years," Helen says. "I knew the woman in the story. She told me the whole thing and I said then that someday I'd write it. Now I have."

Joan Blondell

Helen Noga ought to write the story of her life someday and probably she will. Once anybody gets the taste of bookwriting there's no mouthwash that can get rid of it.

One major section in Helen's life story would deal with Mathis. Even though their business relationship ended in a lawsuit she says she still feels friendly toward him.

"I sent him a copy of the book," she says, "and I autographed it with a pleasant sentiment."

She says she thinks he's been singing better since he got the book.

"A load has been lifted from his heart," she says, "because now he knows I'm not angry. I know how Johnny thinks and I know that's how he'd react."

She says she's glad she's out of the nightclub-music business because "it's nothing any more."

"Nightclubs charge too much," she says, "and they pay artists too much. Nobody is worth $25,000 except maybe Frank Sinatra and Dean Martin. They are worth it because they bring in the gamblers and the big spenders and that's what you need."

Helen Noga admits she's "pushing 60," but she doesn't look it. She says she stays young by a daily application of tennis. She recently fired her houseboy because he got too good at tennis and she's looking for a replacement she can beat.

Grace of Monaco and Hope of Sikkim: Why Do American Girls Want to be Princesses?

Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N. Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR REP. H. R. GROSS (R.-Iowa)

Members of the House keep preaching economy in government, but I noticed on a recent trip to the Capitol that this didn't stop them from redecorating the Speaker's lounge or retiring room. How much did that cost?—F. Barnes, Newark, Ohio

● According to the Clerk's office, the "period furniture"—what period is uncertain—cost $65,750; the window draperies $21,715; and the specially woven 75 by 9 foot rug, with its ankle deep tuft, $31,650. According to the architect's office, the crystal chandeliers cost another $44,862—for a minimal grand total of $163,977. This should effectively doom any further conversation in the House of Representatives about a limitation on spending.

FOR EVA GABOR

Have you ever gone back to your native Budapest? —D. Flynn, Vancouver, Wash.

● I have never gone back to Hungary. I remember it was so beautiful before the Communists took over. I have no wish to go back. I don't even like Europe anymore. I love the United States. When I go to Europe I always seek out Americans.

FOR GOVERNOR GEORGE WALLACE, of Alabama

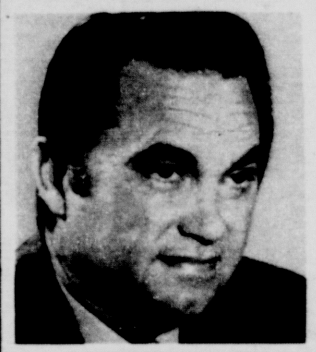
Do you feel that being confined to a wheel chair will end your political career?—W. C., Hartford, Conn.



● No, because I can think of many successful public officials and business leaders who either are or were confined to a wheelchair during their careers. President Franklin D. Roosevelt was perhaps the best example.

FOR DICK ALLEN, baseball player

Why do you wear a helmet instead of a regular cap while playing first base?—Mitch Hale, Rochelle Park, N.J.

● I started wearing a helmet for protection when I played in Philadelphia and fans threw things from the stands after reading things they "thought" I said in some of the papers.

FOR CHAD EVERETT

Did you ever make a picture with your wife, Shelby Grant? —Mary Gardner, Syracuse, N.Y.

● We did a "Medical Center" together the first year of the show. Since then she has been rather busy. Our house burned down two years ago; rebuilding it and redecorating it took a lot of her time. We've had another child, and since she was breast feeding it she couldn't just take off and stay at the studio all day. But I hope to make a film with her soon.

FOR COLLEEN DEWHURST, actress

Do you have a favorite playwright?—L. W., Buffalo, N.Y.

● Eugene O'Neill, I think. I absolutely love his portrayals of women. They all live their lives to the fullest. No half pleasures, no semi-disasters. If they do something, it is done fully. I like that. If you're going to do something, do it the whole way. Might as well.

FOR SENATOR JACOB JAVITS of New York

What can the U.S. do about the punitive measures, such as exit fees, that Russia is imposing on Soviet Jews who want to go to Israel? Some people say it's none of our business. —F. S. V., Bradenton, Fla.

● We had one experience of silence with Hitler. Let it never happen again. We should demand justice for Soviet Jewry as a condition for close economic relations with the USSR. The Russians are pragmatists. They want our trade.

FOR JIMMY BRESLIN, author and columnist

I was disappointed in the screen version of your funny book, "The Gang That Couldn't Shoot Straight." What was your reaction?—R. M. Miller, Austin, Texas

● I didn't recommend it to friends.

FOR JEAN NIDETCH,
founder and president of "Weight Watchers"

How much do you weigh now, and do you have trouble keeping your weight down?—Mrs. R. Allen, Danbury, Conn.

● I now weigh 143 pounds and stand 5'7". My weight battle is an ongoing thing. Today, although I still desire a pastry when it comes into the room, I know that I can't have it if I'm also going to have a cocktail before dinner, because the penalty is obesity.

FOR JOAN CRAWFORD, actress

You always look so glamorous. Do you have any special beauty secrets you can share?—Mrs. Alice Koontz, Mentor-On-The-Lake, Ohio

● A lot of people think you have to be rich to be beautiful. The best beauty preparations cost only a few cents and I frequently find them in my refrigerator. One "kitchen mask" I like is a "Mayonnaise Mask." I've whipped up my own with whole eggs, olive or peanut oil, and lemon juice. Stir or beat until it is well blended. . . . For removing ordinary street make-up, I use a good cleansing cream. Then I quickly apply moisture cream. . . . After showering, I like one of the oldest concoctions in the world—rosewater and glycerine. . . . After a certain age, make-up should be called "make-down." Too much of it is aging.

Why Do American Girls Want to

It's been 11 years since young Hope Cooke left her native New England to become the wife of the ruler of the tiny Mongolian kingdom of Sikkim. It's been 16 years since Grace Kelly gave up acting to become Princess Grace of Monaco. Two American girls, two fairy tales come true. Recently authoress Cindy Adams, wife of comedian Joey Adams, visited both 20th Century Cinderellas, and filed this report for FAMILY WEEKLY.

By Cindy Adams, especially for Family Weekly

Patrick Litchfield

Princess Hope: The lady's title is Gyalmo

What is there about American girls that makes them willing to turn their lifestyles inside out just so they can marry a prince? I pondered this question as my one-engine kite from Calcutta (flown by a barefoot pilot) taxied into Bagdogra, the clearing in northern India which is the nearest airport to the miniscule Mongolian kingdom of Sikkim. Sikkim's First Lady, as you may know, is Hope Cooke, an American gal out of Seal Harbor, Me., by way of Sarah Lawrence College. She met the Prince of Sikkim on a visit to Darjeeling and became his princess 11 years ago.

My plane was met by a tea-colored man with a cardboard suit and nailfile-pointed shoes who walked half-bowing and spoke in a barely audible whisper. This Royal Equerry ushered me to the Royal Coach —an open jeep with a gold flagstaff! Eight hours later my driver—who spoke no English—pulled into downtown Gangtok, the capital of the vertical kingdom nestled between India and Tibet, 5,500 feet up in the Himalayas.

It had been an interesting trip. Since it was monsoon season, our princely carriage had cooled its wheels while giant boulders, uprooted trees and other souvenirs of the morning's avalanches were cleared from our dirt highway. Twice during the journey of hairpin turns the driver veered sharply to one side, and I fell completely out of the jeep. (No doors.) Once a mighty empire ruled by the mighty Khans, today agricultural Sikkim is 200,000 square miles and 250,000 subjects. The main street in Gangtok features sheep and goats (would you believe, elephants too?), and an ox has the right of way.

As we drove past the women wearing gold noserings and toting burdens atop their heads, past the huts where electricity and technology are at a minimum, and as we approached the palace high on the hill, I began to see how this could be a schoolgirl's fairytale come true. Is it not the dream of every maiden to meet a Prince Charming? And to be swept off to some faraway kingdom to live happily ever after?

And that's where I found Hope Cooke Namgyal—in her salmon-colored Palace with flying flags, servants who approach on their knees, uniformed adjutants and aides-de-camp, a corps of military guards, a Mercedes limousine, and a steady flow of visiting celebrities (the Visitors Book listed names from John Kenneth Galbraith to Angie Dickinson). She also has two children who carry the title Crown Prince and Princess—and there is even a private chapel on the grounds. This is where Hope Cooke Namgyal reigns over adoring subjects.

Her title is "Gyalmo," meaning "Queen" or "Princess," depending upon whom you ask. Sikkimese consider Hope and the Chogyal ("King") sovereign rulers of their sovereign kingdom. South of the border, down New Delhi way, Sikkim is considered an Indian protectorate. There, "Chogyal" means "Prince" and "Gyalmo" means "Princess." However, during our delicious native noodle lunch, served on hand-carved coffee tables by barefoot servants, Hope explained that I addressed her as "Your Majesty."

"I now have Sikkimese citizenship," announced Her Majesty in a pussywillow voice. "I have renounced my American citizenship because we're a small country and dual nationality would create problems."

Across the emerald lawns of the Palace, which resembles a Swiss country chalet, stood Queen Hope's personal Buddhist temple. "No, I did not 'convert' to Buddhism," she replied. "In my student days I was already very close to it. You see, a student's life differs from this material world. Students lead more detached lives —which is what Buddha teaches. However, since I came here I have gotten into it deeply."

Speaking of "my people," the Gyalmo told me: "In this rural society ours is a happy life. We Sikkimese have a good perspective. We find time to grow flowers, play music or do a favor for a friend. My people don't have much money. The Sikkimese arc of living is a very close one. Most have their own plot of ground, their own animals. However, what I'd like to export to the U.S. is Sikkim's relaxedness and sense of peace. My people are progressive but not striving. They are friendly and helpful to their neighbors, and there is always harmony and cooperation. It's something the whole world could use."

"As her security guards showed me out, I realized that Her Serene Highness was just that. Serene. . . . She is definitely not one to whom you'd yell 'Hiya Gracie' any more."

And is the Prince Charming who sweeps the fair maiden off to live in his palace truly capable of loving and cherishing, or is he an honored and obeyed Supreme Being who can make her dream a nightmare? In other words, can a free-wheeling girl from New England actually have equal partnership American-style with an Asian husband who is a Sovereign Ruler?

I glanced at Hope's handsome, silver-haired Prince, who is fluent in English and Western in outlook. The Gyalmo, her eyes twinkling, replied, "Just because a husband is a Chogyal, it does not mean he is always right, you know."

My last impression of Her Serene Highness Princess Grace was of a woman savoring every drop of her fairy-tale marriage. It was October 1971. Tehran. The 2,500th year anniversary party of the Persian Empire. I didn't have much trouble seeing why an American girl—even one who before marriage could afford the Givenchy gown and white mink she was wearing—would want to marry a foreign prince.

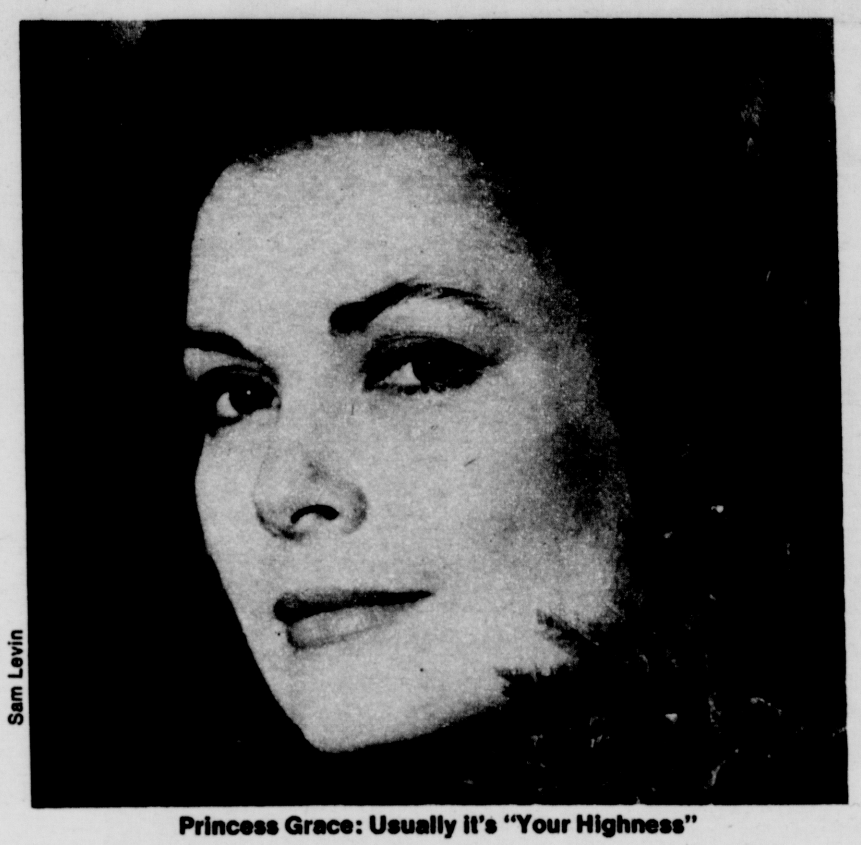
Here was Grace Patricia Kelly of Philadelphia sporting a diamond crown on her head. After greeting her host and hostess, Their Imperial Majesties the Shahanshah and Empress of Iran, she was seen laughing and talking animatedly with such chums as England's Prince Philip and Princess Anne, the King and Queen of Greece, Ethiopia's Emperor Haile Selassie and Hussein of Jordan. Only this wasn't a film set. This wasn't fake. The attendants bowing before her were for real. The protocol aides surrounding her were for real. Grace Kelly, once queen of the movies, now Princess of Monaco, has become a bona-fide blueblood.

The next morning in her well-guarded apartment, separated by a wall-to-wall crib of fruit, courtesy of Their Imperial Majesties, we shared a little girl talk. From show-business friends who knew Her Serene Highness back in her salad days, I'd heard that the teeny court of Monaco is so thick in protocol that ladies who win audiences with Grace are ordered to wear long sleeves, hats and gloves before being ushered into Grace's august presence. I therefore asked if life in Rainier The Third's pink candybox palace had changed her.

"I've been married to my husband 16 years," she replied. "I've had to adapt to his way of life, so possibly I have changed somewhat. Being married to a prince, a head of state, is naturally quite different from the normal existence. Our life is dictated by protocol, obligations and formalities. It's a question of discipline. Our official life, which I keep separate from our family life, is totally regulated by rules.

And did she make any goofs in the old days?

Marry Princes?



Sam Levin

Princess Grace: Usually it's "Your Highness"

"I made some in my early years," she smiled. "It's difficult with so many foreign dignitaries to know the proper form of address each time. But if I have made gaffs with others I have also had them made to me by visiting Americans."

Can palace life be homey? Can she prop her feet up on the sofa?

"We have our private apartments in the Palace, and I've introduced American ways and customs into our household. But I've told my children that putting their feet on furniture is something one doesn't do even if they're not princes or princesses."

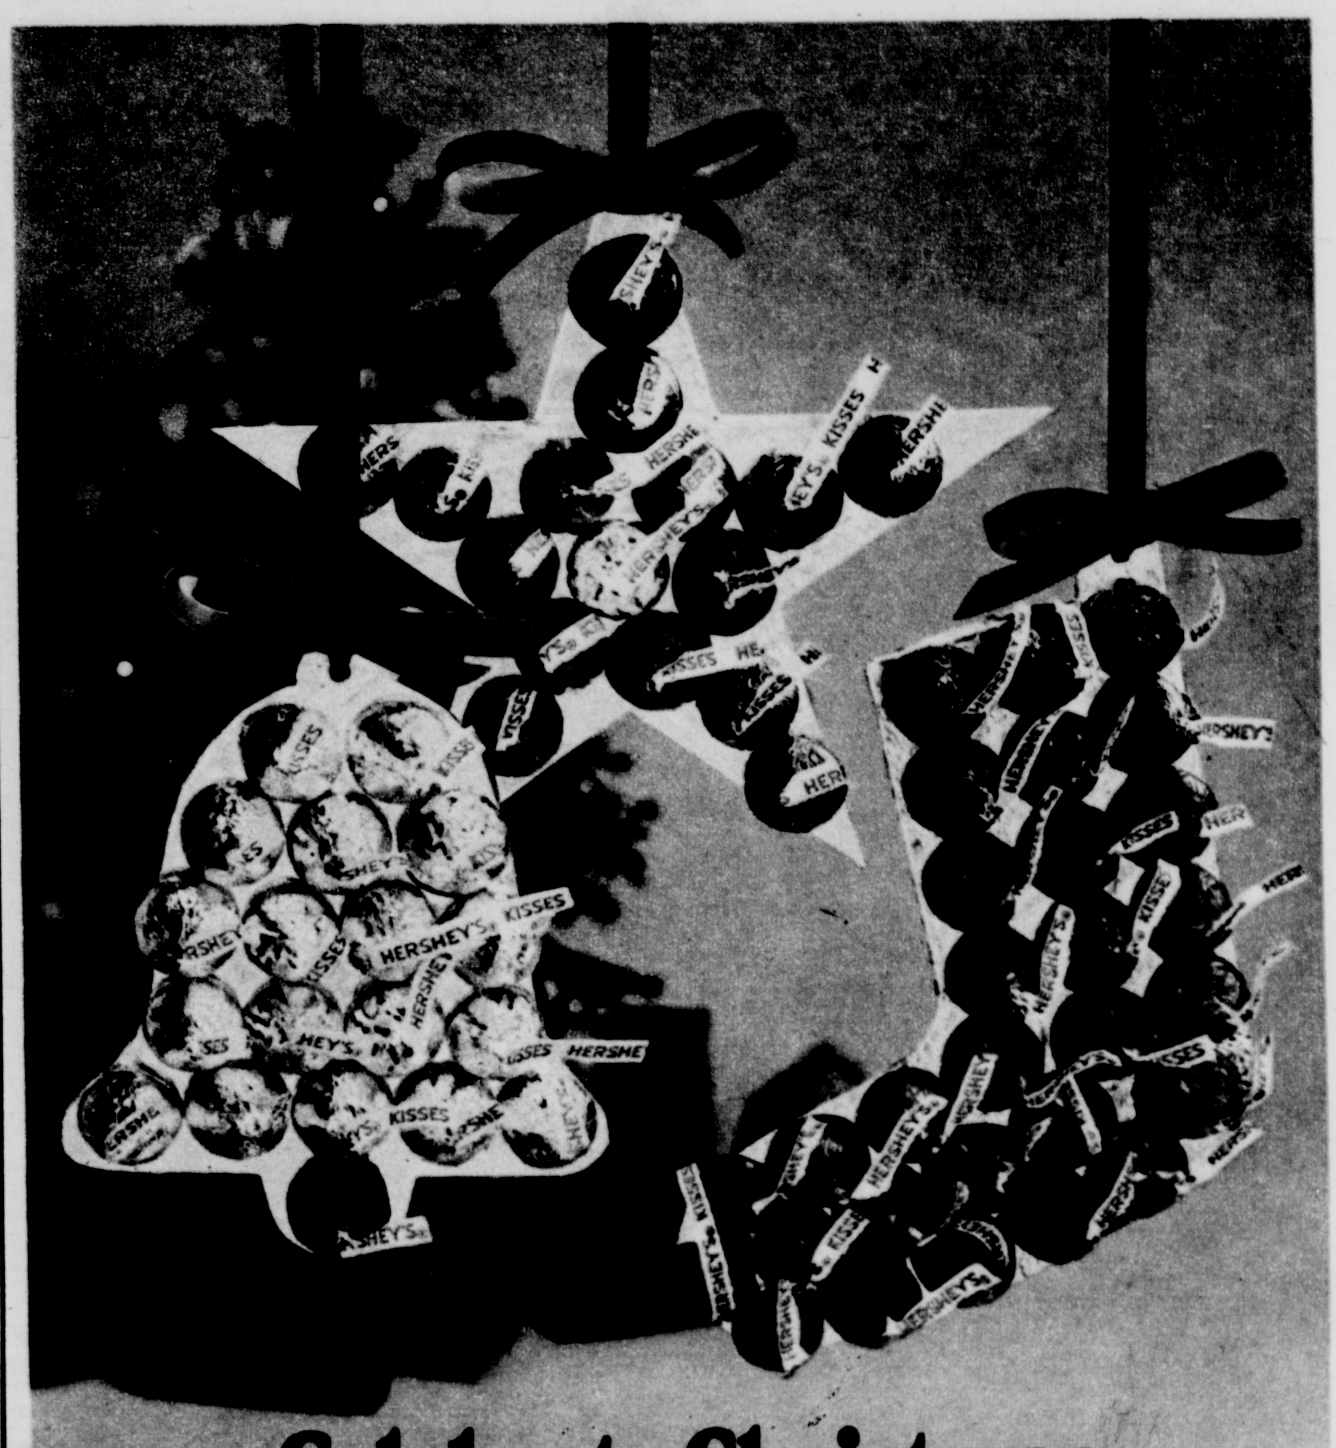
She talked more about Princess Caroline, Prince Albert and Princess Stephanie. "Keeping them from getting spoiled is a problem. I hold back many of their gifts. I encourage our people to donate presents to libraries named for our children instead of giving gifts directly to them. Another thing—in school they're never allowed to forget who they are. The teachers as well as their own friends show the difference. I've heard it said they automatically get good marks just because they're the Prince's children. As for their dressing, I allow casual clothing if it's a close personal evening, but for official appearances they must dress accordingly."

And does Her Serene Highness ever consider this life a royal pain? "Once we visited New Hampshire for a month and sat around without obligations and with nobody bothering us," she smiled. "That doesn't happen in Monaco. At home we're so busy that my husband and I almost always communicate via secretary." (Translation: a commoner's life was fun for a month, but I like what I have, thank you.)

And can old-time friends still say "Hiya Gracie"? "It depends on the circumstances," replied Princess Grace. "Usually it's 'Your Highness' according to protocol, but there are other times when it's less formal. Friends often come from Hollywood or Philadelphia. Certainly, it cannot always be as before because I don't have the time to sit around and chat. But, nonetheless, I am always happy to see my old friends."

And can Her Serene Highness ever have a nice juicy argument like us commoners? A careful laugh, then, "Of course there are . . . naturally . . . family disputes. . . ."

And does Her Serene Highness holler in French or English? Another careful laugh, then, "We always...er...have our family disputes in English." As her security guards showed me out, I realized that Her Serene Highness was just that. Serene. Calm. Cool. Controlled. I also realized that she is definitely not one to whom you'd yell "Hiya Gracie" any more.



Celebrate Christmas with ornaments you make with Kisses-- from Hershey's, of course.

Trim a tree or decorate a present with ornaments that get their Christmas glow from Hershey's Kisses. The same great silver Kisses you enjoy all year round now come in red and green and silver—just for the Holidays.

To make the ornaments, cut out shapes—stars, wreaths, stockings—from cardboard. Cover the cardboard in foil or glossy paper and glue* down Kisses. All over. A pinhole at the top and a bit of string make the ornament ready for the tree or for decorating a package.

And have a happy and delicious Christmas from Hershey's Kisses.

MIKE CURTIS:

"He Chews the Face Bars Off His Helmet"

Mike Curtis plays middle linebacker for the Baltimore Colts with such truculence that he is called "The Animal." At least one person disputes this appellation—Mike's wife, Marty. . . . "He's been nothing but a perfect gentleman since I've known him," insists Mrs. Curtis. "I can't understand why people call Mike those names." . . . Mike and Marty were married in January, 1971, shortly after Mike's defensive heroics, including a fumble recovery and a pass interception, led the Colts to their 16-13 victory over the Dallas Cowboys in the 1971 Super Bowl. . . . Perhaps even more last year, while the Colts failed to make the Super Bowl, Mike's play continued to develop, and he landed a spot on the 1972 All Star team. . . . Mike came to the Colts in 1965 after a glittering collegiate career at Duke University. . . . Mike's toughness has long been a topic of conversation among other Colt players. "Mike eats the panes right out of the bus windows on the way to practice," Billy Ray Smith, retired Colt defensive end, once said. "He chews the face bars off his helmet." Mike has just written a new book ("Keep Off My Turf," Lippincott, $5.95), in which he defends his own roughness and the roughness of the game.

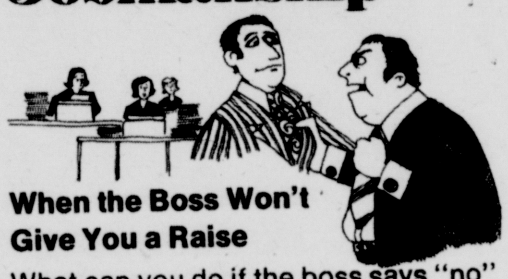
Jobmanship



When the Boss Won't Give You a Raise

What can you do if the boss says "no" when you ask for a raise? If you really believe you must have more money to stay with the job, then you may want to make the boss aware of your feelings. In general, though, says Dr. Ernest Dichter, author of "Motivating Human Behavior," threatening the boss is not a good approach. If the boss has to refuse your request, your threats will leave him feeling he has a dissatisfied employee. He then may wonder if your dissatisfaction will cause you to hold back on a full day's work. Besides, no boss likes to receive ultimatums. Therefore, if you receive a turndown, be sure the boss knows that you plan to continue working as hard as ever. Indicating to the boss a few weeks in advance that you'll be asking for a raise is a valuable technique. For the average boss, saying "No" to an honest request for better wages is never pleasant. "Giving the boss advance notice," explains Dr. Dichter, "offers you a better chance. Even if he still has to refuse, he will have thought the matter out, will feel more comfortable with you, and may give you a raise as soon as he can."—S. R. Redford

How to Keep on Your Diet at Christmas Dinner

Christmas dinner is riddled with pitfalls for the dieter, what with everyone urging him to forget his diet "just this once." Aunt Beth made her special mince pie (320 calories a slice) and you'll break her heart if you don't eat a piece; Aunt Mildred's famous creamed onions are 130 calories per helping; and the eggnog, beforehand, is 250 for a half cup, but as everyone insists, "One little cup won't hurt you." What to do? Accept it all! Let them dish it out. But don't eat it all! As one psychologist explains, the discomfort of protesting that you're on a diet is too exasperating and can make you feel guiltily hard-hearted. Better to agreeably comply—but then unobtrusively leave the cup of eggnog on the mantle and half your creamed onions and mince pie on the plate.

How Parents Influence Teenage Decisions

In making decisions, do teenagers follow their friends' or their parents' ideas? Though pressure is heavy on a teenager to be like the crowd, parents have more influence than they realize. When teenagers know that something is of high importance to their parents, their tendency is to follow their parents' lead. This is the conclusion of a sociologist who has done detailed studies of teenage decisions. Teenagers also tend to choose their parents' way when the topic is of great importance to both their parents and their friends. Only when parents are not too concerned about something, are teenagers strongly influenced by their friends. Popular music might be an example of this. The point for parents is valuable. For things that really are significant, teenagers want to know how their parents stand and that their parents do care.—By Shirley Sloan Fader

PETER USTINOV:

"Must the World's Children Lose Out to Cannons?"

"The last audible voice before the world is blown up will be that of an expert saying it can't be done," asserts actor Peter Ustinov. "There is one statistic I've learned working for UNICEF and it horrifies me. The world spends the same amount of money on children every year that is spent on armaments every two hours. I don't know how we can change this, except by erosion. . . . Protests? I think they have some effect, but very long term. I'm afraid I'm not a very good protester, the whole idea being that you take an inferior position to the person with whom you are pleading, and I find that awfully difficult. We're changing slowly, but whether we'll change in time to save ourselves, I don't know." "Butterflies are Free":

Photograph by Stan Wayman

Kit Krents ("sounds like a breakfast cereal," she says) with her blind lawyer husband, Harold.

"Some blind people . . . take it as a personal affront if you offer to help them across the street. That does so much damage. The person who offered his help walks away more confused than ever about blind people. As for myself, I like to be independent, but I can do it by asking people to help. That's the safest way for me to get across the street. . . . It's also a nice way of meeting people, of touching their lives for a moment and having them touch yours."

By Claire Safran

One of the rare funny stories to come out of the Vietnam war is that of the day Harold Krents got his draft notice. He was a law student at Harvard at the time and, for physical reasons, should have been classified 4-F. Instead, he had somehow been listed as 2-S, a student deferment. When those deferments were eliminated, the students chewed their pencils and waited to see who would be drafted. The first person at Harvard to get a notice was Harold, who puzzled over it for a while and then called his draft board. "I think there's been some mistake," he told them. "You see, I'm blind."

By that time, enough students from other colleges had called with all sorts of imaginative reasons why they, too, shouldn't be drafted. The exasperated official exploded. "I don't care whether you're blind or not. You've got to report." Before the dust of the mixup had settled, the story had been reported by newspapers, radio and television. Among those who heard about it was author Leonard Gershe, who was inspired by Harold's spunk and sense of humor ("I'll go," he told authorities, "if you'll give me a braille M-16") to write a play with a blind hero, "Butterflies Are Free." It was a hit on Broadway and now as a movie.

In the play, the hero fights for his independence against an overprotective mother. Harold's own parents were somewhat different. At age three, he would run down the street, as if racing the wind. Many times, he would fall, often bumping his head against a street lamp or fire hydrant. Strangers would stop his mother and berate her. "How can you be so cruel? He's blind. Why don't you hold onto his hand?" Mrs. Krents would explain patiently that she couldn't always be there to hold his hand and she wanted her son to learn to lead a normal, independent life. A few years later, when she was told by the staff of a physical fitness school that Harold was being given an award at graduation, she protested. She knew how much he hated having things done for him out of pity,

It's Also a True-Life Love Story

The lovers in "Butterflies Are Free": Goldie Hawn as "Jill Tanner" and Edward Albert as "Don Baker," the blind youth.

and what other reason could there be for giving a blind child an award in athletics? The result was a special award for courage, which Harold still feels is a medal his entire family shares with him.

"They never in any way made me feel limited or different," he says. "They bent over backwards to give me independence. It might have been easier for them to resign themselves and send me to a blind school, for instance, but they always fought to work things out for me at regular schools. They worked hard with me to help me learn to live in the sighted world.

"They treated me the same way they did my brother and sister. If there was any mischief in the house, I was spanked first and they asked questions later. They guessed I was behind the mischief, and they were usually right."

There were lonely times and humiliating moments for Harold as he grew up, yet his dogged efforts to be accepted by his sighted classmates eventually paid off. He had a tiny amount of light perception, enough to play backyard football and earn himself the nickname "Cannonball"—along with many lumps and bruises. At Scarsdale, N.Y., High School, he was eventually elected president of the student council. When he entered Harvard, volunteers would read aloud to him the books that weren't available in braille, while he took notes on a braille machine. "When my friends found out there were no dirty books in braille, they even read those to me so I wouldn't feel deprived."

Harold has written his own story in a warm and moving book, "To Race the Wind." It's an account of how his family handled the problem of his being blind, and much of it could be the story of any family handling any problem. "I have received many wonderful letters about the book, but some people have criticized it because of the humor in it," he says. "They don't think you should make jokes about blindness. Well, I'm the one who knows that being blind is no joke, but I also know that I couldn't get through without a sense of humor.

"A few other people have complained that there isn't enough sex in the book. I tell them, 'If you feel cheated reading it, imagine how cheated I felt living it.' "

Speaking of "Butterflies Are Free," he says, "Unfortunately, I didn't have a love affair with someone as cute as Goldie Hawn when I was 19." A few years later though, while still in college, he did fall in love. Unlike the girl who simply comes back to the movie's blind hero, this one married Harold. A pert brunette, her sense of humor is a match for Harold's. To those who wonder what her most difficult adjustment was in marrying a blind man, she replies, "His name. It's just awful. If you put my first name with his last name, you get Kit Krents. It sounds so crunchy, like a breakfast cereal."

"My blindness doesn't matter to Kit or to me. Sure, I'd rather be able to see, but it doesn't play a major part in our lives together. I would have liked to see her walking down the aisle as a bride. She said, 'Okay, so you can't see me.' If we're going out, she'll tell me, 'I look lovely tonight. Now you say it.' In any case, she doesn't have to worry about my looking at other girls, and she always gives me very managed news about other women. I'm not tall, and she knows I like short girls, like herself. So according to her, every other woman that we meet is five-foot-eleven."

He admits, though, that their honeymoon was a disaster. "We thought we were going into a luxurious hotel in the Caribbean, but it was wall-to-wall cockroaches. The high point was when I got confused about where our bathroom was. I thought that's where I was going, but instead I walked into the hotel lobby, stark naked."

The honeymoon was followed by a year at Oxford, England, where Harold had a special scholarship. "That was wonderful. We visited most of Europe and I felt so good about being able to take Kit traveling. Her family was worried about her marrying me, and I was glad to show them that I could give her a full and interesting life."

Even with good grades and the publicity that "Butterflies Are Free" brought him, Harold found it difficult to land a spot with a law firm after graduation. "Law involves a lot of research. The members of the firm seem to think that if they were blind, they wouldn't be able to do it—so they didn't see how I could do it." He received some 40 rejections before being hired by a leading Washington, D.C. firm, Surrey, Karasik and Morse, who told him "If you don't work out, we're going to have no hesitations about firing you." Harold replied, "If I don't work out, I'm going to have no hesitation about quitting before you fire me. I have a lot of pride."

On law business or to promote his book, Harold often finds himself traveling alone to other cities. "It's exciting," he says, "and it's terrifying. I look on it as a survival hike among people, and people are what make life meaningful. I know that many sighted people are confused about how to behave toward someone who's blind.

"My feeling is that I'd like them to offer to do anything for me, and I'll tell them what I need. Some blind people have other ideas; some take it as a personal affront if you offer to help them across the street. That does so much damage. The person who offered his help walks away more confused than ever about blind people. As for myself, I like to be independent, but I can do it by asking people to help. That's the safest way for me to get across the street and the quickest. It's also a nice way of meeting people, of touching their lives for a moment and having them touch yours."

Yes, One Child Does Matter

By Art Linkletter For Family Weekly

Art Linkletter with Nam Jung Park, six, youngest member of the Korean Children's Choir.

Since the Second World War, my wife and I have supported several needy children from all parts of the world. We have visited them yearly, entertained them in our home, and felt the enormous pride and satisfaction that come from seeing a child, one who has been battered by life, grow into a proud, fine human being.

Among our many foster children is a lovely adopted daughter in Hong Kong (for whom I went through the rigors of learning Mandarin Chinese, only to discover that she spoke Cantonese – as different from Mandarin as French is from Spanish); our French "son" who was found wandering on a World War II battlefield and whom we had the great satisfaction of reuniting with his family after years of searching; a Polish-German boy; a South Vietnamese boy; a boy from Manila; a Greek girl, now married and living in Canada; and two Japanese youngsters who came to us through Jane Russell and her work with WAIF.

Some of these children we have sponsored through Foster Parent's Plan and some through World Vision International, a private, nonprofit, Christian organization that supports more than 38,000 children and has facilities that run from nurseries and medical centers to the remarkable Music Institute of Seoul, South Korea, where the Korean Children's Choir was born.

One of these foster children, Kim Yung Sook, was raised at the Music Institute. Kim lost both her parents as an infant during the Korean War. She used to think that orphans were born that way—without father or mother. She was taken into the home, and, when her musical ability was discovered, she went to the Music Institute to study and live. The Korean Children's Choir became her family. Today she is a nurse, working with orphans like herself. She is also a beautiful, caring human being.

"Children of Zero," a movie we made on the subject, followed one child in each of three cities in the Far East, showing his life for one day, letting the viewer get to know him and care.

Our first filming stop was Saigon, and our star was Nguyen (pronounced "Win"), a 14-year-old street boy. He is old way beyond his years. He came from a brutalizing, deprived home, was beaten and bounced around from relative to relative and finally sold as a servant. He ran away to the streets of Saigon. These street boys are master survivors, living by their wits, often leading gangs of smaller boys. They steal, work as procurers and gambling runners, and trust no one. Nguyen came to the World Vision Street Boys' Home, where he will be paid if he goes to school.

"They want to touch you. They hang on your legs, your arms, your fingers. They need love so desperately. Sometimes, I just sit and hold a child."

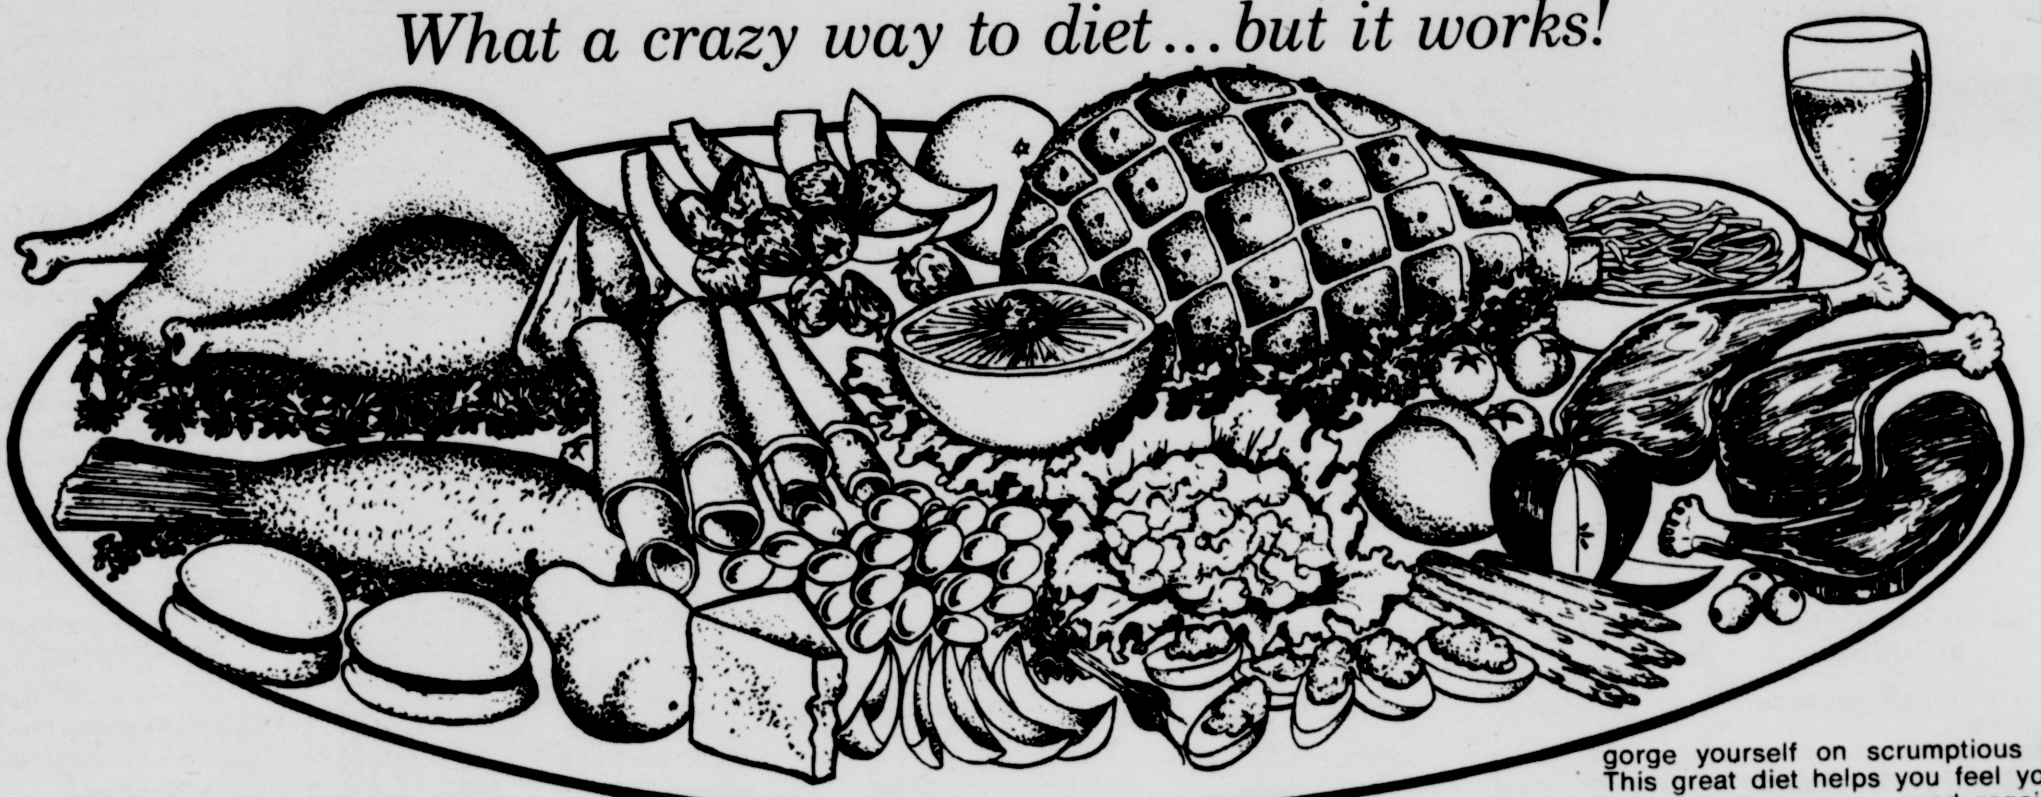
In Korea, we focus on Kim Yung Sook, the orphan girl who has grown into a beautiful nurse. While there I found our Linkletters' latest family addition, a lovely little Korean girl named Han Soo Duk. She is nine – the youngest of six children. Her father was severely disabled in a fishing accident, and her mother takes in sewing to support the family, who live in abject poverty in a paper-covered shack. Soo Duk entered the Music Institute in February and came to America with the Korean Children's Choir for their tour of the U.S. and Canada.

I have been involved with children most of my life. My interest in children reflects my belief in the importance of care and kindness. A child is so open. So vulnerable. So honest. When I visit orphanages in the Far East, I am constantly aware of how straightforward these children are about their need for love, for contact. They want to touch you. They hang on your legs, your arms, your fingers. They need love so desperately. Sometimes, I just sit and hold a child. If you don't reach these kids in time, they turn inward and learn to hate. Then it's too late. I know. I was an orphan too.

Everything I saw on my recent trip to the Far East strengthened my faith in the power of kindness. You can't write off the world by saying, "But there are hundreds of thousands of needy children. What good does it do to help any if you can't help them all?" We have to remember that one child is as important as a million. And keep trying.

Eat your Fill of Tasty Foods – yet lose 10 pounds in 10 days with Newest Grapefruit Diet

What a crazy way to diet... but it works!



By Elizabeth Louise

New, Special Way to Catabolize Fats out of your body–without unsafe drugs, annoying exercises or strict dieting.

FORT LAUDERDALE, FLORIDA (Special Report) — A new, different Grapefruit Diet, that really works, is sweeping the country. Overweight persons everywhere are losing excess poundage faster and easier than ever before, with this unique diet. Now they can eat all the foods they love — including thick steaks, potatoes, bacon, scrambled eggs, fried chicken, even alcoholic drinks. This special, high speed grapefruit diet begins to work within 24 hours —even while sleeping.

Absolutely no medicines. No muscle twitching exercises and no strict starvation diets, either! Instead, dieters can fill up on scrumptious, satisfying meals. Nevertheless they shed excess poundage fast—up to 10 pounds, or more, in 10 days. This is the reason why: this diet combination wakes up your lazy body CATABOLISM and flushes excess fat out of the body, quickly and safely.

MELT OFF UGLY FAT WITHOUT STRICT DIETING

This improved Grapefruit Super "C" diet requires no foul tasting medicines or boring exercises that wear you out. You don't cut out the foods you've always liked. You never suffer from starvation pangs. Faddish, strict dieting is not necessary. You feast on hundreds of delicious, satisfying dishes — meats, poultry, sea food. You enjoy soups, vegetables, salads with scrumptious dressings and fresh or canned grapefruit. You get breads, muffins, cereals, cheeses. and scores of heavenly desserts. You may also drink cocktails, wines, beer. And between meals, you can munch on scrumptious snacks and tidbits. Eat all you want day or night—without guilt feelings. Yet, unbelievable as it may seem, you'll lose excess weight faster than you dreamed possible! Up to 10 full pounds (or more) in only 10 days. And remember, this new, fast-acting Super "C" Grapefruit Diet is super-charged with NATURAL VITAMIN "C". This vitamin has been acclaimed by dieticians, doctors, even Nobel Prize scientists both in America and abroad. Best of all, this diet wakes up your natural CATABOLISM to flush out excess fats—not the old fashioned, strict diets that half starve you to death.

RESHAPES YOUR BODY

This Grapefruit Super "C" plan actually transforms your figure, day after day. One morning you'll wake up to a wonderful surprise! Your mirror will reveal a glamorous new you—a slim, alluring body. Suddenly you're more limber and lithe, aglow with youthful sex appeal. Thousands of persons have already tried this safe, natural, CATABOLISM way to dislodge fat. Why don't you try it also? Simply follow the delicious satisfying diet and special private instructions. That's all! You will be rewarded with thrilling results. This diet gives you the right COMBINATION of foods that wake up lazy CATABOLISM. As ugly fat is catabolized out of your body, it also helps you conquer that tired, sluggish, "old age" feeling so often caused by a fat-burdened body.

DOCTORS WARN AGAINST STRICT DIETING

The United States Department of Health, Education and Welfare plus many doctors warn against restricted diets deficient in vitamins, minerals, proteins, fats, and starches. You need all these elements for abundant health. If you eliminate any of them, you get only temporary weight loss. Eventually, your body fights back and ugly fat returns, pound after pound. Super "C" Grapefruit Diet is different. It works with you, not against you. No hunger pangs, ever. No skipped meals. You feast on hearty breakfasts, lunches, dinners. You enjoy a rich variety of good eating — foods you've always craved for. Just imagine, you can partake of formerly "prohibited" foods, such as ham, bacon, stews, rich casseroles, creamy desserts, etc. You certainly fill up on many delicious foods. Yet, by following this fast and easy 10 day plan, you can catabolize pounds and pounds of accumulated fat out of your body. Right up to 10 pounds (or more) in 10 days!

HOW DOES IT WORK?

Your body burns up fat very much like a car burns gas. This natural process is called CATABOLISM. After years of faulty dieting, excess fats become hardened and lazy—locked up in body tissues. Meantime your body catabolism may also slow down. Result: cholesterol fats may clog up arteries, placing life itself in jeopardy. Fats become lodged in arms, thighs, buttocks, belly, etc. You look older. You also act older.

NOW there is an easy way to wake up that lazy, sleepy catabolism! Within 24 hours, the Super "C" Diet starts to catabolize this dangerous fat out of your body. The unsightly bulges and awkward pot belly vanish. You eat your fill without regrets, yet strange but true, you lose pound after pound—even if you gorge yourself on scrumptious foods. This great diet helps you feel younger . . . act younger . . . and regain that sparkling, youthful look of long ago.

KEEP IT OFF—ALL YEAR!

This newest grapefruit diet will be mailed to all interested readers. Write today and also receive Full Year Maintenance Plan — at no extra cost. Tells you how to reduce down to your ideal weight and keep it down! How to win that slim, attractive look not for just 10 days—but for year after year.

Two After-Dinner Treats for a Cold Winter's Night

Two recipes, one great flavor: Vanilla Coffee Liqueur and Vanilla Coffee Chiffon Pie.

This week, Food Editor Marilyn Hansen makes two sweet treats especially for the holidays. "This is a time to 'live a little.' I made Vanilla Coffee Chiffon Pie last Christmas, and my family loved it. This year I'm going to make Vanilla Coffee Liqueur and send decanters of it to friends for Christmas."

VANILLA COFFEE LIQUEUR

1 pint bottle light corn syrup
1 cup sugar
½ cup water
½ cup instant coffee powder*
1 bottle (4/5 quart) vodka
1 vanilla bean, split lengthwise or
2 tablespoons pure vanilla extract

1. In a large saucepan combine syrup, sugar and water. Heat to boiling point, stirring constantly. Reduce heat; simmer and stir just until sugar dissolves (about 2 minutes).

2. With a wire whisk, gradually beat in coffee powder. Beat until thoroughly dissolved over very low heat.

3. Remove from heat, add vodka and vanilla bean. Pour into jars or bottles, dropping a piece of vanilla bean in each jar. Cover, label and let age for at least two weeks. (This allows flavors to mellow.)

4. At holiday time pour into attractive, dark decanter type bottles, cork. Tie with yarn or ribbon.

5. It is a nice idea to write the recipe and give it along with the liqueur. Serve in cordial glasses or pour a little over vanilla, coffee or chocolate ice cream.

Makes about 1½ quarts

*Use powdered coffee, not freeze-dried.

Give a dependable

Lighters shown, $3.95 to $5.95
Others to $175.00

VANILLA COFFEE CHIFFON PIE

1 pkg. unflavored gelatin
½ cup cold water
Sugar
⅛ teaspoon salt
3 large eggs, separated
⅓ cup Vanilla Coffee Liqueur
1 tablespoon pure vanilla extract
1 cup heavy cream, whipped
Baked 9 inch pastry shell or 9 inch chocolate cookie crumb crust
½ cup heavy cream, whipped
Chocolate curls

1. In small saucepan soften gelatin in water for 5 minutes. Add ⅓ cup sugar, salt and egg yolks; blend well.

2. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly until gelatin dissolves and mixture thickens. Do not boil.

3. Remove from heat and stir in Vanilla Coffee Liqueur and vanilla extract. Refrigerate until mixture thickens to consistency of unbeaten egg white, about 2-3 hours.

4. In large bowl beat egg whites with electric mixer until soft peaks form. Gradually beat in ⅓ cup sugar; continue beating until stiff but not dry.

5. Fold beaten egg whites into gelatin mixture with a light hand. Fold in stiffly beaten whipped cream. Turn into pastry shell.

6. Refrigerate until thoroughly chilled, about 6 hours.

7. To garnish as pictured: fold 1 tablespoon sugar into remaining whipped cream, spoon a ring in center of pie, top with chocolate curls.

Makes 8-10 servings

DID YOU KNOW?

Vanilla beans are the fruit of a tropical orchid grown on the islands of Madagascar, Reunion and Comores. These beans are the only source of all true vanilla, from which pure vanilla extract is made. Vanilla beans are becoming increasingly available across the whole country. And here's an idea: To flavor and scent your sugar magnificently, split bean in half lengthwise, cut into ½ inch pieces, place in covered jar with 2-5 lbs. sugar. Let stand two weeks. Use for cooking and sugar bowl.

MOUSE TRAPS

are the best way to kill mice. Right?

WRONG!

It's a fact, that mouse traps can cause more problems than they solve. If a trap does not accomplish a quick, clean kill, the job of "finishing off" the injured mouse is up to you. Or—if the trap happens to hit the mouse's tail or leg, he may hobble off, dragging the trap into the wall. But not with d-Con® MOUSE-PRUFE®...

MOUSE-PRUFE IS CLEANER. No disease-carrying, messy mouse traps around the house... no handling mice. And no disposal problems.

MOUSE-PRUFE IS EASIER. Just pull tab on the package and bait feeds automatically. Mice eat 'til they've had enough—and disappear from sight!

MOUSE-PRUFE IS SURER. Because mice always come in family groups, one trap is not enough. But one package of MOUSE-PRUFE can do the job of two, three, or more traps.

MOUSE-PRUFE does not contain violent poisons, so it's safe when used as directed—even around children and pets.

What do doctors recommend for patients in pain?

Doctors all over the country dispense over 50,000,000 of these tablets to their patients each year.

There are many medications a physician or dentist can prescribe for pain. Some are narcotic, many are available only on prescription. But there is one pain reliever, available without prescription, doctors dispense again and again... Anacin.

Each year, doctors give over 50,000,000 Anacin tablets to their patients in pain. If doctors think enough about Anacin to dispense all these tablets, what better recommendation can you ask when you are in pain?

You see, Anacin contains more of the pain reliever doctors recommend most than any other leading tablet.

Headache and dental pain is relieved incredibly fast; minor pains of arthritis are dependably eased for hours; even the aches and pains of colds and flu respond to Anacin. So the tension and depression that can be caused by such pain will be relieved too. And millions take Anacin without stomach upset.

When you're in pain, why don't you follow the practice of so many doctors and take the tablet a doctor might give you in his own office. Take Anacin®.

EAT ANYTHING WITH DENTURES

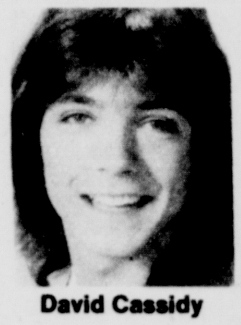
What in the World!

MICHAEL CONSTANTINE
Thanks, David Cassidy

"I owe a debt of gratitude to—of all people—David Cassidy! And he doesn't even know it," Michael Constantine, the principal of TV's "Room 222" tells us. "Actually, I've never met him. At the time my daughter was having teenage problems, I was very disturbed because I just couldn't get through to her. Then somebody gave me a book of interviews with TV personalities. I finally got around to leafing through, and I spotted an interview with David Cassidy, talking about his teenage problems. He said he knew he was acting hatefully to his parents, but that he didn't really hate them, he just couldn't control himself. He recalled that it was two years before he 'came out' of this feeling. And I thought, maybe it's true, maybe these problems don't really last forever. I love my daughter very much, and I hated to have a bad relationship with her. Now I see healthy signs that she's 'coming out' of these problems. So, my thanks to David Cassidy for giving me hope when I needed it."



David Cassidy

Worried because your child is a "loner"? Teachers often rate children as "well adjusted" on the basis of "popularity," or on the number of children they interact with, and adults tend to think children need many friends. Not so, says psychologist Dr. Esther Laden Cava. "There's nothing intrinsically wrong with a child—or an adult—who prefers one friend to a number of friends, or who enjoys being by himself. If he's reasonably content, his parents should be happy. If the parent is unhappy about it, he communicates this to the child. Since children tend to see parents as all-knowing, the child begins to think that there must be something wrong with him, and this can lead to a reduction of confidence in himself." From Dr. Cava's "Complete Question-and-Answer Book of Child Training" (Hawthorne, $8.95).

A light green highway? They're coming, says Dr. Alden Haffner of the Optometric Center of New York, for safety's sake. He suggests: light green highways with patches of a different color every mile or two to increase driver alertness; for nighttime, phosphorescent material in the road itself for greater visibility; and green, yellow, or blue taillights (they are more noticeable) on cars instead of red. And be prepared to see yellow fire engines in the future, the vision expert says.

PEARL BAILEY
Time for Mr. Nixon

A watch as big as a fist seemed so timely to singer Pearl Bailey when she spied it that she bought one for herself, which she now sports on a heavy chain around her neck, and one for a friend—President Richard Nixon.

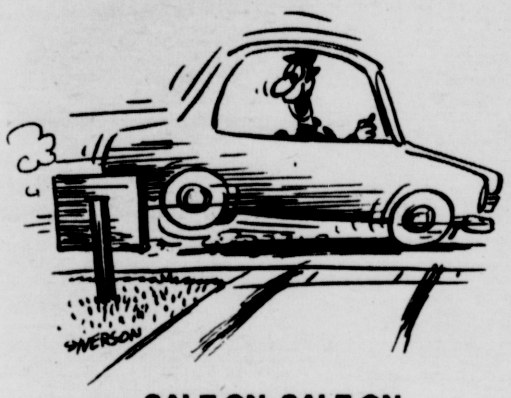
ARMOUR'S ARMOURY
By Richard Armour



SALE ON, SALE ON

"Garage Sale," said the homemade sign,
With letters large and bold design.
I slowed my car and hesitated;
My mind was working while I waited.
I thought of all the things I need,
I felt that good old surge of greed.
And then I gave my car the gas
And went on by. You see, alas,
I love a sale, it makes me heady,
But I've a good garage already.

JULIET LOWELL'S CELEBRITY LETTERS

Juliet Lowell, author of the all-time best-seller "Dear Sir," collects unintentionally humorous letters to and from people in all walks of life.

To Mr. Charlton Heston

Dear Mr. Heston,

I seen you in so many pictures I feel like old friends. I'm coming to Hollywood and if you pass me on the street you'll recognize me as I'm the gal who always sits in the third row isle seat and chews gum. I love you.

*Stella M.*_____

To Miss Lana Turner

Dear Miss Turner,

I read an article that said you had been divorced 6 times. I only know about 4 marriages. Does this mean that you've had 2 more husbands than you've had weddings?

Respectfully yours,
*Sidney P.*_____

The company president told his sales manager, "To quiet consumer criticism, I've decided to offer a ten-year guarantee on our product."

"But, chief," the manager protested, "our product falls apart in three years."

"I know," said the president, "but we'll print the guarantee on paper that falls apart in two years."—Robert Brault

THROUGH A CHILD'S EYES

Kids see life differently. Send original contributions to "Child," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., N.Y., N.Y. 10022. $10 if used—none returned.

My six-year-old was being punished for harassing his younger sister. After spending a few minutes in his bedroom, he announced that he was leaving home. Trying a little psychology, I told him to go ahead. Thirty minutes or so passed, and in walked my son. Not wanting to admit defeat, his only comment was, "Well, I see you still have the same dog." —Mrs. Pat Leach, Pascagoula, Miss.

My cousin and his young grandson were looking through some old family pictures. Grandpa said, "And this is an old girlfriend of mine," referring to an early photo of his wife. Grandma was in the kitchen and overheard her grandson remark, "Gee! I'll bet you're sure glad you didn't get her!" —Mrs. Dewey Johnson, Hinsdale, Montana

THIS WEEK'S TOP PRIZE QUESTION:

KEN McCALISTER OF STATELINE, NV, ASKS:
"WHERE DOES MOLD COME FROM?"

MOLD IS REALLY A PATCH OF TINY PLANTS. TINY MOLD SEEDS, CALLED SPORES, ARE CARRIED AWAY BY CURRENTS OF AIR. WHEN THEY LAND ON A PIECE OF DAMP FOOD IN YOUR KITCHEN THEY BEGIN TO GROW, JUST AS CARROTS GROW IN A GARDEN. IN A FEW DAYS THE FOOD WILL BE COVERED BY A FUZZY PATCH OF MOLD PLANTS.

Polly's Pointers

DEAR POLLY—After a rubber food scraper becomes too worn to use, replace the rubber end with a sponge. It's great for washing dishes and pans. —SUSANNE

© 1972 by NEA, Inc.

DEAR POLLY—My three boys all wear different sizes in all articles of clothing. It is impossible to remember their various sizes, so I tape the tags from their newest clothes inside the appropriate drawer. The next time something new is needed, it is very easy to know the correct size.—LYNDA

Polly pays $1.00 for every idea used. Send them to her, c/o this newspaper.

DEAR POLLY—My stove oven has a window in the front, so I have taught my small daughter that when the light is on the oven is hot. I never turn the light off until the oven is cool, as a safety measure.—MRS. D. H.

DEAR POLLY—Some leftovers were overlooked and left in the refrigerator till they were rancid. Not having any of my old standbys to use for removing the odor, I placed an uncovered jar of mustard on the center shelf. In no time the odor was gone. Now I always keep one there and add a bit of fresh mustard every so often.—A. D. S.

DEAR POLLY—I used to use a plastic bag for shaking chicken and fish pieces in flour. The other night I was ready to fry some fish and had no bag, so I put the needed amount of flour and seasonings in a plastic juice container with a lid. I put a couple of pieces of fish in at a time and found a mess-free way of coating fish fillets.—DIANA

DEAR POLLY—To keep your hands clean while polishing sandals and other strap shoes, place a plastic or paper bag over your hand and then slip it inside the shoe. This is a neat way, also, to polish and shine shoes with perforations in them.—TRUDY (a young reader)

DEAR POLLY—When I transplant vegetables or flowers I shade them by sticking a small branch or twig from a bush or tree by each plant. Just forget they are there until the plants get a good start.—BESSIE

DEAR POLLY—To prevent getting snags and runs in nylon hose from rough toenails, I first wrap my toes with plastic wrap and smooth it out so no nails poke through to tear the hose.—CATHY

DEAR POLLY—My quick way to dry tennis shoes is to place them on the floor in front of the place where the warm air comes out of the refrigerator. They dry quickly without the danger of fading, which may happen when they are dried in the sun.—NANCY JANE
